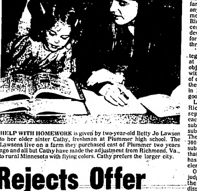
BUFORD LAWSON family of Plummer takes a special interest in the question of busing students for racial quality now being hotly debated in Congress and across the nation. They moved two years ago from the Richmond, Va., area where three independent school districts have now been combined by judicial order. The family includes Buford, his wife Carol, and daughters Cathy Limeberry, freshman at Plummer school; Betty Jo, 2; and JoAnn, eight months. The Lawsons purchased a farm three miles east and one-half mile south of Plummer.

Former Virginians Talk About Busing



HELP WITH HOMEWORK is given by two-year-old Betty Jo Lawson to her older sister Cathy, freshman at Plummer high school. The Lawsons live on a farm they purchased east of Plummer two years ago and all but Cathy have made the adjustment from Richmond, Va., to rural Minnesota with flying colors. Cathy prefers the larger city.

by Marvin Lundin

While many people in this area of the country watch the controversy on busing of students for racial equality with general disinterest, the Buford Lawson family of rural Plummer is anything but disinterested. They moved here two years ago from Richmond, Va., and are concerned that the situation developing back there could be a forerunner to any school districts throughout the nation.

"We don't object to integration," Buford makes it clear at the outset. "We don't even object to busing if it is done within the districts and the level of education isn't decreased. But the way they are going at it back in Richmond just doesn't make good sense at all."

Lawson explained that the Richmond area had three separate school districts—one each for the city of Richmond, suburban county of Henrico and suburban county of Chesterfield. The city of Richmond has about 300,000 people and the two suburban counties nearly double that number. Each school district has a number of schools, both elementary and secondary.

On January 10 a federal district judge ordered consolidation of the three separate districts, disposing of the three existing systems and creating one new district. Each district, under the order, must give its land, buildings, equipment and supplies to the new court-created board.

Purpose of the order is to achieve racial balance. The city school are 70 per cent black; the newly-created district will be two-thirds white. As a result, 78,000 students would ride buses with 35,000 crossing existing district boundaries. This is the first judicial ruling that sets aside previous governmental boundaries, and if allowed to stand could be applied anywhere in the nation. The district judge's decision is being appealed.

Lawson, who was reared on a 67-acre farm in West Virginia, takes a dim view of excessive expense for busing students when the same amount of money could be used to improve the schools as they are. He was a cross-country driver for Trailway bus lines while in Richmond and owned a house in an area he selected because it was reported to have a good school system.

"I think most people there tried to live in the areas with the best schools they could afford," he said. "As people made a little more money and were a little better fixed, they tended to move to where their kids could get the best education. A lot of them lived in even a little better area than they could really afford so their kids could go to a better

Council Rejects Offer By Planning Consultant

Potentially excessive cost compelled the Thief River Falls city council to reject a four-part planning and development proposal submitted by Kermit Crouch of Hodne-Stageberg, a Minneapolis firm specializing in municipal planning, at its meeting last week. At the meeting, which was attended by several members of the city planning commission, the council discussed Crouch's proposal and decided on a counter-offer.

Originally Crouch would have attended all meetings of the planning commission which normally meets once per month. Crouch was to have received $425 for each meeting. The council wants Crouch to be available to attend, when requested, for a flat fee of $210 plus travel expenses. He would probably not be required to make the trip more than once every three or four months.

The second and third parts of Crouch's proposition were accepted without significant change. Crouch would review plans and suggestions of the planning commission at its request. He would also update the present data base with information obtained from the 1970 census. This would enable the planning commission to use the latest facts and statistics to make proposals which would be more relevant to the actual needs of the community. For the data service Crouch would receive $3,000.

The fourth part of Crouch's proposal was rejected in its entirety. Crouch would have prepared a development plan for the southeast sector Thief River Falls at a cost of $5,000. The council's offer would limit the total cost of Crouch's services to less than that amount.

A proposed ordinance to permit intoxicating liquors on the premises where 3.2 beer is sold was tabled to permit additional evaluation by the council.

The same action was taken on the ordinance for controlling cats and dogs in the city. The council intends to give more consideration to the legal points involved in such ordinances.

Negotiation with the Teamster Union for city employees resulted in a settlement within the 5½ per cent limit set by the federal government. Police negotiations are continuing.

A cigarette and off-sale 3.2 beer license was granted for the Warehouse Foods store on highway 59. Issuance was subject to ordinance provisions limiting the hours of sale.

It was noted that Gerald Wigness, city clerk, and Roger DeLap, assistant clerk, are scheduled to attend the meeting of the Municipal Finance and Clerk's association in Minneapolis, March 8, 9 and 10.

David Strong To Speak At Cath. Daughters Meet

Catholic Daughters of America, Our Lady of the Snows court 2023, monthly meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m., at St. Bernard's basement room. Mass will be offered at 7:30 p.m.

David Strong, co-ordinator for the Day-Night unit at Northwestern hospital, will be the guest speaker. He will show slides and explain the Day-Night program. A question and answer period will follow.

Catholic Daughters recently sent two boxes of hospital gowns, quilts, bandages and compresses to mission fields. The group is collecting baby clothing in very good condition, used eye glasses, used or new rosaries, scraps of new material for quilts, and any kind of trading stamps which will be turned in for a bus for an Indian mission. These items may be brought to the meeting or may be left at the church where a box has been placed in the old baptismal area.

The group is also collecting cancelled stamps as part of the missionary work. Those saving stamps are asked to leave the stamps on the envelopes or paper in order that all perforations remain in tact. Cancelled stamps may also be placed in the box at the church.

Thompson-Passer Vows Are Exchanged At Grygla

Mr. and Mrs. Rick Passer are at home at McGregor following an exchange of marriage vows at the Grace Lutheran church at Grygla. The bride is the former Paulette Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos L. Thompson of Grygla. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Passer of Barnesville.

Rev. Leland Uden officiated at the double ring ceremony with approximately 200 guests in attendance. Anne Strom, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played the "Theme from Romeo and Juliet" for the processional. She, also accompanied LuAnn Lillevold, a friend of the bride, as she sang, "O Perfect Love," "Lord's Prayer," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Forming the background for the wedding party were altar arrangements of carnations, in light and deep pink.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an empire fashioned, floor-length gown of white velvet styled with long, puffed sleeves. Embroidered lace trim formed the stand-up collar, and trimmed the waistline, bodice and cuffs. Matching trim edged her double mantilla. She carried a colonial bouquet of red roses and pink baby roses with babies's breath and white velvet streamers.

Paula Thompson of Minneapolis attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were friends of the couple, Lois Paulson and Pat Wigen, both of Minneapolis. All wore floor-length gowns of moss green velvet, styled like the bride's with off-white embroidered lace on the collar and cuffs of the full sleeves. To complement their attire, they wore matching moss green velvet bows in their hair. Each carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations and red roses accented with ribbon streamers in light and deep pink.

LorRae Passer, a sister of the groom, was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother-in-law, Dennis Jacobson, of Donnelly. Groomsmen were Darwin Starkey of Brainerd, brother-in-law of the groom, and Allan Morken of Oklee, a friend of the couple. The ushers were Dennis Baumann of St. Paul and Jerry Passer of Elbow Lake, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively. The men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with white ruffled shirts trimmed in black.

The mother of the bride was attired in a green knit dress with a corsage of pink carnations and red roses. A similar corsage was worn by the mother of the groom, who was attired in a navy blue dress.

Special guests at the ceremony were the grandmothers of the bride and groom.

A reception followed with Kernal and Edna Paulson, friends of the bride, as host and hostess. Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake decorated with sugar bells and red roses. At the base of the cake was an open Bible inscribed with the names of the couple. Topping the cake was a Christogram. Two heart-shaped cakes, decorated with roses and bells, were connected to the tiered cake by white velvet streamers attached to the upper tier.

Vi Baumann, aunt of the bride, and Bell Hanson, friend of the groom, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Avis Sletten, aunt of the bride, and Toni Passer, aunt of the groom.

Peggy Jacobson, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book. Friends of the bride, Susan Geving and Linda Batcher, served the punch. Waitresses were Connie Baumann, cousin of the bride, and Alice Sorenson and Marlene Frehauff, friends of the bride. At the gift table were Cheryl Sluistad and Linda Nelson, friends of the bride, assisted by the gift bearer, Robert Thompson, brother of the bride.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a purple knit dress.

The bride is a graduate of the Goodridge high school and the Alexandria Technical school. The groom, a graduate of the Elbow Lake high school, is also a graduate of the technical school at Alexandria. He is now employed by the Aitkin Sheriff department. Photography by Hansons, Bagley.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Robert Plough
5933-39th S.W.
Seattle, Wash.

Are your spirits beginning to droop as you hear from neighbors and friends touring warm, sunny areas? In place of bemoaning the fact that you can't escape the cold, wintery weather, why not do a little traveling from your own home? This could easily be done by preparing a special dinner, each week, planned around a specific area of country. The menus need not be costly (Check the menus in eating places—it is the simple foods, prepared in a special way and given a fancy name, that are the most expensive. Common foods like spaghetti, noodles and macaroni become exotic when referred to as pasta.)

Today's recipe for crab souffle, sent to us by Mrs. Robert Plough of Seattle, can form the basis of the meal featuring the West Coast. This souffle is truly delicious and very simple to make, yet it is elegant enough to serve at any luncheon.

Puget Sound Hot Crab Souffle

8 slices bread
2 cups crab
½ cup mayonnaise
1 onion chopped
1 cup celery, chopped
Green pepper, chopped (Optional)
3 cups milk
4 eggs slightly beaten
1 can cream of mushroom soup
Grated cheese
Paprika

Method: Dice half of the bread into a three-quart, oblong baking dish. Mix crab, mayonnaise, onion, green pepper and celery, and spread over diced bread. Trim crust from remaining slices of bread, and place slices over crab mixture. Mix eggs and milk together and pour over bread. Cover and place in refrigerator over night. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven and spoon soup over bread. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika. Bake one hour longer in 325 degree oven. Serves 12.

(Note: Canned crab can be purchased in the local store. Since receiving this recipe, several have tried it, using clam or salmon in place of crab. All reported good results. However, in making half a recipe, use only half of the cream of mushroom soup as a full can makes the souffle too salty. EMS)

It is always a treat to receive a recipe from a former resident of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Plough is the former Irene Forsberg, a daughter of Arthur Forsberg, Sr., of this city. Her husband is also formerly of this city and is vice president of the First National Bank at Seattle. They have two children: Kevin and Laura both in high school.

Mrs. Plough is very active in church activities and in 4-H club work in the city of Seattle. She is also a volunteer with the American Women's Voluntary services at the Veterans Administration hospital at Seattle, where she obtained this recipe.

Deadline Nears For Sign-up In ASCS Programs

With the March 10 deadline nearing for signup in the 1972 feed grain and wheat programs, some 250 to 300 more farmers are expected in the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) office for enrollment during the final week.

Through March 3, approximately 600 producers in Pennington county had signed up for participation in one or more of the set-aside programs offered in 1972, according to Winton Knutson, ASC county committee chairman.

"We've been recording about 25 signups per day, but we expect that average to climb sharply during the last week of signup," he said. Total participation in Pennington county is expected to number about 850 farms.

Farmers have been waiting to sign up early each day, he reported, starting at 8 a.m. when the local ASCS office opens. The office closes at 4:30 p.m., and Knutson said that any producer who is in the office before closing time will be enrolled that day.

In the 1972 voluntary farm programs, participants agree to set aside 25 per-cent of their farm's base or allotment of whatever crop or crops they sign up for. Options are offered for additional voluntary set-aside in the wheat and feed grain (corn, grain sorghum, barley) programs, in order to aid farmers in bringing production into better adjustment with market demand.

In return for setting aside a portion of their productive land, producers earn set-aside payments based on their farms' established yields for the program crops. Additionally, program crops on participating farms are eligible for support loans.

Producers were reminded by chairman Knutson that they may request set-aside inspection and measurement service at the same time they sign up for the farm programs. This service, which is provided at cost, offers a quality-and-quantity guarantee on set-aside acres.

Silver worth $2.2 million was reclaimed from x-ray film during the past three years, the Veterans administration announced recently.

Rural People Threatened By Mass Technology

Today's society thrives on TV sets, transistors and high-speed automobiles, but the effect of this new technology on rural people and their communities hasn't been all favorable.

Adverse effects include a greater push towards materialism, a loss of ability of the small community to compete with the city and a possible loss of personal freedom, according to University of Minnesota sociologist Gene Ramsey.

The new technologies have caused an out migration of money and people from rural communities and have put the rural community at a disadvantage with urban areas, Ramsey said.

"We buy material items made elsewhere, so that much of the money that could be invested in the community instead goes elsewhere."

There is also a migration of human talent from the rural community towards urbanism as a way of life and the accompanying greater material comforts, he said.

Due to fewer material comforts and lower wages in rural communities "there is a discrepancy in what people in rural areas can possibly get and what they expect to get by national standards."

As an example, Ramsey cited the much reduced buying power of people in the rural community who work in dime stores and other places at half or less of the minimum wage.

Speaking of the current push towards materialism, Ramsey noted that former luxury items such as television sets and appliances are now commonplace.

"Most of the reason for work today is to buy, repair, sell or use pieces of material comfort," he explained.

Such activity has affected family relations. Back in the thirities, there used to be family games in the evening, but now families are organized around automobiles and television, Ramsey said.

Referring to the new technology of computers, Ramsey said their use "threatens the invasion of privacy, and control of freedom by spying and surviellance more than at any time in recent history.

"Computers make it easy for private companies to build up a dossier on any person so that any company or salesman can get a vast amount of information about you for $1.40.

"In the government, the effect of computers may not be any less villainous. One of the protections of freedom has always been mass evasion. We didn't let the left hand know what the right hand was doing. But now with the ability of computers to store and retrieve knowledge, any one agency in government knows how you respond, how you behave in areas other than that which directly concerns them."

FOLLOW THE LEADER is one way to learn a new dance step. Instructor is Mrs. Kay Novak, choreographer for the Lincoln high school production of "Hello Dolly". Following along is Shelley Worner who has the title role in the musical to be staged April 7-8-9-10.

Lady Instructs LHS Students In Choreography

She moved to Minneapolis in the fall of 1966 where her husband is a programmer for Minnesota Farmers Mutual insurance company. The couple has three sons, the youngest just six weeks old and the other two ages 7½ and 6 years. Kay's mother, Mrs. Frances Vasicek, lives in Grand Forks and served as baby-sitter for the children while she was in Thief River Falls Friday and Saturday for rehearsals.

In Minneapolis she workes with public schools and also a small dance group which entertains and gives education in dance in the Minneapolis area. She hopes the group can come to Thief River Falls to dance in May. And for variety—and physical conditioning—she is an instructor in yoga for adult education classes sponsored by the Minneapolis public schools. These eight-week night classes are held each fall, winter and spring.

"Yoga is merely physical conditioning and can readily be adapted to the Western culture," she explained. "We're Americans, why should we have to adopt another country's entire ideas? But it is true that yoga improves your physical condition, and makes you feel better, and that improves your mind and you sometimes get a different outlook on things."

This year when Mrs. Novak came to Thief River Falls she brought with her Miss Brenda Dickson of Grand Forks, a student at the University of North Dakota. Miss Dickson had danced with Mrs. Novak's group in Grand Forks several years ago. She will probably return to Thief River Falls to "tie up the loose ends" in choreography for the musical.

"In other years I have never been able to make it back to see the actual production," she explained. "Either the kids got sick or I didn't have time or didn't happen to have the money," she said. "This year I'm gonna be here come hell or high water. And I'll probably suffer right along with every mother and father in the audience, hoping that the kids do a good job."

Dates for the production are April 7 - 8 - 9 - 10 in the Lincoln auditorium, and the kids always do a good job.

U of M Offers Package Course On Environment

by Gloria Anthony
University News Service

Although interdisciplinary studies have become common, the general college at the University of Minnesota has offered winter-quarter students a genuinely innovative 16-credit "environmental package".

In this package, the strictly academic (lectures, reading assignments and papers) is integrated with an independent study (or "do your own thing") kind of learning experience.

A number of disciplines are taught during the three-hour-per-day, three-day-a-week class sessions: Natural science, social science, communications, humanities, and a bit of law and political science as they apply to environmental issues. Students are involved in no other classwork. The package is their full credit load for the quarter.

They are among the majority of today's students whose cry for relevancy and the integration of theory with practical experince in the field is being heeded by imaginative and progressive college faculty.

Experiential learning actually dominates the package, somewhat shadowing the more formal study of basic, underlying ecological concepts. Two-thirds of each student's grade will be based on his field work, the other one-third on his classroom performance.

During the first two weeks of the quarter, the 41 students in the program defined the problem areas they would be working on and outlined to their instructors how they planned to go about gathering data, obtaining interviews, and generally proceeding with their research.

They will be off on tangents as diverse as: airport sites, their location within the Twin Cities area; mass transit, with particular emphasis on personal rapid transit; metropolitan planning; solid waste management, including recycling; and a host of other environmental problems found in the communities where they live.

Those communities will become their "part-time classrooms" every bit as much as 102 Folwell hall for a portion of each week.

If, thus far, a vision has been conjured up of "Nader's Raiders" plunging into the community bent on healing its environmental ills within a 12-week quarter, forget it. These students are primarily freshmen and sophomores who know it is going to take a lot of digging before answers to nagging environmental questions are unearthed.

"We're not going to make environmental researchers out of the whole group," explained Allen Johnson, instructor of natural science, "but just the fact that they will become aware of things they didn't know before, things going on all around them which affect them, is accomplishment enough." Johnson and Robert Williamson, instructor of social science, are coorinators of the package.

"The students have begun asking already what happens after this quarter—about a follow-up package," said Johnson, "but we don't plan to offer one. This quarter should serve as a launching base for further study."

"No student's project is terminal," Williamson added. "it is open-ended, and he has the option of pursuing it further in general college's extended programs."

Williamson referred to GC's comparatively new program which allows a student to go right on through to a bachelor's degree in either applied or general studies. Prior to fall quarter 1970, the general college served as a two-year college within the framework of the university, granting only the associate in arts degree.

Hamerlinck Title Now Is Director Of Instruction

Frank Hamerlinck, who has been with Thief River Falls School District 564 as a teacher, principal and a district school administrator, received approval at the last board of education meeting for tenure and the title of director of instruction.

The philosophy of the new position Hamerlinck holds states that the goal of the office is for improvement to try to develop and use communication skills and coordination techniques for this purpose, and involve others in the decision-making process. It also means defining goals to make them relevent to the times and legitimate to the school community and use whatever influence the office may have in an integrative way in the decision-making process.

The office views people in the school district as creative, strong and capable of being motivated to make a difference, if given a genuine opportunity. There is a great deal of evidence to indicate that, when members of an organization participate in goal setting, commitment and performance are improved, the philosophy states.

The students are the core of the school district and it is the desire of the school to weigh the facts and how they relate to the student. Education today and the curriculum and instructional activities offered, should be the "means" rather than the "end" to attempt to help the individual blend into relationships needed for society.

This position has the responsibility of meeting with teachers to study common problems, learn about current developments in content and teaching techniques, interpret the program to the community and attend seminars for ideas from other professional people.

Teachers may expect information regarding aids and sources of information to benefit their teaching. The teacher may be asked by the director to help in curriculum revision and study groups. The teacher also may be asked to serve on committees in an all-out effort to improve the educational system.

St. Hilaire And Brooks Citizens Get Tax Help

Help is now available for Brooks and St. Hilaire area senior citizens who need assistance in filling out the senior citizen tax benefit forms to claim a refund on their 1971 homestead real estate taxes or rent.

Persons who think they may be eligible and want help in preparing the refund forms are asked to stop in at the St. Hilaire council room between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon on March 10 or at the village hall in Brooks on March 16 during the same hours.

Help will be provided in St. Hilaire by Lowell Enerson and Mary Lou Rindahl and in Brooks by Enerson and Anne Jaeger. These persons recently attended special meetings conducted by the state department of taxation and the governor's citizens council on aging to provide them with the necessary training.

Upward Bound At Bemidji Seeks Summer Students

Upward Bound personnel at Bemidji state college are currently seeking school-aged students in area schools who qualify for the summer intensive training session in either high school level, or the pre-college level.

Barry Yocum, director of Upward Bound at BSC, indicates that students should be low income, high ability high school students who show a potential for college level education.

"An excitement about learning, a good foundation in basic academic skills, self-confidence, and an awareness of educational opportunities are traits lacking in a vast number of students of our area," Yocum says. "These are the students we hope to attract to the BSC Upward Bound project."

The program aims at capable, rural youths from poverty level families. Students must have completed tenth grade and the project is meant to give equal consideration to high school drop-outs of approximately the same ages as school students in the program.

Public schools in the BSC service region are encouraged to contact either Yocum, or Jon Blessing at the BSC Upward Bound office for further information.

Schools involved already in the project include: Bagley, Bigfork, Cass Lake, Coleraine-Greenway, Crookston Central, Deer River, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks, Fosston, Goodridge, Mahnomen, Motley, Nevis, Park Rapids, Redlake, Remer, Roseau, Thief River Falls, Walker, Warren, Warroad and Waubun.

Students have come from 13 counties for the summer classes in the past. Generally, schools in the system include an area bordered by Coleraine on the east, Motley on the south, U.S.-Canada border and the Minnesota, North Dakota border.

Changes Made In Food Stamp Plan

Effective March 2, food stores must issue credit slips or tokens to food stamp customers when the amount of change due to program participants does not exceed 49 cents, the U. S. department of agriculture's food and nutrition service announced.

The stores will continue using unendorsed 50 cent coupons when the amount to be returned is 50 cents or more.

Previous food stamp regulations allowed authorized food stores to return up to 49 cents in cash change to recipents. This practice is no longer permitted because the agricultural appropriation committee felt that giving change in cash threatened the success of the food aid program.

The credit slips will be good only in the stores which issue them and may be used to purchase eligible food items only.

Another immediate procedure change deals with payment by food stamp customers for deposits on re-usable bottle. Previously the payment could be made in food coupons. Now stores are no longer allowed to accept food coupons for the bottles.

Ralph Hanson, instructor, arranged and conducted the tour.

Navy Offers Two New Enlistment Program Options

New three-year enlistment programs have been announced by Navy recruiter Bill Bashaw. They are two enlistment options, titled the "Seafarer" and "Airman" programs.

Designed specifically for the young man who desires to serve in the challenging environment of the sea, the plans guarantee duty with one of the Navy's seagoing units.

"On-the-job training will be available in general shipboard and engineering duties, as well as construction trades," Navy Recrutier Bashaw explained. "The young man interested in the aviation field may well be guaranteed assignment to an aviation unit on the coast of his choice or an aircraft squadron embarked in an aircraft carrier," Bashaw continued.

All enlistments will be to paygrade E-1, with a beginning salary of $288 per month, plus housing, meals, medical care, uniform allowances and other military benefits.

Additional information on the Seafarer and Airman programs is available from Bashaw at 209 East 3rd Street, Thief River Falls.

Congratulations. You just saved $5 by doing your own income tax. And all it cost you was three long, sleepless nights.
And a slight case of heartburn.
If you had gone to H & R Block, on the other hand, you could have relaxed while someone else figured out your return. Quickly and confidentially. Probably unlike any way you've ever done it before.
And, when you figure your own, you may be entitled to deductions you're not taking and taking deductions you're not entitled to. For instance, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? Or, that if your income increased over the last few years, you may save tax dollars by "income averaging?" And even if you did, would you know how to go about "income averaging" to begin with? Probably not. And there's no reason why you should. After all, you're an amateur when it comes to doing income tax.
You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H & R Block. We have over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel. They're warm and friendly people who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed.
Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.
This means that H&R Block is ready to offer you year 'round tax service for just one low fee a year, with no extra charge for audits and estimates.
H & R Block's charges start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for the 7 million families we served last year.
Which is somewhat less than what you paid.
Not to mention the fact that aggravation isn't tax deductible.
And we are.
DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

Hardware Store Uses Computer Ordering System

Ace hardware, Thief River Falls, has been using an electronic ordering system to speed up the process of writing and filling orders, according to Vic Kalinoski, owner. The new computerized ordering system has helped him insure that his levels of stock are high enough so that his stock-outs are minimized.

The system uses an electronically controlled adding machine keyboard, a magnetic recording device and a special sending unit. He records his orders by punching his order numbers and quantities into the computerized machine.

When his order is completed he dials the number of the main warehouse computer center in Chicago, and "transmits" his order over the phone lines into the computer system in Chicago. The whole transmission process takes about one minute. In a matter of a few hours the truck is on its way to Thief River Falls with the merchandise.

Under the conventional system, local store personnel would have to write the order in longhand, put it into the mail and about three or four days later the truck would leave the warehouse.

A popular Norwegian Lenten dish is this inspired version of the usual macaroni and cheese casserole. "Straw and Grass" is nutritious peasant economy that's uncommonly delicious!

Hot steaming noodles — green and white — are slathered with a tart lemon butter sauce and topped with savory Norwegian sardines and Parmesan cheese. The unique smoky flavor of the sardines from Norway adds a mellow rich accent to the piquantly sauced pasta.

Here's one "noodle dish" that's bound to become a year round favorite!

"STRAW AND GRASS" WITH NORWEGIAN SARDINES

- 1 medium lemon
- ¼ pound butter
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- ½ teaspoon dill weed
- Dash cayenne
- ½ pound green noodles
- ½ pound spaghetti
- 1 can (3 ¾ oz.) Norwegian sardines, drained
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Boil lemon in very salty water 10 to 15 minutes until tender. Cool. Cut in half and pull out membrane. Slice peel into thin slivers. Melt butter in a small saucepan. Add lemon peel, parsley, dill and cayenne. Cook noodles and spaghetti until just tender. Drain well and toss with lemon butter in a large bowl. Top with drained sardines and sprinkle with cheese.

Police Reports Show Accidents And More Thefts

Police reports in Thief River Falls show 10 reportable accidents from February 20 to March 3, none resulting in personal injuries. The greatest damage in a single accident was about $400.

On February 20 Gerald Morkrid, D & Q Cabins, reported that a toboggan had been taken from the area near his house. Value was about $15.

About 2 p.m. February 22, Melford Hegland, Oklee, reported that his 1966 Ford sedan had been stolen from East 4th street, Thief River Falls. The following day the vehicle was found abandoned at another location in this city.

Tools valued at $150 were stolen from a garage on February 23. They belonged to Jack Boyer.

On the morning of February 24, it was discovered that someone had taken the hood from Dick Stegman's snowmobile.

Another larceny of snowmobile parts were reported on the same date. According to Martin Rantanen, a cushion, back rest and rear bumper were taken from the Highway 59 Fixit shop.

A tape player and tapes were taken from a vehicle during the supper hour on February 25. Mrs. Terry Wells reported that the vehicle was parked in front of her house at the time.

The hasp was forced from a door at Long Engineering at 11th and Atlantic on February 28. No loss was immediately reported.

While Robert Wold of rural Thief River Falls was attending the hockey games on the 28th, someone took 11 tapes from Wold's vehicle. Value of the missing items was about $76.

Personnel at the Woolworth store apprehended a juvenile shoplifter on February 29. The individual was released after processing by the police. Total cost of merchandise in the suspect's possession was $1.03, including tax.

Thieves gained entry into Tim Molstad's vehicle by breaking a vent window and stole two speakers costing $20.

Readers may have been wondering why the Thief River Falls police department did not start writing tickets for the vehicles which did not display 1972 registration tags when they were first required. The patrolmen were instructed not to write registration citations until 1972 plates were on the police patrol vehicles.

RIDING THE BUS is not a new experience for Cathy Limeberry, ninth grade student at Plummer high school. She also rode a bus to school when she lived in the Richmond, Va., area. Now buses in the Richmond area travel all over the city to bring students to different schools in an attempt to balance the school populations racially, and Cathy's parents are among many who don't think it makes good sense.

St. Cloud Gives Aid To Junior College Students

Junior college students transferring to St. Cloud state college this year may be aided both financially and academically following the recent adoption of two new procedures.

Beginning next fall, any transfer student who has earned an associate in arts (A.A.) degree at an accredited junior college will have met the general education requirements at St. Cloud.

The only stipulation is that the A.A. degree program must include at least 60 credits of transferable general education courses.

In addition, the college has established 48 new scholarships exclusively for junior college transfer students. There are 24 scholarships of $300 each and 24 of $150 each available.

Any junior college student with a grade point average of 3.00 or above may apply for the scholarships. Preference will be given to those with an A.A. degree at the time of their transfer.

Application blanks will be sent to all junior colleges by April 1 and also will be available from St. Cloud's field services office. No statement of financial need is required for application.

May 1 is the deadline for applying for the junior college scholarships. Recipients will be notified by May 15.

Former Virginia Residents Talk About Busing

school. This consolidation and busing thing takes away all incentive to get a better place to live."

While in Richmond Cathy attended high school in the Henrico county district. There were about 2,300 students in the junior and senior high school, and although the school was integrated there were only about 75 black students. Other minority groups, including Jewish youngsters, Spanish and Italian students, made up a fair amount of the school population. And there were never-any-real problems within the school.

"Most students tend to respect their own schools in their own districts," Buford said. "Some of the ghetto area schools were kept in the finest condition of any in the three districts. But when children are taken from their own area schools to other schools, they seem to lose any respect for the property."

Another concern about the judge's ruling was voiced by Mrs. Lawson. "If there are five youngsters in a family, they could go to what schools seems to be done on a sort of drawing to reach a 60-40 racial balance without any consideration of what it does to families and the students' participation in school activities."

"Maybe busing would be all right if it was limited to the existing districts and the ruling was made that no student could be transported to schools which were of lower quality than the schools in their own neighborhood," Buford said. "All the kids are entitled to the best education they can get, but busing will only equalize education on a lower level. We don't think that's fair, either. Use the money for improving the poorer schools rather than hauling kids to them."

"We want to encourage people to write to their senators and congressmen and ask them to support the anti-busing amendment," Mrs. Lawson said. "If the judge's ruling in Richmond is allowed to stand, it can spread all over the nation in no time. We don't think that the federal government should take over the schools."

"It's not that we're bitter or anything," Buford added. "We don't live there now and really shouldn't be too concerned. But we're citizens of the United States and this bothers us. We think it should concern others too."

Tire inflation should be checked "cold," in the driving environment before starting out, since pressure can increase up to six pounds or more when tires are hot from driving.

Legal Affairs Seminar Will Start In Warren

"Contracts You Make", a legal affairs program, will be presented on March 13 and 14 at Warren. Both "contract law" seminars are open to all interested persons.

First legal affairs seminar will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday evening with a short introduction by Ray Thompson, association extension agent, followed by the topics: "Contract Analysis", by William Penning, area extension agent farm management, "Fundamentals of Contract Law," by Jaroslav Kruta, attorney 14th District; "Banking Contracts, Services and Procedures", Dennis Evavold, State Bank of Warren; and "Banking Law and You" by Art Drenckhahn, attorney 14th District.

Tuesday evening's program also beginning at 7:30 p.m. will include discussions by four attorneys from the 14th District Bar association. These include: "Warranties of Title and Quality", Larry Jorgenson; "Contract Liabilities and Remedies", Bill Muldoon; "Property Contracts for Sale" Harold Myhre; and "Leases and Bailments", by Larry McDowell.

These programs are sponsored by the University of Minnesota cooperative extension service in cooperation with the Minnesota State Bar association in its "Law for Laymen" educational programs.

For more information contact the Marshall county extension office located in the courthouse at Warren.

For the fourth quarter of 1971, J. C. Penney had net income of $57.0 million, or $1.01 per share. This was a gain of 17.5 per cent over net earnings at $48.5 million, or 91 cents per share, recorded during the final quarter of 1970. On a fully diluted basis, earnings per share for the 1971 period were $1.00, up from 87 cents in 1970.

Midwest Forests Filled By Wildlife

Commercial forests of the Midwest are an important source of wood for building material and fiber for paper and paperboard. They also provide habitat for a wide variety of wildlife.

American Forest Institute, a nonprofit forestry education and public information organization, says some of the most productive land for game food and cover in the Midwest is the 4.8 million acres of managed forests owned by wood products companies.

Historically, wildlife has benefited from such forestry practices as thinning, harvesting and planting of trees. Planned timber operations on both public and private forest land produce compatible twin crops—trees and game.

Companies owning large tracts of forest land are going out of their way to create game habitat by planting oats, clover and other legumes on access and logging roads, and on the forest edge.

During winter and spring months, deer are attracted to logging sites by the sound of power chain saws. This is especially true in those areas where the lower branches of succulent twigs and sprouts have grown out of reach of hungry deer.

In the northern forest region, which includes Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, studies show that over 100 species of trees and shrubs are eaten by game animals.

"The logger is a welcome visitor," says Art Ennis, Boise Cascade forester at International Falls. "I've seen deer standing patiently watching loggers harvesting trees. Often they've even walked right into the midst of a logging operation to make a meal of the tender twigs of felled trees before the loggers leave the site."

In the central forest region, consisting of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, deer delicacies include acorns, wild fruits and woody and non-woody plants. Strange as it may seem, Indiana deer eat poison ivy, as well as sassafras, mints, plantain, honeysuckle, greenbrier, sumac and wild grapes.

Bob Burke, an industrial forester for the Pierson-Hollowell Co. of Indianapolis, says: "In order to keep a healthy deer herd, its numbers must be kept in balance with its food supply through controlled annual harvests. The same kind of controlled annual timber harvests are necessary to maintain a healthy productive forest."

In the Great Plains states of North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and parts of Iowa, deer favor agricultural crops, especially corn and soybeans, but also include wild fruits, seeds, oak leaves, acorns and non-woody plants as part of their diet.

Clearcutting, or cutting all the trees in a stand, opens the forest floor to sunlight and encourages natural regeneration. Low growing sprouts from the root system soon attract rabbits, pheasants, turkey and grouse which in turn attract some predators—bear, wolves, bobcats, coyotes, fox, eagles and hawks.

According to the forest service, "more songbirds nest in young stands than in old, mature timber." But the forest service acknowledges, as do all foresters, there is a need to save older 'nest' trees for such birds as the woodpecker, bald eagle and osprey, and 'den' trees for squirrels, raccoon and opossum.

The large wildlife populations to which Americans are accustomed are the result of man's activities in the forest. Before man started cutting timber about 100 years ago, wildlife depended upon nature to provide by fire and wind which cleared and naturally reseeded the land.

From the western Appalachian foothills of Ohio to the Great Plains states, there are 85,276,600 acres of commercial forest land. Of this total 4,892,100 acres are owned or controlled by forest industries.

Managed under the "multiple use" concept, industry-owned forest land provides scenic beauty, watershed protection, soil conservation, outdoor recreation, water conservation—and wood products—as well as wildlife habitat.

UN Association Produces Film On Citizenship

United Nations association of Minnesota, in cooperation with the University of Minnesota and several statewide associations, has produced educational film on the subject of world citizenship.

This 16 mm color film features singer John Denver, Minnesota Governor Wendell Anderson, University of Minnesota president Malcolm Moose and Minneapolis school superintendent John Davis in additional to several other leaders in government and education.

The film is a half-hour production based on the Minnesota declaration of world citizenship and supports the role of the United Nations as the world's main hope for world peace.

World citizenship is cited by the film's main characters as the step that each individual can take to help toward peace and understanding throughout the world.

Minneapolis businessman Lynn Elling, originator of the world citizenship campaign in Minnesota, is aided by Twin City personalities Bill Carlson and Nancy Nelson in the film's narration.

Copies of the film are being distributed to schools and social organizations on a rental basis. Information may be obtained by writing the United Nations Association of Minnesota, 55 South Eighth Street, Room 200, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55402.

St. Cloud Hosts MEA Legislative Commission Meet

St. Cloud was the site of the February meeting of the legislative commission of the Minnesota Education association. MEA is continuing its policy of holding monthly meetings around the state in order to receive input from teachers on legislative matters concerning education.

The commission, made up of educator representatives from across the state, sets the legislative objectives for MEA. A. L. Gallop, executive secretary and chief lobbyist fro MEA, points to the importance of hearing the teachers' voice on issues that effect the welfare of education and the children in Minnesota.

"The classroom," he says, "is where the action is. It is the teacher in that classroom that knows what the problems in education are.

"We must listen to what they are saying in order to continue to provide the students of this state the kind of education they must have in these times."

Past meetings of the commission have been held in Rochester, Duluth, and Alexandria.

Melvin C. Wang of Greenbush is the commission member who reprents the northern division of the MEA.

Builders And Home Show Set In Minneapolis

Four environmental and 14 cooking school demonstrations and some unusual but practical door prizes will be added attractions at the 38th annual Northwest builders and home show, March 10-19, in the Minneapolis auditorium convention hall.

Minnesota department of agriculture and 10 cooperating food producer associations are co-sponsors of the special stage presentations scheduled at 2 and 8 p.m. daily—except for single performances the opening evening and closing afternoon—during the 10-day exposition.

Three noted home economists, two of them veterans of past builders and home show cooking schools, will demonstrate the artful preparation and serving of a wide variety of Minnesota food products.

They are Coni Braunschmidt, "Dairy Ann" of the American Dairy association of Minnesota; Marilyn McAlphine, Stillwater, free-lance home economist; and the new addition, Ruth Thomas, home economist for Minnesota Turkey Growers with adult teaching experience in Osseo, Mankato, Minnesota Lake, Faribault and Roseville.

"Ecology Is Our Business" is the title of the environmental presentations at 2 and 8 p.m. on March 14 by Hugh Livingston of Minnesota Nurserymen's association. Dr. Leon Snyder of the University of Minnesota will present two programs on the Minnesota landscape arboretum on March 18.

Free recipes will be offered to cooking school visitors, also at the food industry booths ringing the cooking school amphitheater. This year's cooking school will utilize a complete new model kitchen installed on stage by Lyman Lumber company of Excelsior and Westinghouse corporation.

Other co-sponsors of the cooking and environmental presentations are Minnesota Pork producers, Minnesota Poultry-Butter-Egg association, Red River Valley Potato growers, Minnesota beekeepers, Minnesota Fruit growers, Minnesota Food retailers, Minnesota Maple Syrup producers and Minnesota Sunflower industry.

"Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable, is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Deserve No Amnesty

"A man old enough to vote and bear arms who thinks so little of the United States that he flees abroad and then, consciously, intentionally and after due forethought and consular warning, foreswears his national allegiance, is no American to be welcomed home."

This is one statement in an article by Col. Robert D. Heinl which appeared in the Arizona Republic. Col. Heinl pulls no punches in giving his views on amnesty to those who have fled the United States rather than serve their country as others have done.

"Traitors, shirkers, cowards and opportunists are among the most contemptible beings there are," the colonel writes. "And those who in time of grievous war have renounced their country, deserted its colors or evaded its obligations are philosophically more detestable than rapists and common embezzlers.

"A perversity of these distracted times is that young men—over 18 and therefore qualified to vote—who have fled the country or the service are held to be courageous nonconformists whose fouting of law and a citizen's sternest obligation is an act of idealism or, at most, a youthful indiscretion no worse than a bad cold," he said.

"Just this, however, seems to be the underlying premise of Sen. Robert Taft and his uneasy Democratic bedfellow, Sen. George McGovern, both of whom in this election year are crying out to open the jails, as well as let 70,000 self-exiled Vietnam draft-evaders home free without the brand of shame and disaffection they have earned."

Col. Heinl is critical of Sen. Taft for his statement that many draft resisters are victims of bad judgment or poor advice. He calls Sen. Taft ". . .a Republican who appears to be fishing for young, radical votes among those who ordinarily disdain the staid and honored name of Taft. . ."

"It is also noteworthy that the loudest voices in favor of amnesty come from the upper middle classes (those same classes whose tribunes are John Lindsay and Robert Taft), who so conspicuously have turned their backs on the common defense, cheered Yale and Harvard and Dartmouth for smashing ROTC, and sent their sons to graduate school to beat the draft," the colonel adds.

"The middle and lower-middle classes, whose sons neither had nor mostly sought the draft-shelters of the privileged, who went to war because they are old-fashioned enough to believe in their country, right or wrong, and who have stoically taken the unapplauded 200,060 killed, wounded and missing to date in this awful war, will hardly turn out to throw garlands over returning dodgers from Sweden or Canada."

Col. Heinl is undoubtedly right. The persons who deserted the nation or the military did so as their own decision. They made their choice and must abide by it; that is one of the rules of the game. A batter who has just struck out swinging can't expect to get another chance to bat just because he didn't like the pitch.

Campaigns Waste Time

Following editorial is by Richard G. LeMasurier and appeared in the Paynesville Press:

After the last presidential election there was alot of talk about reforming the electoral process; some suggested direct popular vote, some suggested reforming the electoral college, but nothing was ever done. Probably, a more important improvement for the country as a whole would be to reform the campaign process.

The current election has been going on for a year already, in most subtle forms, and will take up a majority of this year too. What a waste of time! Canada has an election in six weeks.

Besides the tremendous drain on money, time and effort of everyone involved in Presidential campaigning, our politicians seem to feel they don't have to tend their important duties at the capital during an election year. Hubert Humphrey who made a loud scream about Eugene McCarthy's voting record, has himself forgotten to show up at the capital to vote in nearly a month. The last record of voting from Jan. 28, 1972 to Feb. 4, 1972 shows Humphrey voted only five times when there were 20 issues before the senate.

All the rest of presidential hopefuls on the DFL and Republican sides are equally as guilty.

These records are compared to Minnesota's Senior Senator, Walter F. Mondale, who for the same period, voted 18 times out of the 20 possible votes he could have cast.

We don't mean to put all the blame for such poor voting records on the individual Senators, partial fault lies with such a poor campaign process. To win a Presidential election demands a candidate campaign for nearly two years, and spend tremendous amounts of time coordinating the campaign and making speeches all over the countryside.

The American election process needs updating in many aspects, but a more concentrated, meaningful campaign could be conducted in considerably less time, and should be the first priority in reforming the system.

Wolf Was Wronged?

Somewhere we have run across the following story before in one of our exchange papers, but we can't recall whether or not we re-ran it in our own paper. If we didn't, we will re-run it now; if we did, we will re-re-run it again for those who missed it. The "Modern Version of Red Riding Hood" is attributed to the Christian Crusade Weekly:

Once upon a time, in a far-away country, there lived a little girl called Red Riding Hood. One day her mother asked her to take a basket of fruit to her grandmother who had been ill and lived alone in a cottage in the forest.

It happened that a wolf was lurking in the bushes and overheard the conversation. He decided to take a short-cut to the grandmother's house and get the goodies for himself. The wolf killed the grandmother, then dressed in her nightgown and jumped into bed to await the little girl.

When she arrived, he made several nasty suggestions and then tried to grab her. But by this time, the child was very frightened and ran screaming from the cottage.

A woodcutter, working nearby, heard her cries and rushed to the rescue. He killed the wolf with his ax, thereby saving Red Riding Hood's life. All the townspeople hurried to the scene and proclaimed the woodcutter a hero.

But at the inquest, several facts emerged:

(1) The wolf had never been advised of his rights.

(2) The woodcutter had made no warning swings before striking the fatal blow.

(3) The Civil Liberties Union stressed the point that although the act of eating Grandma may have been in bad taste, the wolf was only "doing his thing" and thus didn't deserve the death penalty.

(4) The SDS contended that the killing of the grandmother should be considered self-defense since she was over 30 and, therefore, couldn't be taken seriously because the wolf was trying to make love, not war.

On the basis of these considerations, it was decided there was no valid basis for charges against the wolf. Moreover, the woodcutter was indicted for unaggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Several nights later, the woodcutter's cottage was burned to the ground.

One year from the date of "The incident at Grandma's" her cottage was made a shrine for the wolf who had bled and died there. All the village officials spoke at the dedication, but it was Red Riding Hood who gave the most touching tribute.

She said that, while she had been selfishly grateful for the woodcutter's intervention, she realized in retrospect that he had overreacted. As she knelt and placed a wreath in honor of the brave wolf, there wasn't a dry eye in the whole forest.

No Improvement

George Orwell once rewrote a passage from the Bible to show how vigorous writing can be destroyed. The first paragraph below is a verse from Ecclesiastes, while the second is Orwell's translation. There is no improvement.

I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill, but time and chance happeneth to them all.

Objective consideration of contemporary phenomena compels the conclusion that success or failure in competitive activities exhibits no tendency to be commensurate with innate capacity, but that a considerable element of the unpredictable must inevitably be taken into account.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

This article was printed in the Editorial section of "The Report Card", the newsletter of the Thief River Falls Federation of Teachers. We would appreciate it if you would reprint it in the "Letters to the Editor" section of the "Times".

Several congressmen, with encouragement from the Nixon Administration, have seized on the racial fears of some Americans by proposing specific legislation or a constitutional amendment to outlaw the bussing of students to achieve racial balance in the public schools.

The history of our country's treatment of minority groups is one of gross mistreatment resulting in high unemployment, poor education, poverty and exploitation. School segregation was legal from the first days of our country until the Supreme Court ruling of 1954. School integration in the South has become effective only recently. The North now has the highest per cent of children attending segregated schools. Our situation is well summarized in the findings of the 1968 "Kerner Report" which states that our country is evolving into two separate societies—one white, one black.

One tool to help reverse this trend is bussing. Reports from Pontiac, Michigan are now showing that, as a result of bussing, relations between black and white students are improving, even through many parents are protesting the bussing program. Bussing can help reduce the prejudice and discrimination in our society. If we are to survive as one nation, we must bring our actions into line with our country's ideals of equality and fair treatment.

Sincerely,
Mark Schug, President
Thief River Falls Federation of Teachers

I'd like to thank all the teachers at Franklin jounior high in Thief River Falls who I had an opportunity to meet and talk with at the "Parent-Teacher conference", in January.

Sometimes we find it hard to get going to the conference's but it is a help to the teacher and the parent.

We can work together, if there are needs; we can help each other, by talking about them and then doing whatever we can to help our students in studies as well as behavior.

Let's help our teachers by going out and talking with them and working together to help our children to grow up to be good citizens.

We need to pray for our teachers that God will help them, and help us as parents, to do our very best in the jobs God has entrusted us to do. We have a great responsibility.

Have you ever thought about how much the quality of life in Minnesota depends upon its forests? In a recent message to schools, The American Forest Institute brought out some fascinating facts about trees—facts particularly important to Minnesota because we are blessed with so many forested areas.

Most of us are aware that trees help to purify air and water, but we perhaps underestimate the extent of that role. Trees exhale pure oxygen, and young trees give off more. In fact, a single growing, young stock can provide enough oxygen to maintain 18 human beings!

Trees also cool the air. On a hot summer day, a single large elm tree "perspires" about seven tons of water. According to the AFI, the resulting evaporation of that much moisture is equal to ten room air conditioners running for twenty hours. . .which explains why walks through a wooded area are always so pleasantly cool.

Trees are also an excellent sound barrier in cities and along freeways. And they are a crucial link in the earth's water system, fighting erosion and cushioning the impact of rainfall on forest floors.

Beyond that, trees provide Minnesotans with some of the nation's finest recreation opportunities, furnishing habitat for wildlife and harboring fishing, camping, hiking and riding areas.

But trees must be managed well if we are to keep them. Left to nature, a forest will purge itself now and then with disease or fire which eliminates old growth and stimulates new. But because man has guarded so well against natural fires and disease, he has had to assume the responsibility of maintaining the forest "artificially" (such as in the selected burning of forested areas).

In Minnesota, forest management on both the state and national levels has given us a wooded environment providing recreation and a good life which is the envy of the country. Two national forests—the Chippewa and Superior—and more than 50 state forests offer endless hours of exploration.

So on your next trip to the woods, take time out for a more appreciative look at the trees around you. You'll find they make pretty nice friends.

Itasca State Park is more than a place where you can watch the Mississippi river being born, although that alone is important enough to attract a million visitors each year.

A lot of Minnesota history is wrapped up in this area as a result of that long, frustrating search for the river's source which left us names like Schoolcraft, Pike, Cass, Beltrami and others.

But beyond that, this 50 square-mile tract is a repository of all the good things to be found in Minnesota.

Here is the only remaining stand of virgin Norway Pine, for example. These stately trees differ so much from the second-growth woodlands to the east that one can only marvel at what Minnesota's forestlands may have looked like a century and more ago.

Here, too, are white-tailed deer, grouse, porcupine and other animals which have become synonymous with Minnesota. Among these are the beavers. It is believed that most of them are the result of a gift from Ontario which, in 1901, presented the Governor with five of the industrious animals. Although only three lived, they were set free on Schoolcraft Island and immediately started to raise a family. Their descendents are most likely the ones you will encounter.

A walk down the myriad woodland paths in Itasca is like entering a time machine to an era seldom affected by Man. One of the trails, however, leads to the lost village of the Mound Builders, a Sioux Indian settlement which was a place of battle between the sioux and Chippewa in the seventeenth century.

Of course, every park visitor must go to the north end of the lake to where a small stream flows. It is difficult to imagine that here is the country's mightiest river being born, but a wooden monument reminds one that this is indeed the case.

These are but a few highlights of Itasca State Park, surely one of the most beautiful and educational of all the fine recreation areas in northwestern Minnesota. Be sure to see it.

notes from the governor

This past week I was pleased to distribute at the winter meeting of the Governor's conference in Washington, D.C., a report on an exciting new use for the computer that can have a most positive effect on the development of our state.

Through the joint efforts of the University of Minnesota, the state planning agency and the Minnesota resources commission, a comprehensive Minnesota land use map has been developed. It tells us in detail how every one of the 1,365,000 40-acre tracts of Minnesota land is being utilized. It is the first such map produced in the United States.

Imagine being able to know accurately how much of our good agricultural soil is being cultivated and where surplus, high-quality land can be found in Minnesota. Or how many Northern pike spawning areas there are and the effect of land development on these. Or who owns the surface land when the state owns only the mineral rights beneath.

Our basic Land Use Map was developed from high-altitude, aerial photographs taken in the spring of 1968 and 1969. In the course of this survey, we learned that 43.5 per cent of all Minnesota land is cultivated, 33.7 per cent is forested, 11 per cent is open pasture, 9.4 per cent is water or marsh, and only 1.2 per cent is rated urban-residential.

The map itself is considered an important first step in a larger effort, the development of the Minnesota Land Management Information System. The goal of this system is to pull together, through the use of computers, a vast amount of data that is now routinely collected and maintained by governmental agencies in the discharge of their regular licensing, regulatory and management functions.

This data, once available, will help public officials make sound policy decisions on such major questions as whether to develop additional port facilities on the North Shore; how to allocate lakeshore land for private and public use, and where the best sites for airports and recreational facilities are located. Those at the University of Minnesota and in state government who have participated in this worthwhile endeavor are to be commended for their excellent work.

Cheeseburgers Diners' Choice

Looking for a change-of-pace entree for tonight's dinner? Take a clue from the famed cheeseburger and treat with Fried Cheeseburgers Deluxe. They vary from the standard burger as the bun is replaced with a crisp bread crumb coating; the cheese is ladled atop in a creamy sauce.

A meatloaf-type mixture of seasoned ground beef is shaped into patties and coated first with eggs, then with bread crumbs. Instead of pan frying or broiling, these burgers are deep fat fried to a golden brown. Count on the burgers being extra flavorful as they're made with quick or old fashioned oats that lock in natural juices. Served with a generous topping of cheese sauce, these hearty burgers will deliciously revolutionize your family's whole concept of cheeseburgers.

FRIED CHEESEBURGERS DELUXE

Makes 4 servings

Cheese Sauce:
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons all-purpose flour
- ⅔ cup milk
- ½ cup shredded process American cheese

Burgers:
- 1 lb. ground beef
- ⅓ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ¼ cup tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Batter:
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs

For cheese sauce, melt butter in a small saucepan. Stir in flour until smooth. Gradually add milk. Bring to a boil and simmer 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in shredded cheese until melted. Keep warm until ready to serve.

For burgers, combine ground beef, oats, tomato sauce, minced onion, salt and pepper. Shape to form 4 patties. Dip patties in beaten eggs; then coat with dry bread crumbs. Dip in eggs and bread crumbs a second time. Fry in hot fat (375°F.) about 6 minutes for medium doneness. Drain on paper towels. Serve with warm cheese sauce.

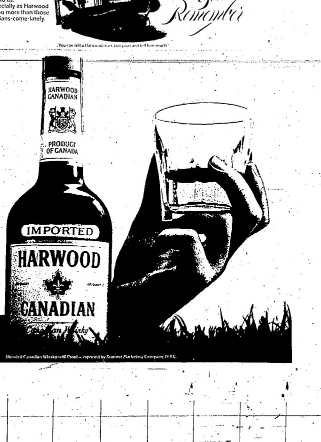
HARWOOD RETURNS!

If you were old enough to drink back in the late 40's, chances are you remember Harwood with respect, if not affection. A fine rich Canadian with its own ideas about quality. But just about the time you began to enjoy it, we disappeared. We apologize. You see, our production at that time was limited, so reluctantly we decided to keep most of it at home.

Since we went away, more Americans have developed a taste for Canadians, today's Canadians, the lighter ones. And we have developed a way to supply them with one we can truly call Harwood. Lighter, yes. Lesser, no.

Now that we are returning to America, with all due modesty, we trust America will return to us.

Especially as Harwood costs no more than those Canadians-come-lately.



"You can tell a Harwood man, but you can't tell him much."

East Side Tabbed Favorite In District

East Grand Forks rates as the slight favorite, but the defending champion Green Wave is expected to have its hands full, when the 59th annual district 31 basketball tournament starts this afternoon (Monday) at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

Crookston and Thief River Falls, along with sub district teams Fisher and Alvarado, are expected to seriously challenge the Green Wave's one-year championship reign. "East Side" earned the slight favorite role based on its first place finish in the Big Five Conference, which includes five of the eight district squads. The other three teams competed in the Polar Conference.

All five contenders posted impressive records during the 1971-72 campaign with the Wave finishing 14-4, Thief River Falls 15-5, Fisher 15-4, Alvarado 15-4 and Crookston 12-6. With two wins posted in sub district play Fisher has increased its record to an eye-catching 17-4 while Alvarado currently stands 16-5. Goodridge, Warren and Climax round out the district field.

The tournament is scheduled for a 2 o'clock start this afternoon with Thief River Falls taking on Alvarado in the first game. Crookston and Fisher will collide at 3:30 to round out the afternoon's activities. In tonight's games, East Grand Forks will play Goodridge at 7 o'clock and Climax will oppose Warren at 8:30. Semi-final action is scheduled for Tuesday at 7 and 8:30, with the championship and consolation games scheduled Wednesday night.

Alvarado, coming into the tournament as the runner-up squad from the sub district competition, will employ a high scoring club with accurate outside shooting against the taller Thief River Falls squad in the tournament's opening game.

The Indians will be out of regain their 1970 form when they captured their first district 31 title. Alvarado packs plenty of scoring punch with three players ranking among the top ten scorers in Polar Conference Play this season. The three-pronged attack is led by Randy Boman's league-leading 19.7 average. The 6-1 forward was an all-conference selection this season. Also supplying scoring punch for the Indians will be two-time all-conference pick Rahn Farder, a 5-11 forward with a 14.0 average, and senior guard Lannie Hallin, a 6-0 sharpshooter with an 11.7 average. Rounding out the Alvarado starting line-up will be senior Carl Svard (5-11) and junior Maurice Lind (5-10).

The Prowler line-up will feature a season-long trademark of balance with all five starters averaging in double figures, led by senior center Rande Smith's 17.8 figure. Junior forward Jeff Rhoden carries a healthy 13.5 mark with junior guard Ordean Peterson scoring at a 13.3 clip. Senior forward Tom Kays finished the regular season with a 13.2 average and junior guard Kent Smith supplied an 11.7 mark.

Crookston and Fisher will collide in today's second game with both teams expecting to advance into Tuesday's night's semi-finals. The Flyers enter the tournament with a sub district title under their belt, as well as the Polar Conference crown. The Fisher line-up will find an all senior cast of Randy Anderson (6-3) at center, Pete Anderson (6-3) and Kent Gunderson (6-1) at forwards and Mark Kummer (6-1), along with Wayne Gulsvig (5-9) at guards.

The Flyers also had three of its starting five among the top ten league scorers this season with Pete Anderson's 17.1 average ranking second only to Boman. Kummer finshed third in the scoring parade with a 17.0 mark and Gunderson with fifth with a 13.7 average.

Crookston's deliberate offense will feature junior Dave Dahlberg (6-5) at center, senior Scott Youngquist (6-2) and junior Dave Brockemeier (6-2) at forwards and senior Doug LaFriniere (5-11), along with junior Chuck Potter (5-9) at the guards.

Broekemeier turned in the best Big Five scoring average among the starting five with a 14.3 average to rank sixth in the scoring parade. Youngquist and Gary Wagner finished tied for ninth and tenth on the scoring list with 11.8 averages.

East Grand Forks fans figure to have an easy time reaching the finals after drawing the first seed and the easier upper bracket. The potent Wave offense is led by All-Stater Kurt Knoff. The slender 6-3 Wave forward topped the conference scorers with a 31.3 average in seven Big Five games. Knoff is a two-time all-conference selection.

Also expected to be in the Green Wave starting line-up will be junior Rip Thompson (5-9) and senior Dean Avery (6-10) at the guards, senior Bryan Johnson (6-1) at forward and senior Roger Hagen (6-3) at center.

Knoff was the only "East Sider" to rank among the top Big Five scorers, but the Wave topped the league in team offensive average with a 82.1 scoring clip.

Goodridge finished the regular season tied with Alvarado for second place in the Polar Conference standings, and beat Oslo 52-50 for third place in the sub district tournament last week. The Huskies starting line-up will find senior Aldon Hyland (5-7) and junior Bruce Kriel (5-8) at the guards, seniors Fred Parnow (6-2) and Vance Wiseth (5-11) at forwards and junior Harlen Iverson (6-2) at center. Hyland, Parnow and Iverson were chosen as all-conference this season. Hyland finished seventh in the Polar loop scoring statistics with a 12.0 average while Iverson and Parnow both finished with 11.7 averages.

The first round activity will conclude tonight at 8:30 with the Climax-Warren contest. Although neigher team is expected to challenge for the district crown, the game should be an evenly played contest with the Ponies finishing the season with a 4-16 mark and the Vikings 4-15. The two teams split during the regular season.

Warren's starting line-up will probably find four seniors and a sophomore, with 5-10 guard Bob Nelson being the only underclassman. Jeff Norman (5-9) will be Nelson's backcourt partner while Bruce Schantzen (6-0) and Tim Howard (6-0) man the forwards and John Rogalla (6-1) plays center. Norman finished the regular campaign as the fourth best scorer in the Big Five with a 15.3 average.

The Vikings' line-up will find junior Kevin Evenson (6-2) at center, flanked by senior Wayne Kobbervig (6-1) and junior Mark Muhonen (6-0) at forwards and juniors Randy Stortroen (5-7) and Les Palm (6-9) at guards.

Winners from districts 29, 30, 31 and 32 will advance to the region eight tournament at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse March 17 and 18.

Fisher Captures Sub District 31 Crown

Fisher's smooth working offensive machine broke free from a 21-21 first quarter deadlock to rout Alvarado 92-76 in the sub district 31 championship game at Crookston Thursday night.

The Balanced Flyer attack was paced by Polar all-conference selections Pete Anderson with 23, Kent Gunderson 21 and Mark Kummer with 20 points. Randy Anderson and Tom Christianson added 12 points a-piece as all five Flyer starters scored in double figures.

Fisher broke the 21-all first quarter with a 48-42 halftime lead before stretching the margin to 71-56 going into the final stanza.

The top scoring effort for the Indians was Randy Boman's 23 points, while Lannie Hallin added 21 and Rahn Farder 13 in the high scoring affair played before a full house.

Aldon Hyland's 15-foot jump shot with five seconds remaining in the game gave Goodridge a 52-50 win over Oslo in the consolation game, earning the Huskies a berth in the district tournament.

Goodridge led 15-13 at the first stop and held a narrow 28-27 advantage at the half before increasing their lead to 44-39 going into the fourth quarter. But the Bobcats stormed back to tie the game 50-all before Hyland's winning shot.

Hyland led the winners with 17 points while Harlen Iverson chipped in 10. Mark Mondry led Oslo with 14 points while Pat Callahan scored 12 and Leon Bayne added 10.

Snowcat Arrests Show Increase

The number of Minnesota snowmobilers arrested by state conservation officers and other law enforcement officals has climbed sharply during the past three years, the Department of Natural Resources reported today.

In 1969, a total of 169 arrests were recorded. In 1970, this figure rose to 757, and last year 1,128 arrests were made for violations of snowmobile regulations.

No figures are available for arrests made so far this winter.

Most common violations noted during the past three years have been operation of unregistered machines, failure to have the registration numbers affixed to the snowmobile, and operating the machine on the inside bank of the highway right of way.

Several arrests were made in 1971 for operating a snowmobile at night against the traffic flow on the adjacent highway lane.

$500 Bounty Paid For Information On Eagle Killer

A $500 bounty for information leading to the conviction of a person for shooting a bald eagle has been awarded by the National Wildlife federation. The reward is the first to be given under a nationwide bounty program started by the NWF in 1971.

The money was awarded for information given to law enforcement officers which eventually led to a conviction and fine for an eagle-killed. Authorities have asked that the details of the case, including names of those involved, be withheld as "it could possibly endanger the safety" of the informant.

NWF executive director Thomas Kimball said that "We abhor the atmosphere in which this type of informant cannot be given public credit. Both the man who exposed the shooting of this magnificent bird and the shooter should be clearly recognized," he added.

Although it has been against federal law to shoot bald eagles since 1940, the National Wildlife federation reward program was started in 1971 as a result of the revealed mass slaughter of eagles in Wyoming.

The national outlook for the bald eagle population is considered bleak. The total in the lower 48 states is estimated to be as few as three to four thousand birds and the use of hard pesticides and diminishing habitat continue to take their toll. The southern species of bald eagle found in the eastern half of the U.S. is already classified as an endangered species by the U.S. Interior department.

The National Wildlife federation continues to offer a $500 reward upon verification that the claimant's information was substantial assistance in obtaining a conviction for shooting a bald eagle. The claimant must request the reward in writing to the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N. W., Washington, D.C., 20036, within six months after conviction. If more than one bald eagle was shot by the convicted person, $500 will be awarded for one bird representing the total number shot.

Bemidji Stops Wave 6-1 For Region 8 Title

Bemidji will open the 1972 Minnesota state hockey tournament Thursday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clcok, when the Lumberjacks take on International Falls in the Metropolitan Sports center in Bloomington.

The Lumberjacks earned the right to appear in the state classic with a convincing 6-1 triumph over East Grand Forks in the region eight championship game Wednesday night in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Bemidji breezed through the regular season with a 15-4-1 record and waltzed through the region eight meet with wins over Roseau (2-0), Warroad (6-1) and East Grand Forks. The Lumberjacks will have their hands full Thursday though, when they tackle the state's number two team. International Falls finished the regular season second only to Edina in the state polls while winning the tough region seven tournament by beating Grand Rapids in the title game. The Broncos spoiled Edina's perfect regular season record with a 3-3 tie midway through the year.

As was the case in their first two region bouts, the Lumberjacks paved the way for their first region eight ice crown with a smothering defense that limited the entire Green Wave squad to just 10 shots on goal in the championship game.

The backbone of the Lumberjack defense, senior All-Stater Gary Sargent, also provided the offensive punch for Bemidji as the strong skating defenseman collected four goals off All-Region goalie Gordy Hangsleben.

Sargent provided all the scoring the Lumberjacks needed in the first period as he scored the three-goal "hat trick" in the opening stanza. Sargent's first score came with 10:24 remaining on a solo performance as he dug the puck out of the corner and fired the disk under Hangsleben.

Bemidji went in front 2-0 when Sargent's 25-foot slap shot found its way through a maze of players and past the startled Hangsleben with 8:49 left. Defensive partner Chuck Prichard assisted on the goal.

Sargent rapped in a rebound, on assists from Lee Olson and younger brother Earl, with 3:13 remaining to put the Lumberjacks on top 3-0.

East Grand Forks still had offensive problems in the second period as the Wave rarely controlled the puck even though they more than tripled their shots on goal-output, from one to four, in the canto.

Bemidji stayed in a defensive shell for most of the second period, breaking out just long enough for Earl Sargent, a junior wing, to score the Lumberjacks' fourth goal with 13:25 remaining. Sophomore Randy Beck assisted on the goal.

Beck finally broke the Lumberjack brother combination in the third period when shoved in his own rebound with 10:22 remaining for a 5-0 lead.

Sargent—Gary this time—collected his fourth goal of the game when his sizzling slap shot from just inside the blueline slammed into the back of the Wave net with 8:31 left in the game.

East Grand Forks broke sophomore Jeff Wizner's shutout hopes with 8:12 remaining when junior center Jeff Smith managed to bounce the puck just over Wizner's stick with Ron Behl and Dave Hangsleben getting assists.

While Wizner was forced to make just 10 saves in the game, Hangsleben was busy stopping 34 Lumberjack shots on goal.

First Period

SCORING—Bemidji, Gary Sargent, unassisted, 10:24 remaining. Bemidji, Gary Sargent, assisted by Chuck Prichard, 8:49 remaining. Bemidji, Gary Sargent, assisted by Lee Olson and Earl Sargent, 3:13 remaining.

PENALTIES—None.

SAVES—Bemidji, Jeff Wizner 1. EGF, Gordy Hangsleben 14.

Second Period

SCORING—Bemidji, Earl Sargent, assisted by Randy Beck, 13:25 remaining.

PENALTIES—Bemidji, Dave Howe, elbowing, 10:48 remaining. EGF, Bill Mero, elbowing, 6:36 remaining.

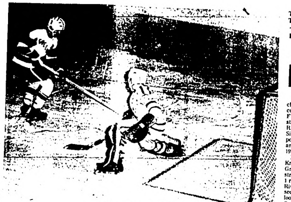
SAVES—Bemidji, Jeff Wizner 4. EGF, Gordy Hangsleben 12.

Third Period

SCORING—Bemidji, Randy Beck, assisted by Greg Hensrud, 10:22 remaining. Bemidji, Gary Sargent, unassisted, 8:31 remaining. EGF, Jeff Smith, assisted by Ron Behl and Dave Hangsleben, 8:12 remaining.

PENALTIES—Bemidji, Earl Sargent, holding, 12:02 remaining.

SAVES—BEemidji, Jeff Wizner 5, game total 10. EGF, Gordy Hangsleben 8, game total 34.



BEMIDJI GOALIE Jeff Wizner was beaten by East Grand Forks center Jeff Smith (top photo) in the third period of Wednesday's region eight championship game in the Thief River Falls sports arena, but the Lumberjack netminder received a pat of assurance from teammate Gary Sargent (right) following the Green Wave goal. Smith's goal was the only scoring for the Wave as the Lumberjacks outshot "East Side" 40-11 in the 6-1 Bemidji triumph. The Lumberjacks, led by the defensive play of Wizner and Sargent, held their opponents to a total of just two goals in three region starts as Bemidji beat Roseau 2-0, Warroad 6-1 and East Grand Forks 6-1. Bemidji captured its first ever region eight hockey title and will meet International Falls Thursday, beginning at 1 p.m., to kick off the 1972 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament at Metropolitan Sports Center in Bloomington.

BEMIDJI WING Randy Beck (2) raises his arms in victorious fashion after scoring against East Grand Forks in Wednesday's region eight championship game in the city arena. Green Wave goalie Gordy Hangsleben watches the puck settle in the "East Side" net as the Lumberjacks skated to an easy 6-1 triumph behind the four-goal performance of Gary Sargent and single markers of Earl Sargent and Beck.

Area Drivers Enter USSA World Series

Three Thief River Falls drivers will be competing in the United States snowmobile association world series at Ironwood, Michigan, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 10, 11 and 12.

Dave Thompson, Larry Coltom and Tom Porter, all of Thief River Falls, will compete in the official world championships on the Gogebic county fairgrounds race track.

An estimated 600 to 800 champion racers are expected to participate in the world famous event. The central division of the USSA announced the names of the racers who have qualified to compete in the world series event with each of the four divisions of the USSA sending their top 15 drivers from each competition class to the event. The drivers are selected on the basis of points accumulated at sanctioned races throughout the 1971-72 race season.

The driver earning the most points in over-all competition in the central division was Doug Hayes of Crandon, Wisconsin. Hayes, who drives a Polaris, picked up a total of 918½ points to easily take first place point standings in modified-one competition. The racer earning the most points in stock competition was Loyal Manteufel of Neenah, Wisconsin, who drove his Arctic Cat to first place in stock-D competition, with a total of 876 points.

The central division's top woman driver is Rosemary Moegenburg of Saukville, Wisconsin. Rosemary took first place in women's class three with 294 points, and first place in women's modified-one, with 159½ points.

The world series will feature outstanding cash and trophy awards. There will be $25,000 guaranteed cash prize monies and $12,000 contingency monies. 90 trophies will be awarded for the first five place winners in each class and category.

It will be strictly oval competition with all races being run on the Gogebic county fairground track. George J. Hollrith, national competition commissioner for the USSA will be the race coordinator. The oval track race director will be Curt Lundeen, Stephen, Minnesota, and the technical race director will be John Beevar of Wausau, Wisconsin.

The race schedule will begin Friday morning at 9:30 a.m. EST with men's stock, modified and open eliminations throughout the day. Tough Winter For Ruffed Grouse

Minnesota hunters have been told by a U of M wildlife biologist that ruffed grouse may have taken a beating this winter in most of northern Minnesota.

Gordon Gullion and other wildlife specialists at the Clouquet forestry center base their statements on the shortage of flower buds on the male aspens or popple in Pine and Carlton counties, the Mille Lacs area and in the vicinity of Grand Rapids.

These buds usually provide the bulk of the winter food for grouse in northern Minnesota, and studies have shown that the birds seldom survive the winter in substantial numbers where this food is absent.

The flower buds of birch and hazel are also in short supply, and these are utilized as a second choice food by grouse.

Considering that the grouse population between fall and the following spring normally declines about 55 per cent, as accelerated loss due to shortages of food could reduce the population as much as 80 per cent.

The food crop failure may well be the event that triggers the periodic decline in the grouse population noted by biologists for many cars.

Gullion siad conditions for grouse may not be so bad in central Minnesota becuause of heavy berry crop on gray dogwood. Another area that might come through the winter in good shape is east central Minnesota where there aspen flower bud crop appears to be much better than north of the Hinckley-Sandstone region.

On the Clouquet study area, the grouse population last year reached its highest level since 1933. But with the bud crop only about 5 per cent of normal these birds face a grim future.

As a matter of fact, said Gullion, few grouse actually starve to death; they are usually taken by predators before that because of their weakened condition.

NWF To Support Earth Week '72

National Wildlife federation will join thousands of schools and communities throughout the nation during April 17-23 to celebrate Earth Week '72.

As was the case last year, the federation and other conservation groups are urging participation during the week at the community level, with local and statewide groups utilizing their own resources and establishing their own priorities.

"Since the environmental issue has come of age, Earth Week can provide an opportunity to learn something about the issue," said NWF executive director Thomas Kimball.

"For instance," Kimball said, "the citizens of one area of the country may need to start a community recycling center. In another, local air and water pollution problems should be focused upon and studied, perhaps through artwork." He added that "the ideas are as limitless as the problems." Kimball emphasized that grassroots actions all across the country can focus new attention on air and water quality, land and resource use, transportation, technology, and urban and population growth.

In addition, global pollution concerns are especially timely in 1972 in view of the NWF "Uniting Nations for BioSurvival."

TR Ranks Among League Leaders

Unlike last season when league champion East Grand Forks completely dominated the Big Five basketball conference statistics, three teams, Thief River Falls, Crookston and "East Side" volleyed for the final positions among the individual and team categories during the 1971-72 regular season campaign.

Lead by league leading Kurt Knoff's 31.3 scoring average, the Green Wave won its third straight conference title with a 6-1 record and seven points. Thief River Falls finished a close second in the title race with a 5-2 loop mark for six points. Crookston was right behind the pascesetters with a 5-3 record and five points while Climax and Warren ended the conference season with each team gaining just one win in league play.

Thief River Falls' Rande Smith finished a distant second in the individual scoring race with a 20.2 average while teammate Jeff Rhoden was third with a 15.6 mark. Ordean Peterson and Tom Kays also ranked among the top ten league scorers with a 13.2 and 12.0 average respectively.

Smith, the Prowlers' team captain, also led the league in rebounds with an amazing 20.7 average in six games. Rhoden placed second in the rebounding charts with an 11.9 average.

Other individual performances ranking among the league leaders for the Prowlers included Kays' .788 free throw shooting percentage, ranking him second behind Crookston's Dave Broekemeier. Smith was the league's fifth best free throw shooter with a .680 mark. Peterson placed fifth in the individual assist average with a 3.6 mark.

As a team the Prowlers led the loop in rebounds with a 48.6 average, while ranking second in assists (16.3), free throw shooting percentage (.619), offensive average (74.3) and defensive average (60.0). The Prowlers ranked third in field goal percentage with a .424 mark.

Denmark Agrees To Cut Atlantic Salmon Fishing

Efforts to end high seas fishing for the Atlantic salmon received a boost, though not as large as hoped for, when Denmark recently agreed to phase out their total high seas fishery catch of the fish by 1976.

In an agreement with the U.S. department of state, the Danes and Faroese will limit their catch to 800 tons beginning in the summer of 1972, with the total gradually dropping to zero by 1976. Greenland, a Danish protectorate, has also agreed to limit its seven year average harvest of Atlantic salmon within its contiguous sea boundary—12-mile limit—to 1,100 metric tons. In 1969, the high seas catch of Atlantic salmon by Denmark, the Faroese, and Greenland was estimated at 2,200 tons. The 1971 figure was approximately 2,500 tons despite the fact that the Danes agreed in 1970 not to escalate their salmon catches beyond 1969 levels.

The future of the Atlantic salmon has been considered in jeopardy for several years. In late 1964 and early 1965, Danish fishermen discovered the fish both in a deep sea feeding ground in the Davis Strait off Greenland's southwestern shore and in a shallow continental shelf area which is within the contiguous sea of Greenland. About 50 per cent of the salmon that feed in these waters originate in Canada and the northeastern U.S. Others travel 2,000 to 2,500 miles from their home rivers in England, Ireland, Scotland, and Sweden. In order to reproduce, the salmon have to return to their waters of origin. In recent years, excessive catches by approximately 300 Danish fishermen, in a small number of trawlers and using 18-mile long drift nets, have seriously threatened the capability of the salmon to perpetuate the species.

Until now, the Danes have insisted on the right to fish the high seas. U. S. concern for the salmon resulted in Congressional passage of the so-called Pelly bill last fall which authorizes the President to restrict fish imports from nations believed to be harming international fishery conservation programs. The President signed the bill into law last Christmas Eve and, one day later, the U.S. and Canada issued a joint statement calling for a ban on fishing for salmon in international waters.

Although the British Government is reportedly "ecstatic" over the limitation agreement, many leading U.S. conservation groups, including the National Wildlife federation, are disappointed with the outcome. "We would like to have seen earlier reduction in the harvest, particularly during the first year," said P. A. Douglas, assistant to the NWF executive director. "Had the Danes agreed to a 50 per cent reduction in the first year instead of 21 per cent, our faith in their efforts to conserve the species would have been enhanced," Douglas added. He did note that the organization would support the state department in accepting the general phase-out of this fishery.

Better Break For Wildlife Sought On Retired Land

Efforts to provide protective cover for wildlife and prevent soil erosion on crop land diverted under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's "set-aside program" are rapidly gaining attention across the midwest, according to an announcement today by Minnesota Commissioner of Natural Resources, Robert Herbst.

Last month, Herbst and Governor Anderson asked the federal government to require protective cover plantings on such lands and appealed to the state's congressional delegation for assistance in writing the requirement into USDA programs.

Last week, wildlife specialsists from 13 states met in Minnesota to establish a coordinated fact-finding program to deal with the problem.

"Approximately 20,000,000 acres of farmland are idled under the set-aside program in the supper midwest each year, and the potential of these acres can no longer be overlooked." reports Herbst. "They could, for example, be a boon to pheasants, waterfowl, cottontails and other farm game if protective cover crops were part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's land retirement plan. During the past decade, however, cover has not been required on diverted cropland. As often as not, the land is barren and of no value to wildlife.

"Farmers should receive incentive payments to stimulate wildlife production and soil protection on these acres."

Dr. Keith Harmon of the Wildlife Management Institute and Maynard Nelson, Minnesota DNR game research specialist, are co-chairmen of the newly organized task force. They said comprehensive field surveys will be conducted during 1972 to bring the problem into focus for the midwest. The group will use its findings in working with farm organizations, environmental groups and government agencies to stimulate interest in an improved land retirement program in the future.

According to Nelson, an incentive program where in landowners would get a premium payment for acres retained in permanent cover for three to five years is a realistic goal. The additional wildlife produced under such a program could generate millions of dollars of additional income to the rural communities. Even more important, such cover crops would largely eliminate soil erosion on diverted acres, and the increased wildlife and diversity of scenery would make the rural areas a more pleasant place to work and live.

"Better coordination of state and federal land management programs is our goal," he concluded.

New Rules Help Minn. Lake Trout

Did you know that 90 per cent of all the lake trout caught in Minnesota are taken during the winter months by ice fishermen?

Summer fishermen account for 40 per cent of the angling pressure on lake trout but take only 10 per cent of the annual catch.

It is these figures, plus the increased ability of ice fishermen to reach remote lake trout lakes by snowmobile, that resulted in the closure of lake trout fishing this year during the months of March, April and the first part of May.

Studies made by the department of natural resources during the past few years show that the lake trout population is in serious danger of depletion in those popular fishing lakes that are open to snowmobiling anglers.

Lake trout are more sensitive to over-fishing because they are slow growing and do not reproduce until they are several years old.

This makes it difficult for a population of lake trout to recover once it has been depleted.

Department fisheries specialists point out that since summer anglers take only 10 per cent of the total catch, it would do little good to close the season during the summer months.

Pollution Plan Set For Minnesota Lakes

by Charles Wechsler

Minnesota lakes range from the clear, rock-strewn waters of the northeast to the fertile, shallow basins of the southwest prairies. Because they vary so, there can be no strict formula for protecting and regulating shorelands statewide.

Instead, a variety of land use controls is needed to deal with the major problems plaguing our lakes and their shorelands. As outlined in the 1969 shoreland management act, the goals of the new program are to coordinate land uses, to guide development which is compatible with the shoreland resources and to discourage development which is not.

The obvious approach then, was for the section of waters of the department of natural resources to devise a set of land use controls which would guide shoreland development for the benefit of both the counties and the residents of the state as a whole.

Certainly the most significant regulation outlined in the new shoreland controls is a sanitation code that must be incorporated into all existing and future sewage systems. The new standards are designed to combat direct pollution in the form of "straight pipes" or sewage overflow and indirect pollution in the form of nutrient enrichment of surface waters by seepage from soil absorption sewage disposal systems.

As Minnesota counties adopt the state's recommended sanitation controls, they will appoint county zoning administrators who will determine whether or not a given system meets department of health standards. This encompasses construction standards, size, capacity, etc.

The most important consideration will be whether or not an existing system is functioning properly and is high enough above the ground water level for bedrock strata. The new guidelines require that the bottom of the soil absorption unit (either a dry well or drainfield) be at least four feet above the ground water level. In bedrock or wet areas, alternate systems will probably be required.

Location of new systems will be regulated according to lake classification. On Natural Environment lakes and streams, the soil absorption system must be set back at least 150 feet from the normal high water mark; on Recreational Development lakes at least 75 feet and on General Development lakes and streams at least 50 feet.

When setting these distances, the typical soil types and ground slopes of lakes in each of the three classifications were given prime consideration. These setbacks provide a reasonable amount of assurance that nutrients from individual sewage disposal systems will not reach the lake. The nutrients—primarily nitrogen and phosphorous compounds—induce algae growth in much the same way that fertilizers stimulate growth of crops.

The state's recommended land use controls also focus on other problems. They will reduce the possibility of over-crowding and curb poorly planned development of shoreland areas thus maintaining property values. They will also preserve the natural characteristics of shorelands and adjacent water areas.

Minimum lot sizes are necessary to insure a level of protection for each class of public waters consistent with management goals and objectives. Two basic considerations in determining minimum sizes are evident: (1) to insure that a lot will be large enough to meet the various dimensional standards, especially for sanitary facilities; and (2) to set an overall density of development for a given body of water.

Minimum lot sizes include (see table): For natural environment lakes and streams at least 80,000 square feet and 200 feet of water frontage; and for general development lakes and streams at least 20,000 square feet in area and at least 100 feet in width.

To avoid flooding and to maintain esthetic values of lakeshore property, codes were established to control setback of buildings. These suggested standards are: At least 200 feet from the normal high water mark for natural environment lakes; 1000 feet for recreational development lakes; 75 feet for general development lakes and streams. No buildings can be constructed in the floodway of any steam.

The established building setbacks are slightly greater than those for sewage disposal systems. The land slope in shoreland areas is generally toward the water. It is desirable from a health standpoint to install a well upslope from the disposal system to avoid contamination. Therefore, the best layout for a lakeshore lot is to place the well behind the cabin with the sewage disposal system downslope.

Several exceptions and variances to the setback provisions are incorporated into the standards to allow reasonable developments under unusual conditions. For example, setbacks may be reduced on lots where sewage is disposed of through central sewage systems or holding tanks. Also, boat houses may be located up to the normal high water mark provided they are not used for habitation and do not contain sanitary facilities.

Closely coordinated with setback provisions are regulations governing alterations of the natural vegetation and topography of the shoreland. It is recommended by DNR that natural vegetation be preserved as much as possible to retard surface runoff and soil erosion, to absorb nutrients in the soil that might otherwise reach the lake and to provide a natural look to the shoreline while screening cars, dwellings and other structures.

The land use controls regulate grading and filling of shoreland areas or any alterations of the natural topography. Construction of channels and ditches will also be controlled.

These regulations outlined by the state are designed to maintain the fragile relationship which exists between a life supporting lake or river and the natural setting of the adjacent shoreland. This relationship can be drastically effected by man's activities. Failure to properly use our shoreland resources will inevitably lead to deterioration of the total lake environment and will drastically diminish the recreational and aesthetic amentities sought and valued by nearly all Minnesotans.

Public Jobs Program Now Reaching Goal

Study of the first 45,000 perople hired under the Public Employment Program (PEP) confirms earlier indications that the program has created career opportunities in public service for thousands of the nation's unemployed.

Moreover, Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson said almost all—89 per cent—of these new jobs are being filled by unemployed persons who never before worked for the local government hiring them. The jobs are in such vital areas as environmental protection, health, education, public safety, housing, recreation and public facility maintenance.

"It is significant," the secretary said, "that many of the newly hired have been drawn from groups frequently associated with the highest rates of unemployment, although other sectors of the unemployed population are also well represented."

The secretary pointed out that veterans and the economically disadvantaged are being hired in great numbers. Fully 30 per cent of those who have been employed in the program are veterans of the Vietnam-era, he said, and 30 per cent are disadvantaged.

He reported the following characteristics brought out by the study: Those from minority groups represent 30 per cent of the participants, and 10 per cent are welfare recipients.

By educational background, 22 per cent have less than a high school education, 45 per cent have a high school diploma, 18 per cent have some college, and 16 per cent are college graduates.

About five per cent of all hires are working as teachers and another six per cent of the jobs are in other professional categories.

The study also shows, he said, that 11 per cent of the participants are young persons entering the labor force, 21 years or younger; 72 per cent are between 22 and 44; and 16 per cent are 45 years or older.

Along with the results of the study, the secretary cited the experience of some of the newly hired workers, (real names not used):

Dennis Harrison, World War II veteran, black, 45, married with four dependents, was unemployed for 10 weeks when his previous employer moved from Chicago. He is now as Assistant Code Enforcement Inspector with the Chicago Building Department, one of 56 persons hired to enforce local building codes. This has also produced improved relationships with the city's black and Spanish-speaking communities.

Linda Morales, a high school graduate, previously unemployed, and bilingual, now serves as an "interpreter" with the San Joaquin local health district. There she works at the clinic and accompanies the public health nurse on house calls to Mexican-American families if needed.

Mrs. George Payne, formerly on welfare, with a totally disabled husband and the mother of two children, is now employed by the Ravalli (County) welfare department in Montana providing rural area residents with information about government services available to them.

James Holmes, unable to find a job despite his B.A. degree in biological and physical sciences, is now employed by the Stockton government in a program dealing with environmental matters such as the quality of suburban and rural area water and sewage disposal systems.

Rose Thompson, an unemployed, 26-year-old registered nurse, will work in the Hartford department of public health performing a variety of duties including house calls to elderly or infirm persons who cannot travel.

Richard Lopez, Vietnam veteran, 24, a native of Puerto Rico, now works as an interviewer in the public employment program in Hartford.

John Hamilton, black, 31, who earned his GED certificate while in the U.S. Army, is now employed as a school attendance aide in the District of Columbia public school system. He is working with grade-school youngsters with attendance problems.

The public employment program is administered by the labor department's manpower administration.

Schools Prepare For Motorcycle Training Classes

With the deadline six weeks away, Minnesota driver education schools and instructors are getting ready to offer motorcycle training to prospective applicants for endorsements on their driver licenses.

From April 15 on, every applicant for a motorcycle endorsement who is under the age of 18 must furnish a certificate that he has completed an approved course in motorcycle driving. Both commercial and public schools are preparing to offer the training as soon as weather permits.

Not all of the commercial schools or the high school driver education departments will be offering it, but it is expected that the training will be available in all areas of the state. Some 600 instructors have been qualified.

Preparations have included special college-level courses for the instructors, development of curriculum and obtaining of vehicles. In some cases simulators will be used for part of the on-vehicle instruction.

Students will receive eight to 12 hours of classroom work and six to 10 hours of driving instruction. The driving instruction will be on motorcycles with not less than 17 inch wheels and not less than 90cc motors.

State Has Funds For Tourist Van

Gov. Wendell Anderson announced today that the Upper Great Lakes regional commission has authorized a grant of $42,292 to the Department of Economic development, division of tourism.

The funds will be used to lease and operate for one year a mobile tourist information van in 38 counties of northern Minnesota. The walk-through van will be equipped to distribute literature, slides and films.

Potato Growers Must Choose Own Production Plan

Adoption and certification of new state regulations for the production of Minnesota certified seed potatoes was announced today by deputy agriculture commissioner Ralph J. Godin.

New regulations will virtually require seed potato production to become a specialized industry, apart from the normal production of potatoes for direct consumer use, effective in the approaching 1972 growing season.

Growers may no longer produce certified seed potatoes on the same farm or even in the same farming operation with consumer potatoes. Growers must make a choice between producing certified seed or consumer potatoes, not both, even if the acreages are widely separated, when the same farming equipment is used.

Purpose of the change, initiated by certified seed growers, is to strengthen the inspection and certification program and correspondingly improve the domestic and foreign market acceptability for Minnesota certified seed potatoes.

Minnesota certified seed potatoes are already established with commercial potato growers in nearly every major production area in the United States. In 1971 Minnesota had the nation's fourth largest acreage of potatoes submitted for seed certification.

Annually, the sale of Minnesota certified seed potatoes produces nearly $4 million in gross farm income.

Growers have until June 15 to make application for certified seed potato inspection service by the Minnesota department of agriculture during the 1972 season.

PROPOSED COMPLEX for a motel and dining facility south of Thief River Falls along highway 32 was revealed Monday evening at the annual meeting of Jobs Incorporated. The complex is being proposed by Robert Kinsman and was announced at the meeting Monday by Robert Carlson, chairman of the Thief River Falls city council. The plans are still tentative pending completion of several arrangements still to be made, but construction could begin this year if the hurdles can be cleared. The complex is proposed for construction on property owned by Dr. H. P. Wendt and Dr. G. T. Van Rooy east of highway 32 and south of the Family Bowl. The two wings of the motel for rooms would be two-story, having 40 units each.

Reveal Tentative Plan Of New Motel Complex

Tentative plans for a new 80-unit motel complex for Thief River Falls were revealed Monday evening at the annual meeting of Jobs Incorporated. Robert Carlson, chairman of the city council, presented the plans for the complex on behalf of Robert Kinsman, who is planning the new facility—contingent upon several factors which have not yet been completed.

If constructed according to present plan, the complex would be located east of highway 32 and south of the Family Bowl on land owned by Dr. H. P. Wendt and Dr. G. T. Van Rooy. The property was recently annexed into the city of Thief River Falls. Name of the 80-unit motel and dining facility with serving capacity of 500 people would be Arctic Inn.

One of the contingencies not cleared as yet before construction could take place would be approval of a liquor license for the complex. At the Monday meeting, Carlson explained the procedure which would be necessary to make such a license available.

First, the city of Thief River Falls and the property owner would have to petition the state municipal commission to de-annex the property from the city. If both the city and property owner petition, it is not necessary to hold a hearing before the commission, thereby saving time.

Assuming approval by the commission in St. Paul, the property would revert to non-city location and would be eligible for a liquor license issued by the county of Pennington. Once such a license is granted, the property could be re-annexed to the city and sewer and water service extended, with the county liquor license to remain in effect. Carlson said that the city council has agreed to this procedure.

The council will not issue a private liquor license in the city since it does not want to give up its off-sale liquor operation. State law will not permit municipalities to issue private licenses for on-sale operations while maintaining the off-sale as municipal business.

Details on the Arctic Inn complex were not available at the Jobs Incorporated annual meeting since Kinsman was out of town and is not expected to return until tonight or tomorrow. Carlson did say that Kinsman has spent $7,000 to date in preparation of plans and that approval had been given by Lowell Swenson, president of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., for use of the Arctic Inn name. Carlson said there was no connection between the Kinsman project and Arctic Enterprises.

Reelected to two-year terms on the board of directors were Arthur B. Christianson, Gene Beito, Walter Forney and Norris Melander with Ed Mazurek elected to succeed John Penn who declined renomination. Donald M. Olson, president of the organization, presided at the business meeting and introduced speakers for various industries giving reports at the meeting.

In his summary report, Olson said that Jobs Incorporated still has 19 acres of land available for sale in the Thief River Falls industrial park and that one current inquiry is being investigated. He also noted that Jobs Incorporated had 81 members in 1971 and is pointing toward membership of 150 in 1972.

Summarizing last year's building program in Thief River Falls Olson cited permits issued for 36 single family dwellings at a cost of $672,000 and three for apartments valued at $1,034,000. His study showed that costs of single family dwellings increased annually from $13,205 average in 1964 to $23,000 in 1969, then dropped to $21,385 in 1970 and $18,667 last year.

Arctic Enterprises report was given by Ed Mazurek who stated that the company has reduced its number of union employees in Thief River Falls from about 1,700 in 1970 to an anticipated 1,000 in 1972 due to increased operating efficiency.

Mazurek noted that the company is returning its fiberglass facilities to Thief River Falls with construction of 36,000 square feet of space and will be building an addition to its main plant of about 136,000 square feet this summer. He said the company has 475,000 square feet of manufacturing and office space in Thief River Falls and 1,130,000 square feet combined in its United States operations plus 38,000 square feet in Canada.

State Approves School Purchase Of Arctic Bldg.

Approval of purchase of the Arctic Enterprises building and site has been received by School District 564 in Thief River Falls from Floyd Erickson, assistant director of the school facilities section of the Minnesota department of education.

"This approval is based upon an inspection of the property regarding its utilization potention and upon your request for approval," Erickson states in his letter to Supt. William Corliss. "The building will need to meet all applicable state codes relating to each activity to be housed therein prior to occupancy by that activity.

"It is hoped that the property will prove to be an asset to the educational goal of your district."

Airline Boards 1,510 Passengers Here This Year

North Central airlines at Thief River Falls is off to a fast start in 1972 boardings with 1,510 passengers boarding planes here during the first two months of the year. In addition, 1,509 persons deplaned at Thief River Falls during January and February.

According to unofficial figures from the local North Central office, boardings totaled 789 in January and 721 in February for the 1,510 total. In January there were 742 persons who deplaned, followed by 767 in February for the 1,509 total.

North Central set a new January traffic record by carrying 312,282 passengers with 71,964,722 revenue passenger miles flown for the month. Of the airline's 2,290,548 scheduled miles, 2,231,833 were flown for an operating performance of 97.4 per cent.

Since inaugurating service in 1948, North Central has carried 30.2 million passengers 5.5 billion passenger miles. February totals are not yet available.

Recommend LHS For Accreditation

Thief River Falls public school officials have been notified that Lincoln senior high school has been recommended for accreditation by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools.

Robert Ostazeski, senior high school principal, was advised of the accreditation recommendation by letter from Elmer M. Weltzin, state chairman of the association. Recommendation for accreditation will be made by the Minnesota state committee to the association's annual meeting in Chicago.

Off-Sale Liquor Store To Open On Highway 59

Thief River Falls' new off-sale municipal liquor store, located on highway 59 south near the Hi-Bi drive-in, will officially open on Friday at 9 a.m. Bill Peterson, manager of the downtown store, will also serve as manager of the highway 59 facility.

The 36x50 steel building has been paneled on the inside and has a textured exterior. Interior of the store has shelving on three walls and four gondolas for liquor and wine display. Cooler area for beer is located along one wall of the building and an L-shaped counter will be used for sales. The floor is tiled.

Peterson, who has been employed by the city for 10 years, said that the new store will permit a larger stock of wines and liquors and that an emphasis is being placed on cooking and table wines. There are more than 200 kinds of foreign and domestic wines on stock at the new store.

With the new facility, Peterson said that the municipal liquor operation will employ about 15 full-time and part-time employees in addition to himself and Alan Gehrls, assistant manager.

Hours at the new off-sale facility will be from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday. The downtown store will continue both off-sale and on-sale operations.

The city financed the new store with sale of $50,000 in revenue bonds at 3.6 per cent interest, with repayment at $10,000 per year beginning in June of 1972. Last year the city's municipal liquor operation yielded a net profit in excess of $120,000.

Boss Cat Sets Sanctioned Mark

New official land speed record for snowmobiles was established under American Snowmobile association and National Hot Rod association sanction Sunday at Coon Rapids. Charlie Lofton drove the Arctic Enterprises Boss Cat II at the day's top speed of 130.05 miles per hour.

The new sanctioned mark is nearly two miles per hour slower than the record of 131.58 miles per hour set last Sunday at Roseau, also by Lofton in the Boss Cat II.

Two Accidents Noted By Police

Thief River Falls police investiaged two accidents involving city parking on March 3. Linda Pikop of route 3, Thief River Falls was pulling out of a parking space in the 200 block of North LaBree when her vehicle was struck by one driven by Arnold Geske of St. Hilaire who was traveling south. Total damage was about $270.

The first accident occurred about 8:10 p.m. and the second one was about one hour and 20 minutes later on First street. Gary L. Johnson of route 5, Thief River Falls, was driving east when he struck a parked vehicle belonging to Craig Lindahl while swerving to avoid an oncoming motorist. The vehicles sustained about $500 in damages. There were no injuries.

On March 4 police received a complaint from Mrs. Gilmer Berger who reported that her purse had been stolen from a shopping cart while she was in a local grocery store.

Friday Deadline For Feed Grain, Wheat Programs

This Friday, March 10, is the final date to sign up for the feed grain and wheat program, according to Wallace Sparby, Pennington county executive director of ASCS.

"Approximately 80 per cent of the eligible farmers in the county have signed up to date. We expect at least 9 per cent of the eligible farmers to participate in the wheat and feed grain program this year," Sparby said.

"There are many options available this year which are of benefit to the farmers and should fit into the plans of most farmers for their cropping rotation this year."

Rates Increased For Service At Cemetery

"Everything costs more today, including dying," is a phrase sometimes heard when prices are discussed. That may be true. At least, the price of graves will be higher in Thief River Falls Greenwood cemetery, starting April 1. The city council recently approved the first cemetery rate increase in 10 years.

Robert Lund, cemetery commissioner, stated that the change was requested to parallel rising operating expenses. According to a survey conducted by the Minnesota Association of Cemetery Officials, the new prices will be about average for comparable facilities. Some things will still cost less than they would elsewhere.

The cost of opening a grave and interment averages $65 to $75 for communities with a population of 5,000 to 20,000, according to the figures published by the cemetery officials' association. The new price for this service here will be $55. That is lower than the average; however, it is an increase from $35.

Following is a summary of the new rates with the previous rates listed in parentheses:

Single grave—with marker privilege only, $50; perpetual care, $30; total $80 ($65);

Single grave—with monument privilege, $60; perpetual care, $35; total $95 ($65);

Two graves—with marker privilege only, $100; perpetual care, $60; total $160 ($130);

Two graves—with monument privilege, $120; perpetual care, $70; total $190 ($130);

Four graves (½ lot), 2 east, 2 west, same lot, $225; perpetual care, $125; total $350 ($250);

Eight graves—1 lot $450.00 less 10 per cent, $405; perpetual care, $250.00 less 10 per cent, $225; total $630 ($500);

Price of opening single grave and interment: For children under 10 years of age, $25 ($20); for persons 10 years of age or older, $55 ($35);

Price for the use of the vault during the winter months: For children under 10 years of age, $10.00 (no charge); for persons 10 years of age or older, $20.00 ($15.00);

Prices for foundations: Markers, $12.00 ($8.00); monuments, $2.50 per cu. ft. ($2.00).

The difference in prices between graves with marker privilege and monument privilege exists because there is only enough room for one monument between two graves. The use of a monument means that none may be placed on one other grave, along with taking more space itself.

A section of the cemetery has been set aside for "Baby Land." This was done after studying the results of cemeteries that already have separate areas for infants. Baby land permits monetary savings by buying only the necessary space. Previously, it was necessary to purchase a full-sized plot for children. Only markers will be permitted in this section. To place a monument on a child's grave will necessitate burial in the main section of the cemetery and purchase of a regular grave. Rates for baby land are as follows: Baby land grave—2'x4' with marker only, $15; perpetual care, $5; total $20;

Baby land grave—2½x5½' with marker only, $25; perpetual care, $10; total $35.

The council also appropriated $2,000 for operating expenses of the cemetery. In previous years money was received directly from a levy for that purpose. Last year about $1,900 was obtained by the levy. The only real change is administrative. The taxpayer will still be paying about the same amount of money but there will be no levy designated

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Matero, former Thief River Falls residents, now living at Eaton, Colo His grandparents, Mr and Mrs Glen Bernstein reside in this city They were amoung the special guests at the wedding

Rev John Jepson officiated at the double ring ceremony. A vocal group from the church sang, "Into Your Hands," "Peace," "Take Our Bread," "Joy Is Like the Rain" and "Today."

Framing the altar were lime green candles in spiral candelabra, trimmed with white carnations and greenery. Hurricane lamps with similar accents graced the bridal aisle.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her cousin, Ronald Long of Lancaster, Mo. She was attired in a gown of white re-embroidered lace over delustered satin. The gown was fashioned with a modified empire bodice with rolled collar and lantern sleeves. Pearl beading trimmed the waistline, wrists and upper sleeves. Her chapel-length mantilla, edged with wide lace to match her gown, was held by a headpiece of satin and lace petals, accented with crystal and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations. Jewelry worn by the bride included a gold cross necklace, a gift from the groom, and heirloom earrings which had belonged to the bride's great-grandmother.

Miss Mary Lynn Matero, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She was attired in a lime green and white ensemble featuring a long-sleeved, ruffled blouse of white Maderia nylon flocked with lime green and white flowers. Complementing the blouse was a floor-length skirt of lime green velveteen with a self ruffle at the hemline. A matching velveteen bolero, white nylon hat with green velveteen trim, and a colonial bouquet completed her attired.

Bridesmaids were Diane Markley and Sharon Leffler. They were attired like the maid of honor but their ensembles did not feature boleros.

The flower girl, Heide Preston, wore a floor-length gown of flocked Madeira nylon with a lime green sash and a white nylon hat. A gown of the same fabric was worn by Toni Long, a cousin of the bride, who served as acolyte.

Tim Rice was the best man. Groomsmen were JAllen Matero, brother of the groom, and Perry Wiedeman. Mark and Merle Iverson, cousins of the groom, seated the guests. All wore tuxedos with white boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a lime green dress accented with a white corsage. An identical corsage was worn by the mother of the groom, who was attired in an orchid dress. Corresponding corsages and boutonnieres composed of carnations and daisies were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ellis of Greeley, grandparents of the bride, and to the Bernsteins.

A reception in the church parlors followed with an aunt of the groom, Mrs. Maynard Iverson, formerly of Thief River Falls, cutting the wedding cake. Among the guests at the reception were an aunt of the groom, Mrs. Edith Robinson of Amarillo, Tex., and formerly of Thief River Falls; cousins of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Russ Wayne Iverson and children and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Jensen, all of Roseau; together with Mrs. Thea Iverson of Middle River, Mrs. Curtis Wiskow of Strathcona and Mr. and Mrs. Art Burke, Jr., former residents of Thief River Falls now living in Minneapolis.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a short pantsuit of brown brushed corduroy with a long-sleeved, beige satin blouse, brown leather boots and a matching handbag.

The evening before the wedding, the parents of the groom entertained at a dinner at their home.

Several pre-nuptial parties were also given for the bride-elect prior to the wedding. They included pantry, linen, kitchen, personal and miscellaneous showers given by friends, members of the wedding party, relatives and co-workers.

The bride is a 1970 graduate of the Eaton high school and is employed by Hopkins-Lundy insurance agency in Greeley. The groom is a graduate of the same high school and attended Colorado State university for one year. He is employed as a seed inspecter for Denver Grain Exchange. Photo-Kadlecek Studio, Greeley.

Over 200 Attend World Prayer Day At Trinity

Over 200 women gathered at Trinity Lutheran church in this city on Friday morning to observe World Day of Prayer. In spite of the snowy weather, guests from parishes at Viking, St. Hilaire, Middle River, Holt and Black River joined the women of the Thief River Falls churches for the hour-long observance. Sixteen churches were represented and 20 children were cared for in the nursery.

Rev. James Bernauer of St. Bernard's Catholic church, was the guest speaker. In keeping with the theme, "All Joy Be Yours," he emphasized the importance of experiencing joy now by having frequent, small, joint celebrations. He reminded the women of the need to share joy by praying and showing concern for peoples, both near and far, who are troubled by current, drastic changes in human rules and relationships, in geographical locations, in world politics and in technology. He also stressed the need for Christians in narrowing gaps between differing people, and between people and their God.

The women were welcomed to the service by Mrs. Curtis Charlson, president of Trinity Lutheran Church Women. Following the program used by women in 169 countries around the world, the leaders: Mrs. Jonathon Law of United Methodist, Mrs. Wilbur Hallstrom of Zion Lutheran and Mrs. Everett Marshall of Redeemer Lutheran, directed the group to the many prayer concerns. Prayers were offered for the people of the world and their problems of lonliness and separations of many kinds.

Vocal selections stressing peace and joy, added interest to the program. Solos were presented by Miss Roxanne Langlie of St. John Lutheran and Mrs. Jarvis Prichard of United Methodist. Several selections were presented by a choir composed of members from the various churches. Mrs. Norman Peterson of United Methodist was the director and Mrs. Walter Larson of Trinity, served as organist.

Refreshments, which were served before and after the service, were provided and served by the Trinity women, who hosted the event.

General chairman of this year's World Day of Prayer was Mrs. Jay Borchert, vice president of Trinity Lutheran Church Women. She expressed her gratitude to the many who helped with preparations and for the cooperation received from the women of the five sponsoring churches: United Methodist, St. John, Redeemer, Zion and Trinity Lutheran.

Plans are already under way for the 1973 observance. Joining the group will be the women of St. Bernard's Catholic church. They will be represented on the planning committee by Mrs. Julian Lendobeja. Other members on the planning commitee for 1973 will be Mrs. Orin Green of United Methodist, Mrs. Clarence Semanko of St. John Lutheran, Mrs. Miles Efteland of Zion Lutheran, Mrs. Dennis Wojahn of Trinity Lutheran and Mrs. Luther Hanson of Redeemer Lutheran. Mrs. Hanson will serve as general chairman. She stated that additional representatives from each church will be named as time draws near. She also welcomes suggestions and volunteers from any additional churches wishing to help sponsor the local World Day of Prayer in 1973. Redeemer Lutheran church will host the service next year.

Mrs. Ellen Larson returned to her home in St. Paul after spending several days visiting in Thief River Falls at the Mrs. Lydia Olsen home and with Mrs. Adolph Cristopherson.

Womack Reviews Saturday Concert By Clann Gael

A well-disciplined group of attractive young people presented a mixture of Irish and Scottish songs and dances at the Lincoln high school auditorium on Saturday March 4.

Although the audience appeared restrained at first, their enthusiasm evidenced itself when the accordionist and the group's pipes playing a penny-whistle presented some lilting Irish melodees at the end of the second set.

The pace of the program livened as the singers presented a selection of Irish-Scottish (?) tunes following the instrumental duet. From this moment the rapport between audience and performers appeared firmly established.

This interaction, to this viewer was most opponent in those songs sung by Frank Patterson, those dances performed by Padraic Flanagan, and the company's performances, singers and dancers, of Slattery's Mounted Fut and Phil the Phluters Ball featuring Noel Murphy, whose comic presence and exuberance were the high points of the evening.

Patterson's renditions of Loch Lamond and Rose of Tralee were of high caliber, not only because of quality of voice and diction, but primarily through the absence of a saccharine approach to these traditional Gaelic airs.

Flanagan's jigs and set dances were marked by fine body control and intricate footwork while Murphy happily portrayed by voice and gesture those characters he was to portray.

All in all, a unique evening, when Gaelic costumes and musical instruments consisting of such items as accordion, penny whistle, harps, and bagpipe (no electronic gear) were combined with a blending of love refrains, songs of rebellion, ballads, and dances both comic and martial nature.

Just two thoughts in retrospect. First, although starting and ending the program with Scottish airs, Scotland the Brave and Auld Lang Syne, I felt that the Auld sad came out ahead of the Highlands a little of Harry Lander could have helped to dispell the representations of the Scots as being so slow, perhaps.

Second, the featured soprano's approach to his songs was quite the opposite of Mr. Pattersons.

Legion Auxiliary Prepares To Aid "Gift Of Life"

"Life is what it's all about," states Mrs. Erwin Ferber, president of the American Legion auxiliary in Thief River Falls, in discussing the "Gift of Life" program being sponsored here by the auxiliary.

"When you feel the full impact of the fact that 100 lives, right here in the state of Minnesota, may depend upon the gift of life program during the next 12 months, you realize that life is what it's all about," Mrs. Ferber said. "We are extremely pleased that we may be a part of one of the most vital of community health programs—the Kidney Foundation organ donor registration program."

The auxiliary will conduct a registration campaign on Thursday, March 16, at the city auditorium from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. During that time volunteers will be encouraged to register as donors of their organs after death for transplant to people needing them for life.

It is estimated that more than 100 persons will require kidney transplants in Minnesota during the next 12 months. A pool of approximately 100,000 organ donor registrants will be required to meet the need for transplantable organs.

Mrs. Ferber cited the importance of emphasizing that organs are used only after the death of the donor as some people have misunderstood this. Donors may specify on the registration card that only certain organs would be donated at the time of death if they may also specify that their body could be used for anatomical study if there was a need for the body at the time of the donor's death.

Fitzsimons Tells Of Uni-Cameral Legislature Talk

"On Thursday of last week I attended a meeting of the Minnesota constitutional study commission of which I am a member," reports Rep. Richard Fitzsimons. "The subject of this meeting was to hear testimony on the proposal for a uni-cameral or one-House Legislature.

"David Krogseng, chairman of the Republican party, and Richard Moe, chairman of the DFL party, spoke in favor of a uni-cameral Legislature. Among others appearing in favor was David Roe, chairman of the state AFL-CIO; Stephen Alnes, associate editor of the Minneapolis Star; Calvin Clark, former staff man with the "Citizen's Conference on State Legislatures"; Sen. George Pillsbury, Wayzata; Andrew Kozak spoke for Lt. Governor Rudy Perpich, and several other peole spoke as private citizens.

"Those speaking for the proposal thought the principal of one-man one-vote has made a two house Legislative body outmoded. They suggested that decisions would be quicker in a uni-cameral legislature and that it would give individual legislators more visability. Several mentioned the benefits of doing away with conference committees," Rep. Fitzsimons said.

"Vern Ingvalson spoke for the Minnesota Farm Bureau and Norman Larson spoke for the National Farmers Organization. They took no position on the uni-cameral Legislature but indicated that their respective farm organizations felt the size of the legislative body was strictly up to the Legislature. They expressed strong opposition to the federal court reducing the size of the Legislature.

"Several of the committee members pointed out during the hearing that the Nebraska experience in a uni-cameral Legislature did indicate some deficiencies. There is no effective check and balance any longer with only one House. A fewer number of people would make many inportant decisions. It was pointed out that a uni-cameral Legislature would not be less costly to the public because it would be necessary to hire many additional staff peole at a much higher salary than legislative compensation in order to get the work done.

"I have not been convinced that the Uni-cameral Legislature is the best for Minnesota," Rep. Fitzsimons said. "It is worthy of study and should have extensive public debate. Our present system has served Minnesota and its people well and before we contemplate a change all the facts should be well discussed.

"The commission is planning a series of meetings throughout the state to get opinions on diverting part of the gasoline tax revenues to a metropolitan transit system. I hope our area of the state is represented at one of the outstate meetings to express their feelings on this most important matter."

In 1971, over a thousand FFA'ers in 216 high school chapters raised and released about 3,500 wild ducks and about 200 wild turkeys.

Navy Recovery Forces Cachet Apollo 16 Mail

U.S. Navy's manned spacecraft recovery forces in the Atlantic and Pacific will cachet and cancel philatelic mail for the April 16 launch of Apollo 16.

The special Apollo 16 covers will be processed through designated coordinators at Norfolk, Va., and Honolulu, Hawaii. From the Hawaii site, first day covers will be forwarded to the recovery ship.

Atlantic covers sent to Norfolk will be processed through the local Post Office, which will use the standard "U.S. Postal Service" cancellation device.

This cancellation will not contain the name of an Atlantic recovery ship, since the Atlantic recovery force composition will not include a ship with postal facilities.

To ensure adequate time for handling covers, collectors throughout the world should send pre-stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the appropriate coordinator before March 25.

Current U.S. post office regulations require that only United States postage may be used on covers. Cash, money orders or checks in lieu of postage cannot be accepted.

Collectors are requested to furnish standard-sized covers, 3 and five-eighths inches by 6½ inches to simplify handling. A three-inch square should be allowed on the left-hand side of envelopes so the cachet may be applied. If adequate space is not left, the cachet cannot be applied to the front of the envelope without covering the cancellation or return address.

Each recovery force coordinator will accept only two (2) covers per collector. When more than two are received, the extras will be returned unprocessed. Covers received too late for processing will also be returned.

Addresses for the Atlantic and Pacific area coordinators are: Atlantic: Apollo 16 Covers, Task Force 140, Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va. 23511; and for the Pacific: Chief - in - Charge (Apollo 16) Task Force 130, Navy Terminal Post Office, Fleet Post Office, San Francisco 96610.

The complex has 87 units in six buildings and is projected to cost $1,275,000 upon completion. No units will be rented until all are ready, he said, and June completion is anticipated.

Hydra-Mac, Inc.

Flynn also reported on the Hydra-Mac firm which is operating on the Steiger farm southwest of St. Hilaire. Douglas Steiger is president with Maurice Steiger as treasurer. The firm manufactures a small front-end loader, had sales of $800,000 in 1971 and is projecting sales of $3,500,000 in 1972.

Two-thirds of the production is contracted to another company for sale with 200 machines currently on back order and six machines per day being produced. There are 45 employees in the operation and Hydra-Mac has 21 factory representatives handling sales for the machines.

Home May Have Safety Search To Avoid Mishaps

Each year 26,500 people die and another 4,000,000 are injured in a sometimes surprisingly hazardous place. Can you guess where?

It is the American home.

The cost of such annual tragedy is modestly estimated at $1,800,000,000, and that does not include damage to property (of which fire loss alone would repersent about $700,000,000).

What is a person to do? Insurance companies suggest that you appoint a member of your family as "safety coordinator" for your home. Parents and children should make a thorough "safety search," seeking out the hidden hazards in your home.

Falls are the largest single cause for accidental death in the home (9,600 deaths). All rugs should be securely fastened, especially in areas where young children or the elderly are likely to be.

Stair landings inside and outside the house can be especially dangerous. Be certain that any necessary repairs to construction are made right away and that step surfaces are not slippery. A good handrail could also prevent your downfall. In the bathroom, a rubber mat or hand hold should be used to help keep you on your feet.

You should also check your medicine cabinet and remove all over-age medicine to prevent a cure that could be worse than the original malady. Be sure that all potentially hazardous medicines are properly sealed and removed from children's reach. Aspirins and sleeping tablets have become prime poisoners of youngsters.

While you are in a cleaning mood, get rid of all of those old cans of paint and thinner. Always check labels and any special instructions on cleaners or other materials used around the house which might contain toxic chemicals. Some of these items are too often in cabinets kept under the kitchen sink where a roving youngster is likely to find them—and trouble.

Inventory all children's toys occasionally. Many toys, when broken, become dangerous playthings in the hands of a fun-seeking youngster. More important, closely examine toys for hidden hazards before you buy them.

You can avoid a possibly shocking experience by handling anything electrical with proper respect. That means never touch an appliance and a water faucet at the same time. Also check lighting fixtures and appliances for frayed wires which might need to be repaired or replaced. Avoid overloading an outlet by the use of multiple sockets.

Some hazards are more subtle than others. Most people realize you should not leave a weapon loaded inside the home. But too few realize that even a snowblower can be trouble if started inside a basement or garage with insufficient means for the deadly carbon monoxide exhaust fumes to escape.

However subtle the hazards, the home needn't be a dangerous place. Make your search soon. Your family's safety is at stake.

February Was Just Plain Cold, Report Indicates

Unless a temperature reading is the highest or lowest ever recorded for a certain date, people tend to dismiss it as insignificant. Many complaints were heard about the cold weather in February, although the month's low was only -28 degrees. The statistics worshippers may have shrugged that off and continued to shiver. The low for February has often been -30 or lower, even in recent years.

The records of the weather observation station at the municipal water plant confirm what the goose bumps have been trying to tell the optimists who are momentarily expecting spring. February was no month to let your heating fuel run low; it was actually the coldest February of the last five years. The mean temperature was 2.0 degrees, while average for the month in prior years has been 7.7 degrees. That may not sound like much, but it indicates tht the temperature was consistently lower than usual.

There were no extremely low readings to bring the average down; the weather just stayed cold. There certainly weren't many warm days to bring the average up! Only one day had a high temperature which was above freezing. That was February 13 which recorded a high of 35 degrees.

Last year February had five days above freezing with a high of 41. This year we needed that one warmer day to remind us of what we can expect (?) soon (?).

February 6 and February 8 had lows of -28. Moving toward the other end of the thermometer was February 20 with a high of 29 and a low of 18 degrees above zero to qualify as the warmest day. It had the highest low temoerature and the highest daily mean. The coldest day was February 6 with the lowest mean and tied for lowest low at -28 and a high for the day of -8 which was also the lowest high.

Average daily high for February was 11.1 and the average daily low was -7.0. The five year averages are 16.5 for the high and -4.2 for the average daily low.

The wind caused errors in the snowfall measurements by blowing much of the snow out of the instruments before they could be checked and the readings could be recorded. However, official weather reports show that four inches of snow fell during February to bring the total depth of snow on the ground to 12 inches. When that melts it will produce 3.1 inches of water.

As of March 6 this area had received another 2½ inches, bringing the total to 14 inches, which will increase the water value and who knows what we may get before the month is over?

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—Do social security benefits reduce a veteran's compensation from the Veterans administration?

A—No. The VA does not count any income against compensation for service-connected disabilities, including social security payments. Income is a factor for pensions for non-service connected disabilities, however.

Q—I am the wife of a veteran who has a 30 per cent service connected disability. Am I eligible for treatment at a Veterans administration hospital?

A—No. The VA provides medical treatment only to eligible veterans.

Q—As a disabled veteran training under the Veterans administration vocational rehabilitation program, can I train part-time?

A—Yes. Part-time training under the VA's vocational rehabilitation program has been authorized since July 26, 1968.

Heart Researcher Studies Immunity Of Blood Cells

Two types of white blood cells known as the lymphocyte and macrophage are under investigation by Dr. John Hadden at the University of Minnesota to further clarify their role in the immunologic process.

As Dr. Hadden, established investigator of the American Heart association points out, "The development of immunology has led to understanding and problem solving in combatting cardiovascular and other diseases."

Immunity, as a state of resistance, means that as a result of prior exposure to an organism, specific adaptive conditions exist in the body so that the organism cannot produce disease. By studying how the body develops and expresses its immune state, it is possible to discover new ways to diagnose and treat cardiovascular as well as other disease states.

It is this "how?" that the investigator hopes to better understand.

Immunology can be divided into two broad areas: Humoral—concerning the antibodies circulating in the blood; the Cellular—concerning cells such as lymphocytes circulating in the blood and resident in lymphoid tissue. The first type of immune response is highly specific and has received a great deal of focus in the past. The latter has only recently come under intense study and it is specifically cellular immunity in which Dr. Hadden is interested.

Lymphocytes are cells formed in the lymphoid tissues of the body. A lymphocyte interacts with a larger cell known as a monocyte which may migrate from the blood capillaries into the tissues and become a macrophage. Both are white blood cells, but they vary in description.

According to Dr. Hadden, the lymphocyte is a "smart cell." It is recognized for its recall or memory power and for its ability to increase its numbers by dividing into daughter cells. The lymphocyte also expands its function by secreting a series of small molecules which operate on other cells such as the macrophage.

The macrophage on the other hand, is a "dumb cell". It eats other cells and foreign particles but has no recall power and needs more direction.

These cells are extracted (primarily from guinea pigs), isolated in culture and then subjected to various stimuli to observe and record their reactions and interactions.

Stimuli such as hormones and antigens are added to the cell culture. The cell surface is analyzed as to how it generates and broadcasts signals to tell the cell what to do with the foreign matter it has just come in contact with.

By defining the immunologic mechanisms in which these cells participate, Dr. Hadden hopes to offer means of selectively enhancing resistance in those patients in whom for various reasons that function is impaired.

Immunologic studies such as Dr. Hadden's have led to direct application in such areas as transplants, vascular diseases and rheumatic heart disease. The advances made in these areas and others is due largely to the expertise of investigators such as Dr. Hadden who are able to observe and interpret the process of cell immunity in an effort to provide greater understanding and consequently, greater practical application in combatting disease states. Dr. Hadden is one of some 50 Heart researchers in the state of Minnesota sponsored by funds from either the American Heart association or Minnesota Heart association.

This fiscal year, 1971-72, Minnesota Heart association allocated $175,000 for Heart research while American Heart association returned $469,000 for heart research in Minnesota.

This accounts for a total of $644,000 heart fund dollars being utilized for research in our state this year.

Haaven To Seek Endorsement For U.S. Congress

State Represenative Jon Haaven of Alexandria announced this week that he will seek the Republican nomination for the U. S. Congressional seat from Minnesota's 7th District.

Haaven—serving his second term in the Minnesota House of Representatives—is the editor-publisher of Alexandria Newspapers Inc., publisher of the Lake Region Echo and the Lake Region Press.

In announcing his candidacy, the 38-year-old Haaven said he had been studying the possibility of entering the congressional political arena "off and on" since first contacted by a group of supporters several months ago.

"While I do have mixed emotions in leaving the state legislature," said Haaven, "it is absolutely critical that the 7th District return a Republican to the U.S. Congress, and I'm now fully committed to that effort."

Haaven said there may be competition for the endorsement at the GOP district convention April 14 and 15 in Fergus Falls. . . "and although we intend to work very hard in getting that nomination I will happily support the nominee whoever he may be."

Haaven was born and attended grade school in Crookston and is a graduate of East Grand Forks Central where he was an all-state basketball player on the 1951 state tournament team. He continued his education at the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks, graduating with a bachelor's degree in journalism. While there he received Little All-American honors in basketball.

An Army veteran, Haaven is married and the father of five daughters. He moved to Alexandria in 1958 to assume duties as news director for the then new television station KCMT. He held that post for 11 years until he became involved in the Alexandria newspaper.

BSC Promotes Its Internship Program

Undergraduate internships and the placement of graduates at Bemidji state college gains increased attention winter and spring quarters as two members of the faculty assume full-time roles as contact men to encourage businessmen in Minnesota to seek BSC students and graduates in their businesses.

While James Castagna and Frank Stapleton are members of the division of business and industry, they represent the entire college when they speak with leaders of business and industry. Basically, they attempt to sell the idea of training BSC students during internship periods and also to consider hiring BSC graduates when they look for permanent employees.

They have been on the road several weeks and Stapleton says, "Thus far, we've had excellent relations with all businessmen we've talked with. We feel encouraged after making our first contacts in Duluth and we're looking forward to seeing all interested business and industry representatives in the next several months."

Castagna notes, "This is the break through we have been waiting for to strengthen our relationship with industry. The people we have contacted so far seem quite enthusiastic about our program, and we have invited them to visit the campus and view our facilities."

Dr. John Warford, coordinator of the internship program at BSC and head of the division of business and industry, says, "This idea of going out and contacting business and industry is something we've felt the division of business and industry has needed for some time, but we've never been able to free the people to do the legwork. I feel that this personal contact will greatly enhance our internship program at BSC."

At the same time, BSC placement director Dr. John Brady indicates that the contacts made by Stapleton and Castagna will also lead to better placement of non-teaching graduates in businesses of Minnesota and the surrounding states. Brady is coordinator of the overall program of contact.

Interest at BSC has concentrated lately on tailoring programs to meet professional need of students preparing for careers in businesses and industry.

Dr. Richard Haugo, chairman of the department of industrial technology, says, "We feel that the contact with businessmen will lead to feedback from them. This will give strength ot our curriculum for non-teaching students, as we change our courses to meet the needs and problems of students seeking industrial employment.

Internships normally run for a college quarter of credit, with students working directly in business, industry, or government shops and offices. The amount of college credit they earn varies with situation, and students may be salaried, or not salaried.

"Interships for students who do not plan to go into teaching are about the equivalent to the quarter that education majors spend in student teaching," Warford explains. "The advantage for the employer and student is that they can get to know one another, find out what each is doing, and learn new skills from one another."

Employers also have an opportunity to evaluate potential employees during an internship, and the student can work in a career field before he makes his final decision to enter that field.

Small or big business and industries can cooperate in the program.

"A business does not have to be large to provide an internship possibility," Catagna and Stapleton hasten to explain. "The main thing is that the employer be interested in showing interns what his business is and explain some of the things he has learned through experience."

Any businessman or industry interested in obtaining further information about either the internship program, or employment of BSC graduates, is encouraged to contact either Dr. Brady, Dr. Warford, Stapleton, or Castagna at Bemidji state college.

Consumer Price Index Rises By 0.1 Per Cent

Consumer price index rose 0.1 per cent in January, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported. Price increases for meats, new cars, and some services were largely offset by price decreases for fresh vegetables, clothing, used cars and gasoline. The January index was 123.2 (1967-100), 3.4 per cent above a year ago.

After seasonal adjustment, the January increase was 0.3 per cent. In the five months since the economic stabilization program was announced in August, the CPI has risen at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.6 per cent. During the six months from February to August, the period immediately preceding the wage-price-rent freeze, the annual rate of increase was 4.1 per cent.

The January increase of 0.3 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis compares with 0.4 per cent in December and an average monthly increase of a little more than 0.1 per cent in the period from August to November, which roughly corresponds to Phase I of the economic stabilization program. After seasonal adjustment, the food price index declined 0.2 per cent in January, after rising 0.7 per cent in each of the 2 preceding months. The index for nonfood commodities increased 0.2 per cent, less than the 0.3 per cent rise in December. The index for services rose 0.5 per cent, compared with 0.3 per cent in December and November.

Index of food purchased in grocery stores, which usually increases at this time of the year, was unchanged in January. Prices of items subject to regulation under the economic stabilization program rose substantially. These increases were offset by a sharp drop in the prices of fresh vegetables and eggs which are exempt from regulation. Meat prices rose considerably. Prices of dairy products, fresh fruits and processed fruits and vegetables also increased. Index for food away from home—restaurant meals and snacks—rose 0.2 per cent.

The price index for nonfood commodities declined 0.3 per cent, less than it usually does in January. Prices for apparel commodities and textile housefurnishings declined because of January sales. Gasoline prices were lower in some areas. The used car price index declined for the third month in a row. New car prices, which usually decline in January, rose 1.6 per cent as increases approved by the price commission began to take effect. House prices also rose. Cigarette prices were higher partly because of state and local tax increases.

Over half the increase in the index for services was due to higher property taxes and auto registration fees—items which are exempt from price control—as well as higher local transit fares in New York and some other cities. Charges for electricity, gas, telephone, and hospital services, auto repairs and movie admissions also increased. However, indexes for some services such as property insurance rates, physicians' fees, and men's haircuts were unchanged from December. Mortgage interest rates and auto insurance rates declined.

The increase in the January CPI is not affected by removal of the effect of items identified as exempt from regulations under Phase II of the economic stabilization program. Since declines in raw agricultural products, used cars and mortgage interest rates were offset by increases in taxes and house prices, the January increase remains 0.1 per cent after removal of these items.

This 0.1 per cent January increase for nonexempt items results from increases and decreases in several major components of the index. Substantial increases in the nonexempt grocery store food and services components. Higher meat prices were largely responsible for the increase in nonexempt food. The rise in services resulted from increases in local transit fares and higher charges for gas, electricity, and telephone services. The decrease in apparel prices reflected seasonal sales on winter clothing.

37,681 Farms In Minn. Enroll In Feed Grain Plan

During the first three weeks of the five week sign-up period for the 1972 feed grain program in Minnesota, 37,681 farms have been enrolled, reports Elton Redalen, chairman of the Minnesota Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee. That represents 29 per cent of the 131,312 eligible feed grain farms in the state.

Sign-up tempo has steadily increased after a rather slow start. A last minute rush of feed grain growers to meet the Friday, March 10, deadline is expected by the county ASCS offices, according to Redalen.

Set-aside acreage offered on enrolled farms totals 1,004,359 acres. That represents about 12 per cent of the state's total feed grain base acreage of 8,610,492 acres.

The set-aside acreage is made up of a required 25 per cent set-aside of feed grain (corn, sorghum, barley) acreage, up to 10 per cent voluntary additional set-aside under two separate options of corn-sorghum acreage, up to 20 per cent of voluntary additional set-aside of barley acreage and includes additional offers of corn-sorghum acreage subject to acceptance by the secretary of agriculture this month.

During the first three weeks of the February 3 to March 10 sign-up period, 14,216 farms are enrolled in Minnesota in the 1972 wheat program representing 30 per cent of the eligible wheat farms.

The signed farms have 1972 wheat allotments totaling 107,479 acres or 31 per cent of the state's 341,711 acre wheat allotment.

The total set-aside acreage on enrolled wheat farms is 131,615 acres. This includes the required 83 per cent set-aside acreage and the voluntary additional set-aside acreage.

To qualify for wheat program payments, support loans and purchases at a national average rate of $1.25 per bushel, a wheat grower must be signed-up in the 1972 wheat program. Program sign-up ends Friday, March 10.

Health Service Providers Must Post Price Signs

Doctors, nurses, optometrists, dentists, dieticians and other non-institutional providers of health care services are required to prominently post price information signs, according to George O. Lethert, district director of internal revenue for Minnesota.

A sign has to be posted in each facility, indicating to the public the availability and location of a price information schedule. This price information schedule, which is to be maintained at each place of business, must list the base prices for all principal services, as well as any changes in price. The base price is generally the highest price permitted for the period beginning Aug. 16, 1971, and ending Nov. 13, 1971.

Lethert went on to explain that non-institutional providers of health services generally can increase a price only to reflect increases in allowable costs, reduced to reflect productivity gains. However, the increased price cannot result in an increase in its base period profit margin.

In addition, the aggregate price increases may not exceed 2.5 per cent a year applied to the annual revenues that would result from charging the base price for all services. Any increase above 2.5 per cent requires advance approval and an exception request based upon serious hardship or gross inequity must be filed with the internal revenue service.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

It's nice that grown ups and children can enjoy horses and ponies during the summer months, but what about winter? These animals have to eat, but instead they are put out in the pasture to dig through the snow for grass that isn't there. The hooves are worn down from pawing to get something to eat.

We have witnessed some that are so thin that they look like a blanket had been thrown over some sticks and one that has died from starvation. Those so-called horse lovers say that the horses can rough it for themselves. I wonder if the owners can live without food or shelter, regardless of class of people. If you care for these animals, don't starve them to a point where you are ashamed to show them.

Minnesota Drops To 4th Place In Milk Production

Minnesota has dropped one notch to fourth place in national milk production rankings of the states for 1971, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reported today.

New statistics from the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture reveal that California moved up to third, while champion Wisconsin and second place New York maintained their undisputed leads.

Minnesota's milk production last year totaled 9,618,000,000 pounds. That was only 18 million pounds less than in 1970, despite the fact the average inventory of milk cows during the year was reduced by 8,000 animals. Production per cow averaged 9,855 pounds, an impressive gain of 62 pounds over 1970, but 20th in the nation.

California moved up by increasing its milk cow inventory by 16,000, biggest gain in the nation, and by continuing to improve its national champion production efficiency per cow. California cows averaged 11,985 pounds of milk each last year, or 2,130 pounds more than Minnesota's dairy herd, and 1,813 pounds more than Wisconsin cows.

The combination of increased per cow output and inventory boosted California's net production by 247-million pounds, to a 1971 total of 9,708,000,000, topping Minnesota's total production by 90-million pounds.

Minnesota was one of 18 states that produced less milk last year than in 1970. California was one of only eight states that increased inventories of milk cows. Nationally, milk production was increased by 1.3 per cent over 1970, the milk cow tally was cut by 136,000 animals and per cow average milk yield increased by 224 pounds to a new record 9,609.

notes from the governor

When the warden at Stillwater state prison releases an inmate, he knows the chances are better than 50-50 that inmate will be recommitted for another crime. The warden also knows it costs the state as much to keep a man behind prison walls for one year as it would be to send him to Harvard.

The high cost of incarceration, and its proven ineffectiveness in preventing a high rate of recidivism, are but two of the reasons this administration is committed to reform of our correctional system.

Minnesota has had one of the most progressive correctional systems in the nation. Now, under the vigorous and imaginative direction of Commissioner David Fogel, it has become a leader in the penal reform field.

One of the most promising of the many reforms Fogel has initiated involves the compensation of victims of crimes through the sentencing of offenders to a "restitution house."

There the offender can continue to work and earn a living, support his family and pay taxes instead of becoming a costly burden on the state.

He will also help eliminate a missing link in our correctional system—the lack of compensation for the innocent victim.

In recent years several states have established systems whereby victims of crimes are compensated through state compensation boards. In the Minnesota experiment, the first of its kind in the country, the offender himself will be responsible for repayment.

Fogel very correctly makes the point that if the federal governments should assume the burden of protecting citizens from the internal threat posed by the criminal. I believe he is right in this regard.

The "restitution house" program has just been funded through a $110,000 federal grant. It is experimental and thus unproven. But it is, I beleive, a step in the right direction.

Outreach School Sponsors Clinic

"I Will Build My Church" is the theme of a shepherd's clinic to be held Friday through Monday at McIntosh.

Ag Commissioner Gives Position On Livestock Prices

Consumers should understand five basic facts about present retail meat prices, insists Minnesota agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald.

"First, the prices for livestock are just getting up to where they were in 1950.

"Second, the farmers' total debt has increased by over 500 per cent since 1950.

"Third, the farmer has been in a wage-price freeze for over 20 years.

"Fourth, meat prices now are actually only about 20 cents a pound higher than they were 21 years ago when livestock prices hit the previous record high.

"Fifth, farmers have families to feed and protect, too."

Commissioner Wefald said that moreover, as many consumers as farmers in Minnesota depend upon the meat industry for their jobs and income. He warned that any throttling of the domestic meat industry will have a damaging affect on that important segment of the economy. He estimated that 19,000 Minnesotans are employed in meat and poultry processing, 30,000 more in retail grocery and meat markets, another 35,000 in the food service industry.

He also suggested that consumers review the official federal government statistics that show the combined processing and marketing operations account for more than two thirds of the total retail cost of food in the United States.

In 1970, the last year for which statistics have just been released, Americans spent $101.6-billion for groceries. Processing-marketing claimed $68.5-billion and the farmers' share was only $33.1-billion.

Since 1951, while the farmers' share of the U.S. consumer food bill has increased by 61.5 per cent, the processing-marketing cost has increased by 140 per cent.

Analysis of the marketing costs for that same period reveals that labor costs have increased by 146 per cent, transportation costs by 80 per cent, processing-packaging-advertising-distribution costs by 115 per cent and corporate profits after taxes by 217 per cent.

Emphasizing that food continues to take a lesser share of disposable consumer income, only 16.3 per cent in 1971, Commissioner Wefald said meat represents only 5 per cent of that income.

Ron Rasmussen Has Internship

CDA To Present Awards Of Merit To Personalities

Princess Grace of Monaco, TV personality Barbara Walters and District Attorney Carl A. Vergari, Westchester county, N.Y., will receive awards of merit from the national office of Catholic Daughters of America, according to Mrs. Richard (Dee) Trudeau, regent of Our Lady of the Snows Court 2023.

The awards were recommended by Mrs. Noel Hastad, Moorhead, a national director, at the CDA board of directors meeting just ended in Baton Rouge, La.

Princess Grace' award stems from her address on modesty in dress to the LaLeche league in Chicago and Miss Walters' award for good taste in dress on a network television show. D. A. Vergari received his award for his war against "X" rated films.

Prowlers Face Bucs In District Semi's

Thief River Falls and Crookston collide tonight (Wednesday) in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in the first head-on collision of two powerful contenders in the annual district 31 basketball tournament.

The Prowlers and Pirates, along with East Grand Forks and Climax breezed through easy first round games to advance into tonight's belated semi-finals. The games were scheduled to be played last night, but high winds and blowing snow forced postponment of the games until tonight. Thief River Falls will face Crookston at 7 o'clock while East Grand Forks figures to have another easy time of it against Climax. The consolation and championship games will be played Thursday night at the same times.

The Prowler-Pirate confrontation will be the rubber game between the two long time rivals this season with both squads claiming home court wins during the regular campaign. Crookston won the first meeting 72-66 in a come from behind effort while Thief River Falls posted a 68-63 win February 4.

Prowler coach Lee Swanson indicated he will use the same starting line-up that faced Alvarado in the first game of the district tourney with juniors Kent Smith (6-1) and Ordean Peterson (6-2) in the backcourt, junior Jeff Rhoden (6-3) and senior Tom Kays (6-2) at forwards and senior Rande Smith (6-5) at center.

If Pirate head coach Herb Hasz uses the same staring five that faced Fisher, Crookston's line-up will find seniors Scott Youngquist (6-2) and Doug LaFriniere (5-11) at guards, senior Gary Wagner (6-0) and junior Dave Brockemeier (6-2) at forwards and junior Dave Dahlberg (6-5) at center. The Pirates rarely go with the same five for too long, however, with juniors Chuck Potter (5-9), Ward Westberg (6-2) and Jim Lindell (5-10) seeing plenty of game time.

"It should be a real good, close ball game," commented Prowler head coach Lee Swanson. "Crookston has a real good club and they're tough to stay ahead of—providing you can get ahead of them in the first place. They're a real good shooting club so we won't be able to play any zone defense against them. "We'll go with a pressing man to man, full court. We'll have to pick up Broekemeier underneath or he could hurt us. Rande Smith will guard Broekemeier with Kays on Wagner, Kent Smith on LaFriniere, Rhoden on Dahlberg and Peterson on Youngquist. I think it's going to be a very aggressive game and the boards (rebounding) will tell the story."

District Cage Action Is Heavy

Inclement weather forced postponment of basketball playoff action in districts 30,31 and 32 last night while Red Lake and Kelliher probably wish the weatherman would have cancelled the district 29 games as well.

In the only area games played last night Littlefork-Big Falls clobbered Kelliher 93-55 and Walker tripped Red Lake 79-74 in district 29 play. Earlier in the week Stephen dumped Warroad 80-57 and Kennedy knocked off Middle River 71-41 to gain semi-final berths in the district 32 tournament at Stephen.

A full slate of games is scheduled for tonight in all four districts. In district 29 Blackduck will face Remer at Walker and Laporte will play Northome at Cass Lake in first round action. The semi-finals will be held Friday and the championship game is slated for Saturday at Bemidji state college.

In district 30 play tonight Hendrum will tangle with Fosston and Mahnomen will take on Ada in semi-final action at Crookston. The championship and consolation games are scheduled for Friday night.

District 31 games on tap tonight will pit Thief River Falls against Crookston and east Grand Forks against Climax at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks. The championship and consolation games are scheduled for Thursday night at UND.

In district 32 Newfolden will take on Strandquist and Karlstad will face Baudette in a pair of first round games at Stephen. The semi-finals will be played Thursday night and the championsip contest is slated for Friday evening.

All four district winners will advance to the region eight classic at UND March 17 and 18.

Climax Advances With 76-58 Win

Climax held Warren without a field goal for the first four minutes of their final first round district 31 basketball game Monday night at Grand Forks as the Vikings corralled the Ponies 76-58 to gain a spot in tonight's semi-final action against East Grand Forks.

Warren was able to collect just three goals the first quarter, all from extremely short range, as the alert Climax squad combined sharp passing and shooting skills to post a 27-12 first quarter lead.

The Ponies were never able to find an open spot in the Viking zone defense while Climax had no problem whatsoever in getting inside the Warren zone.

Climax claimed a 40-27 lead at the half and the script changed very little after intermission as the Vikings continued to harrass the Ponies into committing numerous mistakes while building a 56-39 lead going into the final quarter.

The Vikings built their biggest lead of the game, 76-54, with 25 seconds remaining. The closest the Ponies were able to close the gap in the second half was 56-45 with 7:10 left in the fourth quarter as the revamped Warren line-up staged a mini comeback.

Senior forward Wayne Kobbervig led all scorers with 27 points while Lon Spokely scored 18 and Owen Larson 10 for the Vikings. Three Ponies reached double figures with Jeff Norman netting 16, Bruce Schantzen 15 and Tim Howard 10.

Pirates Beat Sub District Champions Flyers 75-54

Extremely cold shooting from the outside found the favored Crookston Pirates trailing the Pete Anderson-led Fisher Flyers 16-11 after one quarter Monday afternoon in the district 31 basketball tournament at UND, before the Pirates finally found the range in the second half to grab a 75-54 foul plagued triumph.

Pirate guards Doug LaFriniere, Charles Potter and Scott Youngquist were able to cash in on just one shot from outside the Flyer zone defense in the first quarter as Fisher held Crookston without a field goal for the first three minutes.

The sub district champion Flyers ran to a 13-6 lead behind two buckets by Anderson with 2:52 remaining in the first half as the 6-5 senior's outside touch paced the Fisher attack.

Mark Kummer's long jump shot gave the Flyers an 18-11 lead to start the second quarter before the Pirate guards finally found the range from outside to climb to within 20-15 with 6:08 remaining in the first half. Fisher still wasn't ready to cave in just yet though, as Anderson's two field goals pushed the Flyers to a nine-point, 45-15 lead.

With Fisher holding a 26-19 advantage with 2:19 remaining, the Flyer fast break suddenly broke down as Crookston took control of the boards and switched from a man to man to a sticky zone defense.

Three straight field goals by the Pirates, two from deep in the right corner, cut Fisher's lead to just 26-25 with 1:25 left in the half. Wayne Gulsvig stemmed the Crookston assult momentarily with two free throws, but Potter's single gift toss cut the difference to just 28-26 with 28 seconds remaining.

Gary Wagner was on target with two free throws with 20 seconds left to tie the game 28-all and Ward Westberg's rebound shot at the buzzer gave the Pirates their first lead of the game, 30-28.

Crookston never gave up their lead in the second half as the Pirates continued to hit from the outside and cashed in on numerous Flyer mistakes.

The Pirates held a narrow 36-33 lead with 5:07 left before they found the range on nine straight points for a 45-33 lead with 3:06 remaining.

Crookston continued to slowly pull away in the third and fourth quarters as they posted a 55-39 bulge at the third stop.

The Pirates were led by Wagner's 16 point production while Youngquist added 15 and Potter 13—showing the dangerous Pirate outside attack. Anderson netted 17 for the Losers with Tom Christianson adding 15 and Kummer 12.

Crookston held a 52-37 rebound advantage, with both teams matching fairly evenly on height.

TRF Dumps Indians 84-58

Thief River Falls struggled through a mediocre first period Monday before superior height paved the way for an easy 84-58 win over Alvarado in the opening game of the district 31 basketball tournament in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

If the Prowlers had any reservations about the sub district runner up Indians they were well-founded in the first eight minutes of the game as the tiny Alvarado quint traded basket for basket with the taller Prowlers throughout the first quarter.

The fast-breaking Indians jumped out to a 3-0 lead before the well-known Prowler full court press slowed the Alvarado attack to a screeching halt as turnovers hampered the Indian attack.

The lead changed hands four times, and the game was tied twice, in the first 4:35 of the contest before Jeff Rhoden's driving lay-up gave the Prowlers a 10-6 lead with 3:25 remaining in the first quarter. The Prowlers never relinquished their advantage throughout the rest of the game, building their biggest first quarter lead on Kent Smith's short jump shot with 1:35 remaining for a 16-10 bulge.

Taking a 16-13 lead into the second stanza, the Prowlers retained a narrow advantage (from five to eight points) until three straight turnovers by the Indians resulted in three buckets by the Prowlers for a 38-26 lead with 2:07 left in the first half.

The twelve point lead was the biggest margin the Prowlers were able to muster in the first half, although Thief River Falls matched that spred on five different occasions.

Lee Swanson's potent quint wasted little time before increasing their lead to 15 points, 51-36, just 1:10 into the third canto enroute to a bulging 69-46 advantage at the third stop. The biggest Prowler lead of the contest was 28 points, 76-48 with 5:56 remaining and 84-56 with 2:02 left as reserves played a major role in the third and fourth quarters.

The closest the Indians were able to come to within the Prowlers in the second half was six points, 50-44, when the scoreboard clock momentarily flashed the incorrect score before excited yells from Prowler assistant coach Vern Treat grabbed the official scorer's attention with 1:20 remaining in the third quarter.

Rande Smith topped the Prowlers with 25 points and 19 rebounds, despite playing just three quarters. Rhoden added 14 and Kays chipped in 13 in the winning effort. Lannie Hallin led the Indians with 14 points while Rahn Farder and Randy Bowman added 11 and Maurice Lind scored 10.

The Prowlers held a commanding 52-37 rebound advantage in the game, but managed to connect on just 36 per cent of their field goal attempts. Alvarado shot at a 40 per cent clip.

East Side Tops Goodridge 98-40

Heavily favored East Grand Forks found the early going just a little bit rough Monday night before the defending champion Green Wave washed out the fired-up Huskies 98-40 in first round action of the district 31 basketball tournament at UND.

The Green Wave held a narrow 14-13 lead with 2:30 remaining in the first quarter before the fast breaking Wave raced to a 25-15 first quarter lead.

East Grand Forks continued to pull away with relative ease in the second canto as the Wave outscored Goodridge 18-0 over a five minute span for a 47-17 bulge with 1:45 left enroute to a 51-25 halftime lead.

The "East Side" effective pressure defense and well polished offense rolled up an 81-34 third quarter lead before Wave coach Larry Selk reverted to reserves.

Most observers felt the "East Side" quint looked more impressive than its two nearest challengers, Thief River Falls and Crookston, although all three squads recorded easy first round triumphs.

As usual, Kurt Knoff led the Wave offensive assult as the 6-3 sharp shooter collected 20 points. Bryan Johnson added 14, Roger Hagen 13 and Rip Thompson, along with Dave Rohy scored 11 for East Grand Forks. The Wave connected on an accurate 60 per cent of their field goal attempts for the game. Fred Parnow was the only Goodridge player in double figures with 10 points.

East Grand Forks will face Climax in tonight's second semi-final game, beginning at 8:45.

Jaycees Tackle NSJC In Donkey Ball Fri.

Thief River Falls Jaycees will take on Northland junior college in a game of donkey ball Friday, March 10, in the Lincoln high school gym, beginning at 8 p.m.

Donkey ball, the world's craziest sport, is a basketball game played from the backs of trained donkeys and is reputed to be wilder than a rodeo and funnier than a circus.

The Jaycees' line-up will feature such stalwarts as Tom Dimich, Brian Nelson, Jim Rogalla, Jim Dahl, Larry Hokanson, Don Grabanski, Orrin Aune, Jim Sigerud and Marv Walter.

The challengers, Northland junior college, will be led by the play of Dale Hanson, Dennis Dee, Kim Murphy, Janet Cummings, Steve Johnson, Jeff Hess, Paulette Swanson, Jay Forney, Renee Rude, Charlie Evenson, Tim Olson and Deb Buyter.

The game will be staged by the Thief River Falls chapter of the Future Farmers of America, who have obtained the services of the nationally known Crosby donkey ball company of Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

Tickets are now on sale and can be obtained from members of the Thief River Falls FFA. Allan Van De Streek, ticket coordinator, reports a brisk advance sale and advises to purchase tickets in advance.

Bald Eagles And Man Don't Mix

Bald eagles of Minnesota's northern forests may be forced to more remote locations as a result of man's logging and recreational activities, according to University of Minnesota researchers.

Although the study of bald eagles recently undertaken by the university wildlife scientists is not complete, it appears that the most remote eagle nests in the Chippewa national forest produce the most young.

The study is based on observations of about 40 nests and 20 eagles in a limited area of the Chippewa by university Professor L. D. Frenzel, graduate students Joel Kussman, Greg Juenemann and U.S. forest service biologist John Mathisen.

Although there is a well-established breeding population of bald eagles in the Chippewa, the eaglets observed left the area and didn't return once they gained the ability to fly. The scientists are trying to find out whether the eaglets survive to bolster other eagle populations.

The study takes on more importance with the consideration that well-established breeding populations of the bald eagle—our nation's emblem—are now found mostly in Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and possibly Wisconsin. The total bald eagle population is declining.

While the majestic bald eagle does not seem to take kindly to man's encroachment in the wild, man has perhaps unknowlingly helped the eagle survive in the Chippewa forest by a 30 year-old policy of preserving certain large trees there. The policy was initiated only to save the trees but benefited the bald eagle because of its preference and perhaps requirement for those large trees for nests.

Observing the young eagles after they left the nest and began roaming for miles posed no small problem for the researchers. But they found a novel way to keep track of the fledglings: One week before fledging they climbed up to nests—which average 80 to 90 feet above the ground—and lowered 12 birds. All were wing-marked with a color coded pattern, measured, banded.

RESERVES PLAYED an important role in the Prowlers' 84-58 triumph over Alvarado Monday night in the district 31 tournament at UND. In this action Dave Forney (13) and Curt Christensen (51) try to stop the Indians' Lannie Hallin from getting a shot off while Prowler teammates Kent Christensen (23), Gary Peterson (partially hidden) and Randy Dallmann (41) watch the fourth quarter action. These five, along with Lee Sorensen, Randy Carlson, Tom Hanson, Jeff Wendt and Don Dicken add valuable depth to the Prowler squad.

Northland Wins Consolation Title In JC State Hockey Tournament

Three Northmen collected the prestigious three-goal "hat trick" Sunday as Northland clobbered Lakewood 12-5 to claim consolation honors in the Minnesota junior college state hockey tournament in Grand Rapids.

Swede Lund's pucksters lost a closely fought 7-5 contest to defending state champion Rainy River in the their first game Saturday night before winning the third place trophy.

Host school Itasca, behind the five-goal performance of freshman wing Ken Lawson, humbled Rainy River 11-2 for championship honors before a near capacity crowd in the IRA arena.

Reflecting on his team's tournament performance coach Lund said, "I thought we played well in both games. We just couldn't get the equalizer against Rainy River Saturday night. Everyone played well Sunday when we broke the game wide open. Leo Marshall, Rodney Bolduc, Mark Hughes, Bob Lundbohm and Rich Ellerbusch all had a real good series for us."

Lakewood overcame a 2-0 deficit to tie the game 3-3 at the end of the first period in Sunday's third place game as freshman center Steve Hulse scored the tieing goal with just 49 seconds remaining.

Marshall and Bolduc, a pair of Northland sophomores, had scored within 1:02 of each other for a 2-0 lead with 12:46 remaining before sophomore Bob Cardinal cut the difference to just 2-1 with 11:09 left.

Hughes collected an unassisted goal with 7:27 remaining for a 3-1 Northland advantage, but the Lancers came back on goals by Cardinal and Hulse to tie the game going into the second period.

Northland erupted for six goals and a 9-4 lead in the middle stanza with Bolduc scoring twice and Hughes, Marshall and John Barger adding single markers.

The Northmen continued their hot scoring streak in the third period as they added three more goals. Hughes scored, on an assist from Lundbohm, with 17:21 remaining for a 10-4 bulge before Marshall made it 11-4 with 16:55 left.

Freshman Dan Mielke interupted the Northland scoring parade with 9:23 remaining, but Ellerbusch ended the game's scoring, on assists from Bolduc and Lundbohm, with 3:56 left.

Marshall and Bolduc each ended the day's activities with three goals and two assists while Hughes added a single assist to his three-goal production. Ellerbusch collected four assists and a goal and Lundbohm added four assists in the consolation game.

Sophomore goalie Maurie Pearson turned aside 23 Lakewood shots on goal while counterpart Dan Craft kicked out 32 Northland drives.

A total of 14 penalties were called in the game with Lakewood being assed nine.

In Saturday's tournament opening game, Rainy River stormed out to a 4-0 second period lead behind two goals each by Brian Briggs and Les Storey and a single score by Shawn Sheehy, before the Northmen cut the difference to just 4-2 on two Rodney Bolduc goals.

Bolduc's first goal was assisted by Ellerbusch with 0:52 left and the second marker was assisted by Marshall and Ellerbusch with 1:18 remaining in the second period.

Rainy River went in front 5-2 on defenseman Bruce LeDuc's goal just 1:23 into the final period, but Northland countered with two goals for a 4-4 contest with 12:47 remaining in the game.

Marshall collected an unassisted goal with 14:54 remaining and sophomore defenseman Jeff Baumgartner, assisted by Marshall, brought the Northmen to within one goal 2:13 later.

Former Warroad prep star Les Story put the Voyageurs back in front by two, 6-4, with 9:43 remaining, but once again Northland fought back to trim the difference to just one, 6-5, on Marshall's second goal with 5:01 left in the game.

Storey collected his fourth goal of the game to ice the contest for the Voyageurs with 1:12 remaining.

Freshman Tom Matanich was forced to make 43 saves in the game while Bob Moore turned aside 23 shots for Rainy River.

Big Game Census Conducted At Agassiz Refuge

Annual big game census on Agassiz National Wildlife refuge and adjacent lands was completed on Thursday with 777 deer and 119 moose observed by the flying team. Winship Atkins was pilot for the census with Thad Fuller, assistant manager at Agassiz, doing the enumerating.

"Clear skies caused ground shadows which may have reduced accuracy of the census," Fuller said. "There were 510 deer and 81 moose observed on the Agassiz refuge itself, and these totals have been expanded to estimates of 1,020 deer and 162 moose. Data from the previous two years' census is not comparable because of unreliable data."

When comparing the 1972 census with the 1969 deer herd, however, the number of animals has doubled to the largest ever experienced on the refuge. Number of moose increased by 54 animals from the 1969 tally. Moose census in 1971 showed 83 animals and in 1970 101 moose were observed. These counts are considered to be reliable by refuge personnel.

Itasca Captures JC Puck Championship

Itasca and Rainy River finished the regular season almost dead even in Minnesota junior college hockey action this season, but the Vikings of Grand Rapids left little doubt to who the state champ would be Sunday as Itasca pounded Rainy River 11-2 for the MJCAA state title.

The Vikings finished the regular season with an impressive 17-2 won-lost mark while the Voyageurs went through the regular campaign with a 16-2-1 ledger. The two teams each won two games in their four meetings this year.

With both teams being evenly matched, Itasca freshman wing Ken Lawson proved to be the difference—as—the Greenway product fired home four scoring shots in the third period to complete the rout of the defending champion Voyageurs. Lawson was tabbed as the tournament's MVP as he collected eight goals in the two-game tournament.

The winning Vikings made it a clean sweep of the post tournament awards as freshmen Ed Chopp and Vern Nelson were named as the outstanding defenseman and outstanding goalie respectively.

Itasca led just 2-1 at the end of the first period before a fine crowd in the IRA arena in Grand Rapids, but the Vikings exploded for a 6-1 bulge after two periods.

Brian Briggs gave Rainy River a short-lived 1-0 lead as he rapped in his own rebound with 2:23 elapsed in the first period. The Vikings' Tom Robillard tied the game on a power play goal with 11:13 gone and Itasca grabbed the lead for keeps on Lawson's first goal in the first period.

Chopp opened the second period scoring and the Vikings added goals by Gene Gustason, Tom Tervo and Kevin Roth for the five-goal bulge going into the final period.

Lawson went to work in the final period, collecting four goals and Shawn Sheehy finished the scoring with just 29 seconds remaining.

Nelson stopped 31 shots for the Vikings while Bob Moore turned aside 44 drives in a losing effort for the Voyageurs.

Both teams will compete in the national junior college tournament March 17 and 18 in International Falls.

UND Receiving Applications For Basketball Camp

Plans for operation of an expanded third annual University of North Dakota basketball school for junior and senior high school student-athletes in the tri-state area have been announced by UND head basketball coach Dave Gunther.

Gunther, who will direct the school, siad three one-week sessions are scheduled June 4-10, 11-17 and 18-24.

"Due to increased interest and demand we have expanded the school to three sessions this summer and also opened it to younger students. Previously we admitted only those who were entering ninth through twelfth grades in the fall. This year we will accept boys who are entering seventh grade this fall through those who will be entering twelfth grade," Gunther said.

"Our school has been approved by the high school state athletic associations in North Dakota, Minnesota, South Dakota, Canada and other midwest states," Gunther added.

"Primary prupose of the UND basketball school will be to teach skills in fundamentally sound basketball and improve student's abilities in finer points of the game. We hope to cultivate and amplify ideals in sportsmanship, leadership and citizenship. Students in our school have eight hours a day of basketball. There will be scrimmages, lectures and film study. We will keep the boys busy and active all day," Gunther reported.

Total cost for a one-week session for each boy is $65, of which $35 must accompany application and the balance must be paid at registration. Local youths commuting will pay $30.

"We already have a number of applications and there is increased interest in the school. We will limit enrollment to insure poper instruction of each lad. Those interested can obtain information about our school by writing or telephoneing (701-777-2234) me at the UND athletic department," Gunther revealed.

All sessions of the school will be on the UND campus and its fieldhouse. Each student will participate in morning, afternoon and evening sessions each day. Boys will live in campus dormitories and eat on campus. Youths living in greater Grand Forks may enroll and live and eat at home," Gunther said.

Many Apply For Senior Citizen Tax Credits

Senior citizens who can qualify for the senior citizens tax credit have until June 30 to complete their applications, according to A. E. Jorgenson, Pennington county treasurer. The program is the same as the one in effect last year.

Jorgenson said that all tax statements for county residents were mailed out last Thursday and that a notice of the senior citizens tax credit was included with the statements. Since that time he has had a large number of persons seeking application forms and they are now in short supply. Additional forms have been ordered.

Persons who took advantage of the tax credit last year should have received the new forms in the mail this year, the treasurer said. Those who meet the age qualifications (65 by Dec. 31, 1971) and the income limitations for the first time may pick up application forms from the treasurer's office.

"We want to remind senior citizens to take advantage of the credit if they qualify, but note that it is not necessary to make immediate application because of the June 30 deadline," Jorgenson said. "It should also be noted that there is only one senior citizens tax credit, and that those who received application forms in the mail need not secure application blanks from our office."

Regarding the tax statements sent last Thursday, Jorgenson said that persons not receiving their tax statements by the end of this week should contact his office.

Net Farm Income Increase Shown Across Nation

Net farm income for 1972 is expected to total 10 to 15 per cent above last year, according to University of Minnesota economist Willis Anthony. The final income figure will depend on farmers' 1972 production plans and consumer demand for food products.

Anthony, who attended the agricultural outlook conference in Washington, D. C., said gross farm income this year is expected to increase by 3 to 3½ billion dollars above 1971 levels. Farm production costs are expected to increase from 1 to 1½ billion dollars which would result in a net farm income gain of 1½ to 2 billion dollars.

These figures are for all total U. S. farm income—all farms will not share equally in income gains.

"However, for this anitcipated growth in net farm income to become reality, the overall U.S. economy must be strong during 1972," Anthony said. If the economy is strong in 1972, higher consumer incomes will translate into increased demands for farm products, he added.

Despite a strong demand increase by consumers, it's anticipated that the porportion of consumer income spent for food will probably decrease again next year to about 15 cents out of every consumer dollar, Anthony said.

Exports are a big part of the market for Minnesota farmers. However, exports will likely be lower this year, depending on the size of the 1972 crop.

Bergland Seeks Ways To Close Tax Loopholes

In a letter to the House ways and means (tax) committee, U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland last week urged that action on a $5 billion revenue sharing bill be delayed until "tax reform measures to pay for the program can be instituted." At the same time Bergland announced he was joining a group of House Democrats to prepare legislation which would close an estimated $7.25 billion in tax loopholes.

Bergland chided the administration "for suggesting more billions in deficit spending with no attempts to pay for it" and for withholding money for programs which have "already been funded and paid for."

Bergland said the tax reform measure he was now working with would include provisions "to eliminate the number of high income people who pay no taxes." Closing these common loopholes would raise $3 billion, Bergland estimated.

Among other provisions, Bergland cited the addition of a capital gains tax on property transferred by death or gift which would raise an estimated $2 billion and repeal the asset depreciation range system of taxing business property. This system allows rapid tax write-offs which Bergland termed "unnecessary and excessive when added to the investment tax credit." Bergland's proposal would keep the seven per cent investment tax credit while raising $2 billion by the elimination of rapid write-offs.

Bergland said our tax system "must eliminate inequities and close loopholes to insure that no American citizen will be required to pay more than his fair share."

Packaging Adds To Farm Food Costs

Packaging materials take about a nine-cent bite out of every retail dollar spent on farm foods. Last year, out of the total $101.6 billion consumers paid for farm foods, $8.8 billion was for packaging materials. These figures come from economic research service of the U.S. department of agriculture.

Food packaging has grown into a multibillion dollar industry since those days before frozen foods, before overnight coast-to-coast deliveries, before agriculture was so distant from major consuming areas.

Today, almost half of all containers and packaging materials made in the U.S. are for food.

Of last year's $68.5 billion marketing bill (total cost of transporting, processing, and distributing farm foods), packaging material costs accounted for 13.3 per cent—second only to labor costs. To keep packaging material costs comparable to other costs in the marketing bill, the study excludes imports, seafoods, alcoholic beverages, and military foods.

Packaging material costs have climbed at a faster rate than either the marketing bill or the consumers' bill since 1958. They've averaged over five per cent annual increase, while marketing costs climbed 4.5 per cent, and consumer spending 4.3 per cent.

The greatest share of the packaging bill is for paper products—42 per cent, the same portion as in 1958. Paper products accounted for $3.7 billion in food packaging last year. Three-fourths of that figure was for sanitary food containers, solid fiber and corrugated boxes and folding paper boxes.

Metal containers—including cans, aerosols, foils, drums, barrels, pails and steel strippings—accounted for 22 per cent of the food packaging bill.

Glass and plastic containers each accounted for about nine per cent of the packaging bill, followed by wooden containers and textile containers suh as cotton and burlap bags, cheesecloth and twine.

Wholesale prices of packaging materials rose only about one per cent annually from 1958 to 1969. But in 1970, prices jumped four per cent. Paper bag and shipping sack prices rose far more: 8½ and 8 per cent, respectively.

In 1958-69, the increase in total container and packaging value was due to greater quantities used. In 1970, however, most of the increase in value of shipments was due to price increases. Metal and glass container costs are expected ro rise further in the next few years. Labor contracts recently signed in both industries provide for wage and fringe benefits increases. Productivity is not expected to gain sufficiently to offset higher per unit labor costs and higher prices.

Among the various packaging products, paper is the most popular, not only because of its versatility but because of its relatively low cost. The industry has also done considerable research to find new uses for paper. One example is the development of moisture resistant fibreboard boxes. now widely used for packaging fresh vegetables, meats, and poultry products.

Metal cans account for more than four-fifths of the metal containers and component materials used. Use of metal containers in packaging declined from 24 per cent to 22 per cent of the total food packaging bill from 1958 to 1970, reflecting in part higher costs of raw materials such as steel and tin.

Use of glass containers—third in importance among packaging materials—increased from eight per cent to nine per cent from 1958 to 1970. Foods canned in glass make up almost three-fourths of the total, and soft drink bottles make up most of the remainder. Use of nonreturnable soft drink bottles has increased to where they now account for 80 per cent of the new bottles manufactured for soft drinks.

What's new in packaging?

One trend is in more ready-to-serve foods.

The U.S. department of agriculture's agricultural research service for instance, is working on grapefruit halves already segmented in a disposable bowl. While this product is primarily for use by hospitals, hotels and restaurants, it will later be available for retail stores. It's being developed in an effort to get fresh grapefruit to persons in institutions and to others who would not normally eat grapefruit because of time costs in preparation.

Polyethylene bags for fluid milk have caught on, especially in Canada where one-third of all fluid milk is sold in film bags.

More and more meat is packaged at central warehouses and delivered to the retail stores ready for the consumer.

More foods will be shipped by plane in the future, allowing more mature fruit to be shipped. Lighter weight packaging is helping to make this possible.

PCA Will Hold Annual Meeting Friday, March 24

Thief River Falls Production Credit association will hold its annual meeting on March 24 at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls. According to Harlow Johnson, general manager, the meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. and the public is invited.

Election will be held to fill the position of director now held by Adolph Erickson, Grygla, whose term is expiring. Marlin Johnson, area extension agent from Crookston, will show films he made recently in Kenya, Africa. Lunch will be served.

Production Credit association of Thief River Falls serves Pennington, Red Lake, eastern Marshall, northern Beltrami, Roseau and Lake-of-the-Woods counties with offices at Thief River Falls and Roseau. For the year ending Dec. 31, 1971, it had a total income of $469,339.08 and total operating expenses of $406,730.20 to show a net gain of $62,606.88. Dividends of $1,936.25 were paid on Class A Stock and $62,189.99 was added to surplus reserves from the $64,126.24 available for distribution.

The board of directors is composed of Oldrich Hoffman, Goodridge, president; Archie Wilson, Thief River Falls, vice president; Adolph Erickson, Grygla, Lenard W. Johnson, Roseau, and Dona Rock, Mentor, directors. Members of the main office staff are Harlow C. Johnson, Curtis Brandt, Beverly Sande and Debbie Hanson.

Restrictions On World Trade Can Hurt U.S. Farms

Many farmers could be forced out of business if U.S. agricultural exports are restricted, according to assistant secretary of agriculture Clarence Palmby, who spoke at the agricultural outlook conference in Washington, D.C.

"People in this country who advocate restrictive trade in agricultural commodities should bear in mind that if American agriculture is going to produce only for the domestic market, we'll need to remove about 70 million acres of cropland from production. This is in addition to acreage already idle under farm programs," Palmby said.

"Farmers would have to quit cropping 23 million acres of soybeans, 25 million acres of wheat and rice and 16 million acres of feedgrains if we can't sell the output of these acres to overseas markets," he said.

Although studies show the U.S. is no longer competitive in the production of many items such as motor vehicles, textiles and clothing, we can be extremely competitive in animal products, poultry and citrus fruits. "But we must work to reduce trade barriers by importing countries in order to remain competitive for agricultural products in the world trade market," Palmby warned.

Magnet Removes Debris On Roads

An inconspicuous operation contributing to trouble-free motoring on Minnesota highways is the use of a road magnet.

Last year nearly five tons of nails, bolts and iron fragments were removed from highways, according to G. H. Kolstad, chief of the road services section, state highway maintenance division.

It isn't all steel fastenings and auto parts which have dropped from moving vehicles. Some of the material yielded may be fragments of snowplow blades and other equipment used in highway maintenance.

In keeping the road and shoulders free of the iron bits, damage to vehicles and harm to their users is prevented, Kolstad explained.

The magnetic bar, which is mounted on the rear of a flatbed truck and positioned by a lifting device, is powered by a generator carried by the vehicle. The road magnet covered 5,795 miles of Minnesota highways last year. It is not used on frozen or damp surfaces.

Petroleum Plays Heavy Role In State's Economy

Petroleum plays a multimillion dollar role in Minnesota's economy. Nearly 24,000 Minnesotans work in the oil business and they add more than $110,000,000 annually in wages and salaries to Minnesota's gross product.

These and other facts are reported in a new study just released by the Minnesota Petroleum council. Donald C. Eichten, chairman of the organization stated that the information, which covers a broad spectrum of petroleum activities, is based on data compiled from industry and government sources.

Although Minnesota has no production, it does have three refineries which have a daily operating capacity of 151,500 barrels, Eichten commented.

"The crude oil capacity of these three refineries is greater than the combined capacities of the 18 operating refineries in Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, New Mexico, Oregon, Rhode Island and West Virginia," he declared.

He said that the annual rate of sales at Minnesota's 4,261 primary service stations amounts to $467,384,000. These sales, Eichten added, represents eight per cent of the total retail sales in the state.

The petroleum industry spokesman also cited other areas in which petroleum figures prominently.

Petroleum products move throughout the state in 2,909 miles of pipeline. The storage capacity of bulk plants, terminals and liquified petroleum gas facilities in Minnesota is 314,741,000 gallons, while annual dollar sales is $468,558,000.

The importance to the state of tax revenues from the petroleum industry and its products was also highlighted in the study.

Eichten noted that in fiscal 1970, Minnesota's gasoline tax of seven cents a gallon alone produced more than $122,880,000. "This, he said, "accounted for over 12 per cent of the state's total tax revenue from all sources."

It was also pointed out in the study that the annual consumption of major petroleum products in Minnesota in 1970 totaled 3,512,658,000 gallons. This is roughly 923 gallons for every man, woman and child in the state.

The 1,879,177,000 gallons of motor gasoline consumed in Minnesota in 1970 represents 1,075 gallons for every passenger car registered in the state.

Litter Cleanup In 1971 Cost State $411,951

If the litter picked up in 1971 by state highway department crews was stacked in one place, it would fill a 10-story building 100 feet square.

"That's a heap of a mess and a costly one," said Frank W. Kuhfeld, maintenance operations engineer, in citing a cost of $411,951 for de-littering the state's highway right-of-way.

Last year's trash pickup took 73,171 man hours and the debris filled 7,954 trucks with five-cubic-yard load capacity. The operations required 34,994 truck hours to haul the litter to dumps.

Noting that the 1971 cost was about $31,000 less than that for the previous year, Kuhfeld explained that it was the result of several situations: Rains, particularly in the fall, crews busy with other road maintenance activities, and help by volunteer groups in some areas.

"We all are sensitive to pollution. Hopefully, with most people conscientious in keeping our surroundings tidy and attractive, littering can be checked," Kuhfeld asserted. "Everyone can help by keeping travel trash in the car for disposal in receptacles at home, service stations and roadside rest areas."

State law carries a fine of up to $100 for offenders found guilty of littering.

There she goes . . . UNDERWAY at last! You can almost feel her confidence when she hits the water. But who knows what adventures await her on the Seven Seas? How many crucial tests must the captain face before she finally rests at a harbor of safety?

We're the captains of our own ships in the voyage through life. We begin with determined optimism. We have youth, ambition, determination. We have health and strength. But as we get "underway," we soon find ourselves faced with sudden trials and obstacles. It is in these moments of crisis that our faith and courage are challenged.

Just as the ship has its modern equipment and its lighthouses, so we too have a tower of direction and strength found in the Church. In the Church of Jesus Christ we find a lasting faith, guiding us into the calm harbor of ETERNAL life.

Escape To The Outdoors

Outdoor enjoyment begins on wheels for millions of families who own recreational vehicles such as these popular travel trailers. With these recreational vehicles, and a number of other types and sizes, home comfort rolls along wherever you go—across the nation or just into the next county. Many models of recreational vehicles use portable liquefied petroleum gas for cooking, heating water for galley and bath, and keeping food and beverages cold and safe in the gas refrigerator. During cool days and seasons, an LP-gas heater keeps the interior of the vehicle snug and warm. Versatile LP-gas also provides fuel for nighttime lighting. Dreams Come True In 28 Flavors

Howard D. Johnson, founder of Howard Johnson Company, and his son, Howard B. Johnson, chairman and president, sample some of the ice cream that has made the Company famous throughout the world. Occasion was the dedication of an inscribed marker to commemorate opening of Howard Johnson's first store (pictured) in 1925.

Howard D. Johnson borrowed $500 to take over operations of the store in Wollaston, Mass. His dream was to build a business "with a product I could call my own."

The product was ice cream, which he began making in the basement of the store. By doubling the usual butterfat content and using only quality ingredients, he developed "a superior product" — the beginning of the "28 Flavors" that became his trademark.

The following summer, Johnson operated a stand on Wollaston Beach and later opened a restaurant in Quincy, Mass. Later, to expand farther and faster, he worked out a deal with another local businessman who agreed to pay a fee and buy supplies from Johnson for the right to use his name on a restaurant.

That was the beginning of the franchise system that continues today. The restaurants are either operated by the Company or operated under a licensee agreement by independent owners.

Johnson's idea proved successful, and the chain of restaurants spread throughout New England, then south along the Atlantic seaboard to Florida. Later it moved westward — and today it extends from Maine to California.

In 1954 the Company opened the first of its coast-to-coast chain of motor lodges in Savannah, Ga. Included are a number of multi-story motor lodges in downtown areas of such cities as New York, Washington, Cleveland, Detroit, Miami and Pittsburgh.

In 1955 the Company began to package its food products for sale to retail stores. Today Howard Johnson's canned and frozen grocery products — from clam chowder to entrees to cakes — are sold in supermarkets and grocery stores in major marketing areas.

Another division of the Company is a chain of domestic restaurants named Red Coach Grills. These luxury dining places are decorated in American Colonial style and feature lobster, prime steaks and bonded liquors.

Still another division of the Company is a chain of restaurants called Ground Round. These restaurants feature informal family dining with a limited menu.

Today, there are 871 Howard Johnson's restaurants and 438 motor lodges operating in the United States and Canada.

"Perhaps the greatest social service that can be rendered by anybody to the country and to mankind is to bring up a family. But here again, because there is nothing to sell, there is a very general disposition to regard a married woman's work as no work at all, and to take it as a matter of course that she should not be paid for it." —George Bernard Shaw

Another Viewpoint

Our area of Minnesota is devoid of lakes of any appreciable size or depth, but we do have a fair amount of public land. There is also a certain amount of marsh which contains water on some occasions and none on others. And there are people who would prefer to see all of it bulldozed, drained and put into cultivation.

For years we have heard that acquisition of public land by private individuals is in the best interests of the communities involved because private ownership will broaden the tax base. Governmental agencies and representatives who exercise control over these lands are criticized for their activities, purposes and objectives.

And while this area can not be entirely compared to the lake region of Minnesota, there are sufficient similarities to warrant consideration. Writing in the Detroit Lakes Tribune, Doug Hirsch brings a new viewpoint into focus regarding public lands and waters. Here is what he says:

We have expressed our disagreement many times with the theory that the more state and county land that is put back on the tax rolls, the more taxes will go down for the rest of the people. That theory has been exposed to hold many, many holes, and may actually work in reverse.

We're talking more about the wooded and marginal areas of Becker County that are being put on the auction block at the request of land speculators, adjacent landowners, etc. The first thing you know somebody wants the township to build a road into the newly acquired public land, or a trailer house with several young children that must be schooled is set up. More development and more governmental services require more tax dollars, and therein lies our problem. If our oublic officials would sit down and figure out tax benefit against tax loss they would see the folly of selling much of our public lands. Taxes go down only when spending decreases. It's that simple.

A case in point could be Round Lake Township, which has the highest or next to the highest amount of land in county, state and non-taxable private hands. And yet the township has the next to the lowest mill rate in Becker County.

One only has to look at the most developed, heavy industrialized parts of our country. Are they without tax problems? Of course not, and, in fact, most are in deeper trouble than we are.

We wonder if the state and county officials who used to dispose of public lands along lakes would follow that practice today if they could see the growing pollution of those waters from wall - to - wall cabins and the large numbers of tax dollars required to clean up those waters.

The fact is that many of our federal, state and county lands in the eastern and northern parts of our county have had the effect of increasing our tax base by supporting the growing recreational industry, as well as providing a source of timber supply for our loggers.

Our public officials must look to the future when the demand for recreational lands and clean waters will increase tremendously. Those counties which were environmentally minded and retained their public lands will be in the forefront to receive the benefits of this natural resource.

All our officials must do is look at the areas of Minnesota and the nation without public lands and watch them scramble to purchase this land at tremendously high prices. We might be in that same pickle someday if we do not have the foresight to retain our public lands.

Can we really look our children in the eye and tell them that all we're going to leave them are black fields, stripped forests, "no trespassing" signs, wall-to-wall lakeshore ugliness and ribbons of sterile highways?

Girl Scout Week

Girl Scout Week, to be commemorated March 12-18, marks the 60th Anniversary of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. The purpose of the Girl Scouts' organization remains unchanged from the day it was founded by Juliette Gordon Low in 1912. It seeks to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service so that they may become happy and resourceful citizens.

Membership is open to all girls from seven through 17 years of age who accept the Girl Scout promise and laws. Total membership is now nearly four million. This includes 3,250,000 girls and 670,000 adults. Since 1912, there have been almost 32 million members (25 million girls and 7 million adults). The adult members serve as leaders, program consultants or as members of boards of directors, finance committees, camp committees, troop commmittees or in other positions of voluntary leadership.

During Girl Scout Week the public has an opportunity to become better acquainted with its Girl Scouts and their leaders. It will be reminded that here is a group of nearly four million citizens embodying the highest qualities of character and idealism. They represent the homemakers and community leaders that will have much to do with shaping tomorrow's America. Congratulations and best wishes to Girl Scouts of the United States of America on their 60th birthday.

To Non-Subscribers

It couldn't possibly happen, but this is a fictitious account of what might have happened as published in the Farm Wife News magazine and listed as a warning to non-subscribers.

A man who was too cheap to subscribe to his hometown newspaper sent his little boy to borrow his neighbor's copy. In his haste the boy ran over an $80 hive of bees and in 10 minutes he looked like a warty squash.

His father ran to his assistance and, failing to notice the barbed wire fence, ran into that and cut a hole in his anatomy as well as ruining a $10 pair of trousers. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and killed herself eating green corn.

Hearing a racket, the wife ran out, upsetting a four-gallon churn of cream into a basket of chicks, drowning the entire batch. In her haste she dropped a $135 set of false teeth which the family dog buried, thinking it was a new type of bone.

The baby, having been left alone, crawled through the spilled cream and into the parlor, ruining a $250 carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, a stray dog broke up 11 setting hens, the calves got out and chewed the tails off four fine shirts on the clothes line and the cat had a batch of kittens.

All just to save 10 cents, and in this case the poor farmer never did get to read that day's edition.

Even a yarn like that one should have some sort of moral. A year's subscription to the Times is only $6.75 in the trade area, and that's a real bargain any time.

Nobody Asked, But . . .

Fascinating reading is to be found in Guinness Book of World Records, for it contains trivia which most people wouldn't even think about. Nobody asked us, but here are some of the items of information contained in that book:

Robert Earl Hughes was a big man around Monticello, Ill. He weighed 1,041 pounds when he died as the heaviest man in the world and was buried in a piano crate. But Lucia Zarate, a Mexican midget, is the lightest person on record. She weighed only 13 pounds at age 20.

Sports fans might be interested in knowing that the shortest touchdown pass on record was thrown by Eddie LaBaron in a Dallas - Washington game on Oct. 9, 1960. That two-inch toss was good for three points an inch.

A sports record that has stood since 1900 is a log-rolling match between Allan Stewart and Joe Oliver. Stewart finally dislodged Oliver from the 24-inch floating log after three hours and 15 minutes of battle.

Want to set a new record in something? How about egg throwing? The current world record for throwing and catching a fresh hen's egg intact is 190 feet, 10 inches. Melon seed spitting champ is Craig Jones who set the world mark of 33 feet, 3½ inches, at Pardeeville, Wis., in 1969. Women's rolling pin throwing champ is an Oklahoma lass who tossed the pin 139 feet.

Greatest wheat yield on record, farmers will be interested in knowing, is 169.9 bushels per acre on 27.7 acres on Yoshino Brothers Farms at Quincy, Wash.

If you think that's a lot of bull, consider a Hereford - Shorthorn steer named "Old Ben" which is now mounted and on display at Kokomo, Ind. He attained a length of 16 feet, two inches from nose to tail, a girth of 13 feet, eight inches, and height of six feet, four inches at the shoulder. His top weight was 4,720 pounds.

Gourmets would cringe at the feats of Stephen Nel who ate 50 bananas in 10 minutes, Georges Grogniet who ate 44 boiled eggs in 30 minutes, Philip Yazdizk who ate 77 hamburgers at a single sitting and Charles Winfield who swallowed 210 live goldfish.

Then there was Johann Ketzler of Germany who consumed an entire roast ox in 42 days, undoubtedly the first person to give rise to the saying: "I can't believe I ate the whole thing!"

Borrowed Nonsense

One husband to another: "What do you mean, you have to think twice before leaving your wife alone at night?"

"First," the husband replied, "I have to think of a reason to go out. Then I have to think up a reason why she can't go with me."

Economic Stabilization

Questions and Answers

Internal Revenue Service

Q—What price controls are in effect on so-called "points" paid by residential purchasers?

A—The "point" system is a method of adjusting interest rates and, therefore, of compensating the mortgage dealer. Since, however, the variation of points is principally a function of interest rate changes, and since interest rates thus far have not been subject to Price Commission regulation, neither have points.

Q—When do the prenotification and certification requirements relating to retroactive pay adjustments become effective?

A—On Jan. 27, 1972, the date the regulations relating to retroactive pay adjustments were published in the "Federal Register."

Q—I employ less than 5,000 employees in my factory and I want to make a retroactive pay adjustment of less than seven per cent for my employees because the increases were called for in an employment contract negotiated before Aug. 15, 1972 but were not paid because of the freeze. Can I begin making retroactive payments immediately?

A—Yes. If the pay adjustment will be seven per cent or less, payment may be made immediately. However, you must certify by letter to your Internal Revenue service district director within 20 days after payment that the requirements of the new Pay Board regulations on retroactivity have been met. In addition, the letter must include: (1) the date on which the increase was agreed upon; (2) the number of employees involved; (3) the date it was scheduled to take effect; (4) the reason for not paying the increase as attributable to economic stabilization controls; and (5) the percentage of the increase.

Q—Do retailers with annual sales of $100,000 or more but less than $200,000 still have to post a sign announcing the availability of base price information?

A—Yes. These retailers are still required to post at least one sign (minimum 22" by 28") announcing the availability of base price information and must make such information available upon request.

Q—Is a security deposit considered rent under the stabilization regulations?

A—No. A deposit of money with a landlord by a tenant as a security for the faithful performance of the terms of the lease and which is refundable upon such performance is excluded from the definition of rent, unless security deposits are considered rent under local law.

Q—Does an increase or decrease in overtime pay to any employee due to working more or less hours at the existing overtime rate consitute a "pay adjustment?"

A—A bona fide increase or decrease in overtime pay to an employee who is working more or fewer hours at the existing overtime pay is not subject to 5.5 per cent limitation because the rate of compensation to the employee remains the same. However, should the employer adjust the work day or overtime in an attempt to circumvent the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, as amended, this adjustment would be subject to the 5.5 per cent Phase II limitation.

Q—Will raw agricultural products, such as fresh fruit and vegetables, be excluded from the standards for prices set by the Price Commission?

A—Yes, just as during the freeze, raw agricultural products will be excluded.

Q—How will prices and wages be controlled by the Price Commission and the Pay Board?

A—The Price Commission and the Pay Board have published standards and criteria for the control of all prices and wages which will be covered during the post-freeze program. In addition, the economy will be divided into three parts or tiers for different surveillance and reporting procedures.

Certain large firms and collective bargaining units that are of critical importance for the control of inflation will be required to notify the Board or Commission in advance of proposed wage or price increases.

Other large economic units will be required to report periodically on their prices, employee compensation, and other matters as may be specified.

The behavior of prices and wages in the remainder of the economy, comprising the largest number of economic units (usually smaller firms), will be monitored by spot-checks and investigations of complaints by the Internal Revenue Service.

Q—Are dividends and interest subject to legal restraints under the Economic Stabilization Program?

A—No. However, the Committee on Interest and Dividends, established by the President, will formulate and execute a program for obtaining voluntary restraints on selected interest rates. The Committee will also continue the voluntary program for the restraint of dividend payments, subject to possible changes of standards and coverage.

The President has asked Congress for amendments to the Economic Stabilization Act to provide stand-by authority to impose mandatory control of interest rates and dividend payments. However, the use of this authority is not expected to be necessary.

Q—How long will the second phase of the Economic Stabilization Program last?

A—No time limit is being set. The objective is to end the program as soon as possible, but it will be kept in operation until the pattern of sharply increasing prices and wages has been broken. It will be ended when stability has been restored to the economy. As we approach the goal, controls of particular sectors may be removed or relaxed when that action is consistent with the general objectives of the program and will assist the transition to price stability. A task force of the Cost of Living Council has been established with a continuing responsibility to recommend steps to insure that the program is not unnecessarily prolonged.

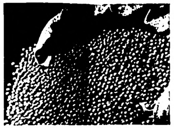
Soybeans Get New Feed Grain Incentive



Soybeans have become 1972's "Opportunity Crop"—with strong market demand, and probably the highest prices to farmers since 1947-48.

Farmers will have the profitable option to plant soybeans and still participate in a new high-paying Feed Grain Program this spring. At the same time, they'll be helping to reduce surplus corn production.

The new Feed Grain option offers farmers an important opportunity to boost 1972 cash returns. With soybeans in strong demand for the 1972-73 crop year – and with prices to farmers ranging near $3.00 per bushel – this new option can become an added source of cash revenue to corn/sorghum producers.

Here's how the new USDA Feed Grain option works: Corn producers, after diverting the required 25 percent of 1972 Feed Grain base acreage to qualify for basic payments, may divert an additional 10 percent.

This added voluntary 10 percent set-aside would net farmers a USDA payment of 80 cents per bushel for projected corn production, and 76 cents per bushel for sorghum.

Major qualification for payment on the added 10 percent set-aside is this: The farmer must agree that for each acre in the 10 percent set-aside, he will reduce by two acres his 1972 corn plantings—below his 1971 level.

In other words, if Farmer "A" has a 300-acre Feed Grain base in 1972, he must set-aside 75 acres to qualify for program payments. Then if he wishes to use the new option, he must set-aside an additional 10 percent—or 30 acres. At the same time, he must reduce his 1972 corn or sorghum acreage by twice this latter amount – or 60 acres – below his 1971 planting level.

Half of these additional acres taken from 1972 corn/sorghum production (30 acres) would have to remain diverted, but Farmer "A" could plant the other half (30 acres) in soybeans. These 30 acres might produce 1,050 bushels of soybeans (at 35 bushels per acre) which might return $3,150 (at $3.00 per bushel).

The new option adds even more opportunity for 1972 soybean production, industry and USDA officials agree. Official sign-up period for the 1972 Feed Grain Program option ends March 10. Details are available at local ASCS offices.

March came in like a lion, and there were still traces of him (the lion) yet on March 2nd as only 11 people made their way to the Center for the Senior Citizens weekly get-together. This included Irvin and Oscar J. Who were coffee guests. The other nine were ambitious workers, as a lot of work seemed to be accomplished. Another quilt was completed and stitching was continued on the blue blocks, material was cut for sewing pillow cases, two sets of sofa pillows, a red and a beige set were made from a plush material. This was the first try at using this material, also worked on ripping covering off some green Arctic scraps. It will be fun to have a different color of work with besides lavender and black. Ella gave the Center some pieces for quilt making. Something new has been added to decorate the Center—a smile plaque.

Golden Sesame Buns

Hot, home made yeast breads always have a special something, and Golden Sesame Buns are no exception.

Crisp and crunchy on the outside, light and airy on the inside, Golden Sesame Buns may tempt your dinner guests and family away from the main dish — they're that good! These chewy, crusty rolls — generously sprinkled with sweet, nutty, sesame seeds — taste best when served warm from the oven. Add lots of melting butter, jam, honey or peanut butter. But the rolls may also be baked in advance, frozen and reheated just before serving.

Be sure to use enriched flour for all your baking. Enrichment guarantees nutrients essential for good health: the B vitamins, niacin, thiamine and riboflavin, plus the mineral, iron.

24 rolls

6 1/2 to 7 1/2 cups enriched flour*	1/2 cup sugar
1 package dry yeast	1 tablespoon salt
2 cups water	2 eggs
1/2 cup oil	Sesame seeds

Stir together 3 cups flour and yeast. Heat water, oil, sugar and salt over low heat only until warm, stirring to blend. Add liquid ingredients to flour-yeast mixture, and beat until smooth, about 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Blend in 1 egg. Add 1 cup flour and beat on medium speed 1 minute or 150 strokes by hand. Stir in more flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface and knead until smooth and satiny, about 8 to 10 minutes. Shape into ball and place in lightly greased bowl, turning to grease all sides. Cover and let rise in warm place (80 to 85°) until doubled, about 1½ hours. Punch down. Divide dough into 24 equal pieces; shape each into smooth ball. Place on greased baking sheets. Let stand uncovered at room temperature until doubled, about 2 hours. Beat remaining egg and brush over buns. Sprinkle generously with sesame seeds. Bake in preheated 400° oven 20 to 30 minutes, or until done.

*Spoon flour into dry measuring cup; level. Do not scoop.

NOTE: If self-rising flour is used, omit salt.

University Plans For Disasters And Emergencies

To protect the nearly 60,000 students, staff, and faculty members on the Twin Cities campus in the event of disaster, two university staff members have developed an Emergency Response Team (ERT) program.

The new program was developed by Wallace Caryl, university civil defense coordinator, and Robert Guthmann, former university instructor of health and safety education now at the University of Nebraska.

"University civil defense does not mean preparing just for nuclear disasters—after all, the chances of that are remote—but planning and organizing for natural disasters and everyday emergencies," Caryl said in a recent interview.

ERT relies on experts and personnel within the university to provide information and instruction to others in the university to help them deal with emergencies.

First, Identify Problem

For example, because James Condie, housing office director was concerned about student safety in the dormitories, safety engineers were called in to train head residents and resident advisors on fire prevention and fighting and on how to get residents out of the halls safely.

Because the university police department wants updated medical training, an instructor of health and safety education will instruct the officers in emergency medical care. (More than 300 university people have received first-aid training since the start of the school year last September.)

"What we try to do," Caryl said, "is to identify a problem, devise a program, and then package it using university people as instructors."

As a result, ERT has such resource people as university architects and architecture professors who can offer advice on the best ways to design a safe building, members of the police department bomb squad who can explain bomb scare procedures, environmental health and safety engineers who can help solve sanitation problems, and drug information experts who have developed a drug first-aid program for recognizing and treating drug-users in an emergency situation. Caryl himself offers instruction in tornado procedures.

"Although there are basic steps to take in a particular emergency, we try to individualize the program to the specific setting," Caryl said. "For example, do the residence hall counselors know where the fire extinguishers are in their halls, as well as how to use them? Do staff members in university offices know how to get shelters in their buildings if a tornado strikes?

"Our interest is in emergency preparedness. If we are prepared, we may be able to limit the problems during an emergency and eliminate duplication of efforts.

If People Stranded

To illustrate the university's preparation for emergencies, Caryl explained how people would be cared for should a disaster, such as a flood or a tornado, isolate them at the university.

"Drinking water is available in every building on campus, either in storage tanks or in the pipes. Even if there weren't water, contingency plans with state dairy companies call for milk trucks to bring in fresh water, in wax cartons, from deep wells in outstate Minnesota.

"Food, first aid equipment, and radiation kits are stored on campus. We can also provide for emergency sanitation. Supplemental plans are available should these preparations not be enough.

"All of this is to help us better cope with problems should they arise. We hope they never do," Caryl said.

Child Restraints For Autos Must Meet Standards

Auto owners shopping for child restraint harnesses or seats to provide protection in a crash should consider only those that meet federal standards, the Minnesota department of public safety advised today.

All child restraints for children eight and nine months to four or five years in age, manufactured after April 1, 1972, must meet federal standards. However, there are restraints on the market manufactured before that date which may or may not meet the standards. Those complying with federal rules include detailed installation instructions and a label showing the date of manufacture and minimum and maximum weight and height limitations for the user.

The importance of these protections is underscored by the fact that in the past 10 years 10,000 children under the age of four years were killed in highway accidents, most of them because they were not protected at all, but many of them because they were secured by restraints that afforded no protection. Now that the standard is effective, parents should take advantage of it.

"We do not yet have standards for infant car beds and carriers, though the department of transportation is working on them. Meanwhile, parents looking for real protection for infants up to eight and nine months of age should keep in mind the following points:

"Holding the child in your lap is no protection, even at low speeds.

"The best carriers are designed to anchor to the regular car lap belts. Carriers that merely hook over the back of the seat are not acceptable.

"The carrier back should be high enough to protect the infant's head.

"Restraint belts should be 1½ inches wide.

"Carrier should be lined with energy-absorbing materials.

"Carriers designed to face backwards afford the greatest frontal protection.

"The car bed should be positioned crosswise of the vehicle with the infant's head toward the center and held in place by the regular seat belts. It should be well padded, deep enough, and with netting or straps across the top to prevent the child from being ejected."

Solems Selected As Farmer-Homemaker

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Just outside the kitchen window a pair of alert chickadees picked at seeds and suet in the suspended feeder. A little further down the hill below the window a blue jay and a smartly-colored hairy woodpecker traded turns at another feeder. Inside the kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem watched the antics of their feathered guests in appreciation of their visit.

Next to the youngest of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Solem, Alfred has lived on the farm northwest of Thief River Falls since he was born and took over operation of it in 1929. His wife, the former Rebecca Halvorson, has shared life on the farm since their marriage in 1935. This year they were selected as Valley Farmer and Homemaker for Marshall county and honored at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston.

"It sure was nice to be selected, but we haven't done anything to deserve it," Alfred said with typical modesty. "We have wonderful neighbors here and so many of them are more deserving than we are. In many ways we have been fortunate and we should count our blessings for a good life."

The farm belies Alfred's humility, however, and his industry is known by his many

TWO VISITORS to the feeder suspended outside the kitchen window are watched with interest by Mrs. Alfred Solem of rural Thief River Falls. The chickadees are regular visitors at the feeder, as are nuthatches and downy woodpeckers. Another feeder further down the hill attracts blue jays, hairy woodpeckers, squirrels and other small forms of wildlife.

Seek Blood Bank Members

Northern Blood Bank, Inc., will join with the Business and Professional Women's club of Thief River Falls Thursday in a membership drive for the blood bank. Registration for blood bank membership will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Membership in the organization is open to any normally healthy person between the ages of 18 and 65 inclusive whose blood is acceptable for transfusions. A $2 life membership fee is payable upon registration.

At the city auditorium on Thursday, Business and Professional Women's club members will assist prospective members in filling out application cards for membership in the Northern Blood bank. Technicians will also be on hand to draw blood samples for typing at the blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital services.

"Because of the constant movement of people into Thief River Falls and surrounding area, we are cooperating in the blood bank membership drive again this year," stated Mrs. Si Hanson, chairman of the registration for the BPW club. "We feel that membership has much to offer the individual donor and his or her family as well as providing service to others who need this life-giving fluid."

Membership in the blood bank carries with it the responsibility to donate blood upon notification by the blood bank. Except for rare blood types and possible extreme emergencies, most donors will be notified in advance of their scheduled blood donation. Normally a donor will not be DONATING BLOOD is a simple procedure in the blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls. Northern Blood Bank association, a volunteer organization, is currently conducting a membership campaign through cooperation of the local Business and Professional Women's club. Persons may join on Thursday at the city auditorium from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mrs. Si Hanson, chairman of the registration for the BPW club, is shown at left in the above photo. Cathy Vigness simulates a donor while Mrs. Cal (Diane) Bradley is the laboratory technician. With two new reclining chairs provided for the blood bank laboratory by the Northern Blood Bank, Inc., blood can be donated in total comfort. A vacuum assists in the blood flow which is collected in a plastic bag in the container attached to the chair in the lower right portion of the picture. The average donor can contribute his pint unit of blood in 10 minutes. More photos of the donor procedure are included in today's issue of the Times on page 3.

Seven Hospitalized After Two-Car Collision Friday

Seven area people, including a Thief River Falls mother and three of her children, were hospitalized Friday following a two-car collision on highway 32 about five miles south of St. Hilaire. The mishap took place on an icy and partially snow-covered curve on an otherwise generally clear highway.

Driver of the northbound car was Mrs. David (Marlene) Beedy of Thief River Falls. Passengers were her nine - year - old twin sons Mark and Michael and six - year - old son Craig. Mrs. Beedy and Michael are hospitalized at Northwestern hospital here with lacerations and contusions, according to hospital officials. Mark suffered a concussion and Craig received a fractured jaw, concussion and lacerated spleen. Mark and Craig were transferred the same day to the Deaconess hospital in Grand Forks because of the head injuries and both were reported as improving today.

Driver of the southbound car was Mrs. Henry Desotell, 68, of Red Lake Falls. Her passengers were Rose LaCoursiere, 58, and Jeanette Audette, 53, both of Red Lake Falls. They were taken to the hospital in Red Lake Falls by private vehicle before the state highway patrol arrived.

Mrs. Desotell was transferred to a Grand Forks hospital and Mrs. LaCoursiere to a Fargo hospital. Mrs. Audette remains hospitalized at Red Lake Falls. Extent of injuries and condition of the persons involved is not known by the highway patrol which is conducting the investigation. Dr. David Mersy told the Times this morning that all are still hospitalized but would not reveal extent of injuries or current condition to anyone but members of the family.

VEHICLE driven by Mrs. Dave (Marlene) Beedy of Thief River Falls in which she and her sons Michael, Mark and Craig injured, is pictured as it was on the shoulder of highway 32 following the collision Friday with another car.

THREE PERSONS including Mrs. Henrey (Elizabeth) Desotell, who was driving, and Rose LaCoursiere and Jeanette Audette, all of Red Lake Falls, was injured when this vehicle collided with the car driven by Mrs. Beedy.

Pine To Prairie Girl Scouts Get Grant For Trek

Pine to Prairie Girl Scout council has been awarded $1,000 by the DeWitt Wallace Reader's Digest scholarship fund for a patrol of girls to participate July 26 to August 12 in the annual Wyoming Trek.

The council, which has about 5,000 Girl Scout members, covers 34 North Dakota and Minnesota counties.

Wallace, co-chairman of the Reader's Digest association, established the special scholarship program last year for Girl Scouts. The program is designed to assist girls and their leaders who could not otherwise afford to attend the Wyoming Trek at National Center West.

The trek gives girls from throughout the United States an opportunity to participate in primitive camping activities at the Girl Scout center, which covers 13,000 acres.

PREPARING part of a window display are Sandra Hoff (left) and Debbie Fearn of Washington Junior Scout Troop 121. The window display is part of the goal of telling people about Girl Scouting. Troop 121's display was placed in a window of Poppler's March 11 and will remain through Girl Scout week this week.

Girl Scout Week Noted With Local Observance

Girl Scouts in the United States will celebrate the 60th anniversary of Girl scouting March 12-March 18 during National Girl Scout Week, and local girls and leaders will be participating in the observance.

Theme for this year will be "Scouting Around the World." Some of the displays will depict the cultural backgrounds of Girl Guides in the 87 countries that belong to the World Federation of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts.

Following is a list of display locations and the groups preparing them.

Girl Scouting began on March 12, 1912 with a gathering of a small group of girls in Savannah, Ga. at the house of Juliet Gordon Low, who said she had, ". . .something for the girls of Savannah and all America and all the world." The "something" was Girl scouting.

Since then there have been nearly 32 million members of Girl

Kenneth Fellings At Home Here Following Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Felling are at home in this city at 225½ North Kendall following an exchange of vows at St. Joseph's Catholic church at Brooks.

The bride is the former Miss Jane Ruth Rantanen, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Rantanen of Middle River. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. LaVarne Felling of Brooks.

Rev. Henry Carriere officiated at the double ring ceremony. Diane Delage, a friend of the couple, was the organist. She played the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional and also accompanied Charlene DuChamp, friend of the groom, as she sang, "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," and "Gift of Love."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, Arne Rantanen. She was attired in a floor-length gown which she had designed and made of white moire velvet. The gown was styled with a gathered skirt and fitted bodice featuring a raised waistline and scooped neckline trimmed with lace. Pearl buttons accented the front of the bodice and secured the cuffs of her full length sleeves. Her floor-length veil fell from a small velvet cap. She carried a large bouquet of baby mums and holly centered with a corsage of red roses.

Attending the bride were her sisters: Mrs. Clayton Troskey of Greenbush as matron of honor, Mrs. Armand Westlund of Strathcona as bridesmatron and Miss Mary Rantanen of Bemidji as bridesmaid. The matron of honor was attired in a deep red crepe gown, styled like the bride's, and trimmed with red lace and pearl buttons. The gowns worn by the other attendants were also of red crepe but were fashioned with long fitted sleeves, trimmed with lace at the wrists. All wore wreaths of holly in their hair and each carried three long-stemmed white roses accented with holly.

Serving as flower girls were Paula Rantanen of Middle River and Michelle Korte of St. Paul, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively. Their gowns, styled like the attendants', were of red crepe with jewel necklines, trimmed with lace. To accent their attire, they wore holly wreaths in their hair and each carried a wicker basket filled with holly.

Jim Piche of Brooks, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were friends of the groom: Roger Paradis of Brooks and John Wangler of Thief River Falls. Ushers were Kenny Waldahl and Milo Westerlund of Thief River Falls, friends of the groom. All wore black tuxedos with red and white rose boutonnieres to correspond with the flowers carried by the bride and her attendants.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Rantanen wore a black velvet dress with black accessories and a corsage of white rose buds, red carnations and holly. The mother of the groom wore a pink dress accented with black accessories. Her corsage was similar to the one worn by the mother of the bride.

Special guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Kruger, grandparents and godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Felling, grandparents and godparents of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Robidoux, grandparents of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Kruger, uncle and aunt of the bride, as host and hostess. Miss Cheryl Felling, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book as Mrs. Dan Jesh, aunt of the groom, served the punch.

The three tiered angel-food wedding cake, baked and decorated by Eleanore Rantanen, aunt of the bride, centered the serving table. The cake was decorated with red roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Nilo Rantanen and Mrs. Kenneth Korte, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Mrs. Page Jorland and Mrs. S. H. Korte, aunts of the bride and groom.

Mrs. Tom Hovda of Roseau was the bride's personal attendant. At the gift table were Mrs. Lillian Lockwood, aunt of the bride; Delyne Felling, sister of the groom, and Ann Rantanen, cousin of the bride. Waitresses were Carol and Mary Neyes, cousins of the groom, and Rita Rantanen, cousin of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of the Middle River high school and the groom was graduated from the Plummer high school. Both are employed in this city by Arctic Enterprises, Inc. Photo, Rich Adams

Legion Auxiliary Gives Donations; Plans Activities

Donations were made, candidates for Girls State were approved, and reports from committee chairmen were given at the regular meeting of the American Legion auxiliary held Monday evening at the Legion club rooms. President Mrs. Erwin Ferber presided at the meeting.

In the donations made, the unit voted to give $10 to the Radio Free Europe fund and $10 to CARE. The latter amount is to be used for the health center in Kenya, a project of the American Legion auxiliary. A report of conditions in Kenya and what is being done by the auxiliary to assist those peoples in helping themselves, was given at the February meeting by Foreign Relations chairman, Mrs. Richard Contos.

Following a report by Child Welfare chairman Mrs. L. W. Larson, telling of the needs of two veteran sons, who are foster children, the members voted to allow funds for the children's needs.

The candidates for Girls State, presented by chairman Mrs. Silas Hanson, were approved. Public announcement of the selections made, together with the publishing of pictures, will be at a later date.

Other reports were given by Mrs. Vern Quam, chairman of the Gift of Life program, and Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen, legislative chairman. Mrs. Quam explained the Gift of Life program and stated that a registration campaign has been scheduled, at which time volunteers may sign up, donating various organs after death. The event will be held March 16 at the City auditorium.

Mrs. Sagmoen's report included the Veterans Education Bill HR 10432 and a request that Memorial day and Veterans day be returned to the original dates set for these historical observances. She stated that if the Veterans Education bill is passed it will increase education benefits equal to those received by veterans who served in World War II and the Korean war. She requested that all members write letters to senators and representative asking that Memorial day and Veterans day be returned to May 30 and November 11, respectively.

The program also included a report by Allen Paul regarding pollution caused by certain soaps and detergents. Paulson asked that each housewife write the soap compaines asking improvement in their products by decreasing the phosphate content.

Plans were also made for the Legion birthday dinner. President Ferber asked that all members attend the event.

Special guests at the meeting were Art Bossman, district vice commander Olger Olson and past district president Mrs. Olson, all of Warren. Bossman spoke to the group. His topic was "Gifts for Hospitalized Veterans". A free-will offering was given to aid in that program.

Lunch was served following the business session. Hostesses were Mrs. Allen Paulson and Mrs. Leonard Rondorf.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Ervin Olson
Rural Thief River Falls

Friday is St. Patrick's day, a day that Irish all over the world commemorate St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland. With all the unrest in Ireland, one can't help but wonder if the people of that country will observe the event.

After reading, seeing on television, and hearing about all the bigotry in the country, one can be thankful for each day that we, in this area, are permitted to live in harmony with peoples of all nationalities and faiths.

To all the Irish in the area, Kitchen Karnival extends the Old Irish Blessing, "May the road rise to meet you, May the wind be always at your back; May the sun shine warm upon your face, the rains fall soft upon your fields and until we meet again. . .may God hold you in the palm of His Hand."

Today's recipe comes from Mrs. Ervin Olson of rural Thief River Falls. It is one of her favorites.

Chocolate Syrup Brownies

1 cup sugar
1 stick margarine
4 eggs
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 large can chocolate syrup

Method: Combine all ingredients and beat two or three minutes. Add chopped walnuts, if desired. Bake in a greased 9x13 inch cake pan in a 350 degree oven for 25 minutes.

Topping

1 and one-third cups sugar
6 tablespoons milk
6 tablespoons margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chocolate chips
Walnuts, if desired

Method: Combine milk, sugar and margarine and boil 35 seconds after it comes to a boil. Remove from heat, add vanilla and chocolate chips. Beat until spreading consistency. Add walnuts and spread.

In observance of St. Patrick's day and for those that like a touch of mint with their chocolate, make a thin powdered sugar frosting, tinted green and flavored with mint. Drizzle the glaze over the chocolate topping.

The Olsons live four miles West on Highway 1 and ¼ mile north. They have two sons: Brent, 6½ and Tron, 7¼, both attending Washington school in this city, and a daughter, Tricia, eight months. Mrs. Olson enjoys bowling and is a member of a team. In addition to farming, Mr. Olson is employed by Arctic Enterprises. The Olsons are members of Trinity Lutheran church.

UPON ARRIVAL at the blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital services, the prospective donor fills out a donor history card. Cathy Vigness, hospital employee who joined the blood bank last summer, simulates the procedure involved by donors in this photo sequence. Mrs. Cal (Diane) Bradley is the technician and looking on is Mrs. Si Hanson, chairman of the blood bank membership drive for the Business and Professional Women's club.

A BLOOD SAMPLE is drawn by the technician from a small puncture in a finger tip and checked for hemoglobin (iron content) in the lab. The donor then reclines on a comfortable contour chair while the technician sterilizes a portion of an arm and makes a small site puncture of a vein. Donation of a unit of blood takes about 10 minutes for the average donor.

WHOLE BLOOD can be kept for up to 21 days in a refrigerated form. One of the labeled packets is shown to Cathy and Mrs. Hanson by Mrs. Bradley. Donated units are re-typed, checked for hepatitis and syphilis and screened for rare antibodies before going into the blood bank. In addition to use as whole blood for transfusions, the units can provide plasma or pack cells for other medical use. There is no synthetic replacement for blood.

A CUP OF COFFEE, fruit juice or other liquid is given to blood bank donors after donating blood at Northwestern hospital services' blood bank laboratory. Donors are requested not to eat for four hours before donating blood and are retained at the blood bank for a short time after donating to replenish the body fluid.

Large Percentage Of Farmers Join In Farm Program

Minnesota feed grain producers came into county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) offices in record numbers to enroll in the 1972 feed grain program during the fourth week of a five week sign-up period.

Enrollment jumped from 37,681 farms signed during the first three weeks of sign-up to 60,057 at the end of the fourth week. The signed farms represent 46 per cent of the total eligible farms in the state.

After four weeks of sign-up feed grain producers have signed up for 1.5 million acres of set-aside acreage. They have offered an additional 110,479 acres of optional set-aside acreage.

Signed farms have a feed grain base acreage of 4.7 million acres. That is 54 per cent of the 8.6 million acre feed grain base on all eligible farms in the state.

Enrollment figures for the last week of sign-up that ended March 10 will be available next week. A final sign-up report will be made at a later date.

In Minnesota 23,389 farms were enrolled in the 1972 wheat program at the end of our weeks of the five week period of sign up. This amounts to 49 per cent of the state's total eligible wheat farms.

Over 9,000 farms were enrolled during the fourth week of sign up which showed a considerable increase in the pace of producers signing up. During the first three weeks 14,216 farms had been signed.

Wheat acreage set-aside on enrolled farms after four weeks of sign up shows 215,624 acres.

Sign up period for the 1972 wheat program ended March 10. A sign up progress report will be made next week based on five weeks of the sign-up period. A final report will be issued later.

Clay Co. Farm Leader to Accept Endorsement

Leaders of volunteers urging Clay county farmer Merlyn Valan to run for Congress announced they have been assured Valan will accept the Republican edorsement for the 7th District Congressional race if it is tendered him at the district GOP convention.

One of the three members of the Minnesota Agriculture Stablization and Conservation service (ASCS) committee, Valan is unable to campaign actively himself for the endorsement either at county party conventions being held this month and early April or at the April 15 district COP convention in Fergus Falls, said Mrs. Em Laskey, a coordinator of the volunteer effort.

Valan, 45, who has farmed all his life in his native Clay county, was given his first two appointments to the state body by former Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin and was reappointed last January by Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

Officers Arrest Parole Violator Wanted In Fla.

Red Lake county authorities were assisted by officers from Pennington county and the police chiefs of Oklee and Plummer, March 9, when they apprehended Duane A. Currie who has been wanted for two years in Polk county for violating parole and in Lee county, Florida on a grand theft charge.

Acting on information received earlier in the day, officers from local law enforcement agencies were looking for Currie about 8:35 p.m. when they received a request for assistance from Allen Morkin, chief of police in Oklee, who said he was pursuing a vehicle in which the fugitive was believed to be a passenger.

When the vehicle had been stopped it was learned that Currie was not in it. Information received from the occupants, however, did lead to a farm house northeast of Oklee where Currie was subsequently apprehended without resistance. Authorities in Florida are in the process of requesting extradition.

Less formal proof of marriage and birth is now acceptable on applications for veterans' benefits under a recent Veterans administration regulation.

Claims Against Local Carrier Are Resolved

An agreement of settlement for forfeitures amounting to $1,600 has been approved disposing of forfeiture claims for violations of the interstate commerce act against North Star Transport, Inc., Thief River Falls. The forfeiture has been received pursuant to the federal claims collection act.

The commission claimed that North Star Transport, a contract carrier, was engaging in the for-hire transportation of plastic foam padding, foam rubber and boxes of foam cushions from Doylestown, Penn. and Janesville, Wisc. to Moorhead, which was beyond the territorial scope of the permit issued to it by the Interstate Commerce commission.

Forfeiture claims were made and settled for the government by the commission's bureau of enforcement upon information furnished by the bureau of operations.

Pet Turtles Can Cause Human Illness

Minnesota department of health warns that some pet turtles can make you or your children sick by giving you salmonellosis. But if you still want to keep a turtle as a pet, you can minimize the risk through proper care and handling.

Salmonellosis is an acute infectious disease with symptoms such as abdominal pain, diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, and fever. It generally runs its course in about five days.

Turtles tend to become infected through their environment and their feeding. Most commercially produced turtles originate from ponds in the South where adult breeding turtles are fed animal byproducts which may contain salmonella germs.

Some turtles are netted from waters contaminated with human waste. Sometimes turtle eggs are dug up and replanted for hatching in ground that is contaminated by various fertilizers. Salmonella germs can also show up in turtle food which is fed to turtles in pet shops and in the home.

Turtles are popular as pets because they are inexpensive and easy to keep. They can live in a small container, they make no noise, and they require little food. They often serve as classroom pets as well as home pets, and they are most frequently handled by children who as a group are not too careful in their sanitary practices.

A recent documented case of turtle-associated salmonellosis in Minnesota occurred last December in Blaine. The medical laboratories of the state health department recovered the same disease organism from a nine year old girl who was ill and from her pet turtles. Turtles are only one of many sources of salmonellosis. Most cases of salmonellosis are not investigated since victims often think they have "flu" or "food poisoning".

The hazard of getting salmonellosis from an infected turtle can be reduced by observing a few rules of safe care and handling.

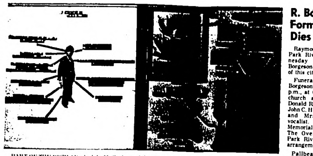
Don't allow children to handle turtles unless they are responsible enough to wash their hands afterwards.

Don't empty turtle water into the kitchen sink and don't let the water contaminate any food preparation area.

Designate a special container as the turtle dish and don't use this container for anything else.

Only one person in the household or classroom who is careful to wash his hands should care for the turtle.

Don't let other household pets drink from the turtle dish.



PART OF THE DISPLAY which L. M. Graham of the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension will show in the Northrop gymnasium tonight (Monday) at 8 p.m. as part of his presentation on drugs and drug abuse is pictured above. Although this is a PTA meeting, the public is invited and there will be time to ask questions.

Law Enforcement Radio Network To Help Lawmen

Law enforcement in the area will soon receive a greatly improved voice communications system. The Governor's Commission on Crime Prevention and Control, which will pay 75 per cent of the total cost, recently approved a new radio network which will eventually cover the entire state.

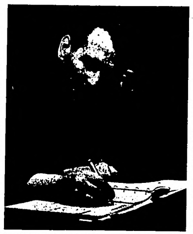
According to Pennington County Sheriff Charles Richards, the new system will consist of four channels. One frequency will be used for all law enforcement in Pennington county. Another frequency will permit communications between all units in Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties. The third will be a "task force" frequency covering the 16-county area. The fourth will be for state-wide communications. Transmissions will be picked up by a radio relay tower; which will be built, and automatically retransmitted on the frequency of the unit being contacted.

The present plan was prepared after extensive study of systems being used in other areas. The Illinois state police emergency radio network (ISPERN) is an example. The Illinois system utilizes two separate radios. One radio is the standard communications system and the other has a red microphone and is to be used for emergencies only. The standard radio is on the frequency of the individual law enforcement agency but all emergency radios are on a special frequency which has been designated for that purpose. Minnesota's system will be contained in a single, multi-channel unit.

Today most law enforcement agencies have their own frequency to avoid radio congestion. However, difficulties are encountered when units need assistance or information from another agency. This would happen if a sheriff's vehicle was in pursuit of a fugitive and could not catch up, for example. There may be a highway patrol vehicle or city police car in the area or even units of another county if the chase continues that far. The pursuing officers could not contact nearby units for assistance if their radios are on different frequencies.

During a high-speed chase there is great risk to innocent people which makes it necessary to stop the fleeing car as soon as possible. The only way that the pursuing officers could reach the other agencies would be to radio a message to their own headquarters where someone could telephone the headquarters of the other agencies. From there the message would be relayed again by radio. That is often too slow and, if the pursuing vehicle is too far from its headquarters, it might be beyond radio range and unable to contact anyone.

Recognizing the problem, law enforcement agencies in parts of the state have started utilizing a common frequency and attempted to work with the congestion. The efforts were usually limited to one county or smaller subdivision. The new system is intended to eliminate all of these problems state-wide. The network is expected to be a great improvement in communications and co-ordination in and between law enforcement agencies.



RESEARCH funds for heart and cancer research were provided by the Thief River Falls United Fund recently. Directors of the organization authorized the contribution of $2,500 each to the University of Minnesota hospital and Mayo clinic in Rochester for heart and cancer research. Fred Dallmann, treasurer of the organization, is shown writing out the checks forwarded to the two institutions. Funds were provided by Thief River Falls residents through the United Fund campaign.

Kidney Studied As Contributor To Heart Failure

In an effort to provide increased understanding of the role of the kidney in such heart diseases as heart failure and hypertension, Dr. Robert Kunau, Minnesota Heart association research grant-in-aid awardee at the University of Minnesota, is studying how the kidney conserves and excretes sodium. This vital function of the kidney is crucial in maintaining an appropriate balance of body fluids essential to good health.

Utilizing an ultramicro collection technique known as micropuncture, the investigator is able to characterize the factors which influence sodium handling by the kidney and to identify the location within the kidney where these factors modify sodium excretion.

Remarking on the application of his project to the individual, Dr. Kunau stated, "The kidney is a vital organ which performs a function essential to good health. It is not yet known what causes salt and water retention in some people. However, through such studies, it will be possible to understand more about how the kidney functions and consequently how to treat diseases in which the kidney plays a vital role.

For example, we know that patients who have severe heart failure tend to retain sodium and water within their bodies. If we could determine what factors influence this sodium and water retention and how such factors work within the kidney, we will be able to more physiologically understand and care for such patients as well as understand what factors are necessary for normal sodium excretion.

Dr. Kunau is one of some 50 heart researchers in the state of Minnesota sponsored by funds from either the American Heart association or Minnesota Heart association.

Red Lake County Assessor Reviews Taxing Procedure

Most home owners in Minnesota will receive a letter from local or county assessors before May 1 indicating that their real estate assessment has been increased. The notices will contain the assessed value for 1972, the increase from 1970 and the dates and places where the local board of review and county board of equalization will meet.

State law now requires that property owners receive written notification of increased assessments to give them an opportunity to make an appeal to their local board of review which will meet in May or June.

The new assessments will be the basis for determining 1973 taxes and will not effect taxes for 1972. In fact, state officials say that the increase may not mean higher taxes, even then.

State Tax Commissioner Arthur C. Roemer has advised nearly 1,700 taxing districts that real estate assessments, mostly on residential property, should be increased this year. He stated that the increases are necessary to reflect higher market values and to equalize assessments so that everyone is paying for fair share.

Jesse S. DuChamp, Red Lake county assessor, says that if property has been undervalued in the past, the owner has not been paying his fair share and "equalization" may result in a tax increase.

Higher assessments will not mean an overall increase in real estate taxes, however. New state law limits increases of property taxes for local governments and schools, preventing them from abusing the higher assessment base.

DuChamp plans to start sending tax assessment notices to Red Lake county property owners in March. He estimates 90 per cent will be receiving them.

The local assessors are appraising the real estate in Red Lake county and will be available to review appraisals with property owners. Anyone who has questions may contact the local or county assessor who will review the assessment and reappraise the property if there has been an error.

Bergland Bill Would Protect S.S. Benefits

U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland co-sponsored this week a bill to close a major loophole in social security legislation and protect increased benefits to the elderly, blind and disabled.

According to Bergland many states have decreased their benefits "dollar for dollar" each time federal social security benefits are increased. "The result," Bergland said, "make a hoax of increased benefits." The new legislation, in the form of an amendment to increased benefits passed by the House of Representatives and pending in the Senate, is designed to prevent state cutbacks.

"States would have to guarantee that social security recipients who also receive state aids would be granted an increase, rather than a decrease, in state benefits," the Congressman said.

"States should not be permitted to cut their benefits," Bergland said. "The five per cent increase in federal benefits, which the House has adopted, is small, enough without letting states eat up those few extra dollars by cutting the state's share."

Bergland said that the amendment has been co-sponsored by 63 bi-partisan members of Congress and would mean increased benefits for 2.5 million of the elderly, blind or disabled.

National Driver Of Year Gives Tips On Safety

Anyone who has driven a big semi close to three million accident-free miles over a 33-year career is well qualified to offer a few driving tips to other motorists.

Clarence C. Hoffman, a Minneapolis truck driver named National Driver of the Year, discussed safe driving tips during a recent visit with Minnesota, department of public safety officials.

Most of what Hoffman had to say boiled down to driver courtesy—giving the other guy the benefit of the doubt—even if he's in the wrong.

Here are a few of Hoffman's tips on "inside" driving:

"Always be on the lookout for out-of-state license plates. Give them the right of way because they're trying to find their way around and may be confused.

"Keep a close eye on the 'suburban chauffeur' — the woman transporting a bunch of kids in a car or wagon. She has plenty of distractions to contend with and this can affect her driving.

"Be careful about making left turns if you're in a strange neighborhood or city. Sometimes it's better to make three right turns than one left turn.

"Make it a rule to never pass at intersections or road junctions. You cannot always rely on the other driver's turn signals, and he may not make the move his turn signals indicate."

Naturally, Hoffman's careful driving also applies to use of his own car. In addition to staying accident-free, he gets much longer service out of tires and brakes. His supervisor at Raymond Motor Transportation reports that, over the years, the company has saved thousands of dollars in maintenance on the equipment Hoffman drives.

"A horse that is hitched with others to a wagon is not free not to walk in front of the wagon; and if it will not draw, the wagon will strike its legs, and it will go whither the wagon goes, and will pull it involuntarily. But, in spite of this limited freedom, it is free itself to pull the wagon, or be dragged along by it. The same is true of man." —Leo Tolstoy

Seasons Have Ended

Not without some degree of disappointment, the winter athletic seasons for the Prowlers of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls have ended. The disappointment must weigh heaviest on the players and the coaches themselves, rather than the fans who followed the teams throughout the season.

During the seasons when a reasonable degree of success is being experienced by the teams, optimism runs high for tournament success. It becomes too easy to compare statistics and season records and show a winner on paper. Someone always forgets to tell the opposing team that the outcome has already been decided, and they go ahead and change that decision.

Thief River Falls did not go without state representation this year. Steve Thorstad of the Prowler wrestling team won the Region 8 championship in the 180-pound class and advanced to the state tournament. Coach Ed Krystosek can take consolation in that to conclude what was otherwise not a highly successful season.

The Prowler hockey team picked a bad night to play its worst game of the season, and East Grand Forks pulled a major upset in the first game of the Region 8 tournament. Green Wave skaters were all over the ice that night and the normally smooth attack of the Prowlers was shattered—along with hopes for a state tourney trip.

That opening game loss was a heartbreaker for players, coaches and fans who had been treated to excellent hockey throughout the season. Coach John Schmitz' club fell victim to that unexplainable thing that happens to so many good teams at tourney time. The team was unable to do any of the things it had done so well throughout the year, and additionally was hampered by one of its problems all year—putting the puck in the net when the opportunity arose.

Scarcely had sports fans begun to recover from the loss to East Grand Forks on arena ice when the basketball team fell victim to a Crookston surge in the fourth quarter and lost a semi-final District 31 clash. That ended all hopes for district advancement for a hard-working club which showed flashes of good play during the season.

And while the hockey Prowlers fell victim to the unexpected, the cagers were victimized by one of their problems all season—holding a lead once they gained it. Playing conservative basketball to protect a lead was not one of the Prowlers' strong points; when they quit attacking they started giving away points. It happened again when Crookston overcame a 12-point Prowler lead in the second half to gain a four-point victory.

But winning isn't everything, even if it is the object of competition in athletics. The Prowler athletes in all three winter sports gave their fans some rewarding and exciting moments during the year, and the participation undoubtedly provided some lasting memories for the players involved.

Disappointment of the fans in Prowler tournament losses should not be taken personally. It would be worse if the people of Thief River Falls didn't care. Disappointment is an indication of interest and support, and a natural reaction by concern people. We think that is worth remembering as the winter sports seasons close.

Parental Discipline

The editor of an exchange reaching our desk reports he has come upon what could be the greatest Italian export since Sophia Loren—a thing called "Parental Discipline."

The story concerns a happening in the Italian town of Pescara. Pescara, a delightful tourist's mecca on the Adriatic Sea, will be remembered by many World War II GI's as a place of many fierce battles, and by the cultured as the birthplace of a famed poet, Gabriele d'Annunzio. Recently however, a group of pro-socialist students decide it would be a great place to fight it out with the local fuzz.

The students stockpiled rocks and empty-headed slogans. Across the campus the police stood ready. Suddenly, disaster struck the students from the rear. An angry crowd of mothers, fathers, grandparents and older brothers swept in, cuffed students right and left and hauled them away by the ears.

Concludes the editor: "Even the most heroic left-leaning Luigi isn't much when his mother has him by the ear, and a father's kick-in-the-pants is an action slogan understood by all."

And that's one editor's opinion that this editor finds easy to agree with.

How Significant?

If the New Hampshire Presidential primary established Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota as a solid Presidential candidate, as one Washington news writer stated, a person can have serious doubts about the reliability of our primary election system.

Reports on the primary indicated that McGovern received 37 per cent of the votes cast, second only to Sen. Edmund Muskie's 48 per cent. But New Hampshire is not a large state and there were only about 87,000 votes cast in the entire state-wide election. How significant is 37 per cent of 87,000 votes in a tiny Eastern state one-ninth the size of Minnesota? Probably not very significant. We cast almost twice that many votes in our own Seventh District for U.S. Congressman!

Fact of the matter is, the Democrats are having trouble coming up with anyone to be a serious challenger to President Nixon. With all of the candidates willing to accept the nomination of the party, their combined lustre is equal to reflection of a flashlight beam from a lump of coal.

With eight months remaining to the national elections in December, it appears that citizens of the United States are in for a long, hot (air) summer. Attaching of significance to the New Hampshire primary is only one indication of how far reporting has to be stretched to create political interest.

It's The Truth

Following is from an editorial in the Dakota County Tribune:

Into this office some time ago walked a lawyer, who was defending a man involved with the law.

Listen to what he had to say, for he spoke words of wisdom: "The parents of my client asked me to come here and give you h--- for the item you put in the paper about this case. But I want to tell you that I am thankful it wasn't worse.

"Back in my home town, our editor made a statement once that I found true to this day, and it was this, 'When anyone gets involved with the law, there are always wild rumors as to what happened, but if a clear and brief statement is made in the newspaper, the matter is quickly forgotten.'"

That statement came from a hard-headed lawyer of many years experience.

Advertising Essential

Writes a Midwest publisher: "If there's anything Americans can excel at, it's boarding bandwagons. Right now a popular bandwagon is labeled 'anti-advertising' and all sorts of folks are leaping aboard. As consumers they may lose in the long run."

Chosen for particular attention by the anti-advertisers have been the advertising programs of investor-owned electric companies. The theory is that since there is already a soaring demand for energy, why should electric companies advertise their product? The answer is that electric companies advertise primarily to achieve more efficient use of plant and equipment—to smooth out the peaks and valleys of power consumption. High investments in generating equipment are no different than high investments in such things as airliners.

As one power company explained to its customers, "If we stopped advertising today and used that part of our budget to lower your bill, there would hardly be enough for each customer to notice the difference. In fact, the reverse would soon be true. Our 'load factor' (the amount we use of our existing equipment) would probably fall to the point where we'd have to charge more for a kilowatt. . .to cover our expenses. Electricity today costs no more than it did in the early 1950's and advertising can be given part of the credit for keeping the cost low."

Borrowed Nonsense

A fishing party was hopelessly lost in the deep woods. "I thought you were supposed to be the best guide in Minnesota," growled one of the fishermen. "I am," assured the guide, "But right now I think we're in Canada."

Coyly, the wife asked her husband: "How shall we celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary."

"Well," her hubby mumbled dryly, "what do you think of five minutes of silence."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am very concerned about The Child Development Act, and the future generation. Although President Nixon vetoed the bill, the advocates will be pushing for its adoption again.

Thanks to the "Birchers", the largest organization in the world fighting communism, we have lobbyists in Washington, D. C., to quelch certain bad bills from becoming law.

It irks me to hear people say, they are too busy to read—no time to be informed of what's going on before our very eyes? Are we to be like the ostrich and stick our head in the sand? Do we want our grandchildren and great-grandchildren to become slaves when they grow up?

What are organizations in this vicinity doing to combat these evil forces and help preserve our freedom?

The future generation will be the leaders of tomorrow. Will they be educated in the truth? Will it be the "Modern" Jesus, the "Superstar" that is so much in the news which is blasphemy to Christian people, or will they know of "Jesus Christ" who died on the cross?

How about getting the U.N. out of our U. S.? Now that Red China (now the "Republic of China") has been invited, why not move the U. N. to Peking or Russia; they are working for world power. Now that 1972 is the election year we need to be informed.

I enjoyed reading the Buford Lawson article in the Times on busing, a big issue this year.

Thank You,
Mrs. Blanche Hovden

Dear Editor:

We are Girl Sout adult volunteers working with the Girl Scouts in Thief River Falls. Some people think we volunteer our time "to help others." That may be part of it, but the really important thing about Girl Scout work is that it helps us, personally, to learn new things, to meet new people, and to be active in important community projects.

When you work with today's girls, you quickly learn to be more receptive to the ideas of others who may have different beliefs and backgrounds from your own. You learn to listen. You soon realize that a person does not have to be over 30 to have good ideas, or to take the lead in doing something about a community problem.

In Girl Scouting, we've made friends, and had many happy experiences, but the opportunity that it gives us to increase our personal effectiveness in our various roles as citizens is the reason we are Girl Scout volunteers.

We recommend it for any adult—man or woman—who is interested in learning and growing, as well as helping others.

We want to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to the individuals, organizations, businesses and schools in Thief River Falls who have on many occasions extended their cooperation and assistance to us.

Sincerely,
Elvera Cullen, Janis Hoff, Eldora Braaten, Arlyne Forsberg, Pauline Aubol, Barbara Thompson, Kaye Marvin, Delores Achenbach, Joan Schob, Bonnie Poissant, Edie Hill, Ursula Dahl, Sherry Carriere, Kathy Lofberg, Caroline Shodean, Phyllis Dalager, Lois Kritz, Joyce Iverson, Judy O'Dair and Sue Sculthorp.

Farmers Union Asks Sharing Of Cost In Pollution Controls

We can "have our environment and eat it, too," Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU) suggested in testimony before the House subcommittee on agriculture and the environment on February 28, if those who want to "have the environment" are willing to pay for it.

In a plea for cost-sharing for farm pollution control commensurate with costs now being shared for municipal and industrial pollution control, the Farmers Union statement reasoned that if everybody benefits from environment pollution control—then everybody should help pay the costs. The statement by Cy Carpenter, acting president of Minnesota Farmers Union, was presented on his behalf at the hearing by Robert Ray, MFU research assistant.

"Today," the Farmers Union said, "industrial pollution control costs fall partly on the stockholders, partly on the taxpayers (because of pollution tax credits) and mostly on the consumer.

"Today, municipal sewage treatment construction costs fall 55 per cent on the federal taxpayer, 25 per cent on the state taxpayer and 20 per cent on the local residential and industrial taxpayer.

"Today, agricultural pollution abatement costs fall most heavily upon the farmer, and relatively lightly on the consumer and taxpayer," Ray said, pointing out that although the farmer pays more, he benefits less, and though the urban dweller benefits from this environmental cleanup, he pays little of the costs.

"For feedlot water pollution control, farmers can get advice and money," he continued. "For odor control, pesticide escapes and fertilizer runoff, farmers gets lots of advice, but no money."

Even cost sharing through the rural environmental assistance program (REAP) isn't in proportion to the 55:25:20 ratio for municipal pollution control, Farmers Union pointed out.

"No other industry can claim to as much environmental cleanup as can agriculture," Ray claimed, quoting Dr. George Smith of the University of Missouri's water resources center.

Smith's research indicates that a corn field which produces 100 bushels per acre removes seven to eight tons of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and releases five to seven tons of oxygen—even oxygen for 12 people to breathe for a year.

Maintaining that such farm pollution as there is comes from wind and water erosion, Farmers Union quoted Kenneth Grant, administrator of the U.S. soil conservation service.

Grant has indicated that conservation practices could reduce erosion by as much as 65 to 90 per cent.

SCS studies of the areas show that in farming regions where there are effective soil conservation and watershed programs, the sedimentation is only five to 10 per cent of the amount in areas without conservation measures.

Studies of the areas where soil and watershed programs have been maintained for a time, the turbidity (a major indicator of erosion-caused pollution) of rivers has been reduced by as much as 80 per cent.

The public benefit from these conservation and erosion-curbing measures is enormous, and it is only fair that the "public investment in these programs needs to be sharply increased," the Farmers Union spokesman maintained.

"But it is difficult even to maintain the present levels of funding—and more and more of the burden is being left go the farmer at a time when better environmental protection is being demanded by the public.

"We deplore the kind of false economy," Ray said, "which motivates those who continually try to slash the funds for the REAP program and other needed conservation incentives."

The Farmers Union compared the environmental cost-benefit bargain the public gets now, with the family farmer footing much of the bill, to the future when the agricultural wastes might be generated by industrialized farms.

Agricultural waste management will become more and more costly for the public as livestock, poultry and dairy operations become more and more concentrated and as family farms are supplanted by industrialized agricultural operations, the Farmers Union warned.

The Farmers Union testimony recommended a major expansion of research in animal waste management and soil erosion control, urging that:

(1) The research effort should be concentrated on measures for environmental protection on family-type farming oocrations, rather than expending the public funds to try to solve the measurably more costly pollution safe-guards on industrial-type units which are undesirably large.

(2) The research effort should aim to devise measures which will avoid the pollution threat as close to home as possible, rather than concentrating on the measures downstream where the remedies will be 10 to 20 times as costly as if the problem had been treated in its initial states. Let's treat the soil pollutants in a rural context rather than exporting them to urban areas.

(3) The research effort should try to assure tha the solutions are not worse than the original problem.

(4) The research effort needs for a time to be oriented from livestock feed and nutrition to animal waste management. This research needs to consider the relative increase in waste management costs as the size of the farming operation, or the concentration of it, increases.

Research Funds Used To Fight Heart Disease

$644,000 worth of research is being done in Minnesota institutions to further the fight against heart disease, the nation's number one killer.

This money, allocated by the American Heart association and the Minnesota Heart association, is divided among some 50 researchers whose projects cover a broad range of cardiovascular problems.

Three of these researchers presented their projects to the press February 26 at a research day sponsored by the Minnesota Heart association. Those making the presentations were Dr. John Hadden and Dr. Robert Kunau of the University of Minnesota and Dr. Erik Ritman of Mayo clinic.

Dr. Hadden, an established investigator of AHA, is studying the immunologic mechanisms of the lymphocyte and the macrophage (two types of white blood cells involved in the expression of immunity). He hopes to offer means of selectively enhancing resistance in those patients in whom, for various reasons, that function is impaired.

Utilizing a technique called micopuncture, Dr. Kunau, grant-in-aid recipient, is studying the role of the kidney in sodium conservation and excretion. This investigation could lead to increased understanding of the diagnosis and treatment of such heart afflictions as heart failure and hypertension.

A combined x-ray, television, electronic computer system recently developed at the Mayo Clinic, is used by Dr. Ritman, MHA research fellow, to measure the shape and volume of the left ventricle of the heart 60 times each second. This unique system may lead to improved health care for the individual because of the precise, instantaneous diagnostic information it provides. Data that used to take weeks to compile, can now be presented in a matter of minutes.

During the 1971-72 fiscal year, Minnesota Heart association allocated $175,000 for research in the state to support 31 investigators. Combined with the $469,000 allocated by the American Heart association, this accounts for $644,000 of heart research this year in our state alone.

Heart continues to be the largest non-governmental source of cardiovascular research support in the world—playing a complementary role to the National Heart and Lung Institute.

Since 1952, the Minnesota Heart association has spent over $3,000,000 on heart research in this state. During that same time period, American Heart association has returned over four-and-a-half million dollars to our state for heart research. These funds made available through public memorial and Heart fund contributions have made possible startling advances in the treatment and prevention of cardiovascular diseases.

As indicated by the amount of money spent on heart research in Minnesota, this state has contributed greatly to those advances due to its internationally-famed institutions and its talented investigators.

Heart-lung machine, cardiac catheterization, drugs for high blood pressure, effective rheumatic fever treatment, anticoagulent drugs, coronary care units, external cardiopulmonary resuscitation are but a few of the advances in effective patient care brought about through heart research.

Patrol To Check Noise Pollution In Minnesota

Noise pollution on Minnesota's highways will come under attack during 1972, when highway patrol teams will begin enforcing a new state law setting noise limits on all motor vehicles.

The law sets limits of 82 to 90 decibels as registered by instruments meeting society of automotive engineers standards at distances of 50 feet. These limits are roughly half the levels reached by a jet aircraft engine measured at close range, and about one third more than the usual ambient noise in a quiet residential neighborhood.

Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund announced that enforcement will begin when the weather is favorable and continue into the fall. Initially it will consist of warning tickets, requiring the owner to get the fault corrected. Instruments to be used will measure the total noise emitted by the vehicle, including tire, wind, and motor noise as well as exhaust noise.

The enforcement teams will consist of instrument operators and pursuit officers.

Three teams will be on duty on days when weather permits accurate readings, and each team will work a different region of the state.

In addition to setting immediate limits on noise, the new law requires substantial improvements in new vehicles. For example, the limit on motorcycles manufactured before this year is 92 decibels at 50 feet; on those manufactured this year, 88 decibels; and on those manufactured in 1973 and beyond, limits will be reduced from 88 to 86 decibels, and on all others from 86 to 84 decibels.

The Minnesota law is patterned on the California law which has been in operation for a number of years. Limits on new motor vehicles are identical with California's, but are slightly higher on some categories of existing vehicles.

State Leads In Growing Timothy, Sweet Clover

Minnesota retained its national production championships in 1971 for timothy and sweet clover seed, two of the major seed crops for hay, pasture and winter cover plantings, reports Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

Timothy seed production of 17,220,000 pounds represented 67 per cent of the U.S. total last year and accounted for over half of the $2,749,000 value estimated for Minnesota's harvest of four varieties of forage and cover seed crops. The aggregate value represents a $388,000 decline from 1970.

Timothy is the biggest of the four seed crops, harvested from 82,000 acres in 1971, or 10,000 acres more than in 1970. Average yield was 210 pounds, five less than the year before, but the price was $8.40 per hundredweight, up 90 cents, and gave the crop an estimated value of $1,446,000.

Minnesota produced 24 per cent of the nation's sweet clover seed last year, 3,025,000 pounds or an average of 275 pounds for each of the 11,000 acres. The average price of $7.10 was 20 cents higher than in 1970 and made the crop worth an estimated $215,000.

A 40 per cent reduction in red clover acreage to 30,000 acres cut production of that seed crop to 3,600,000 pounds and dropped Minnesota from fourth to fifth in U.S. rankings. That output represents eight per cent of national production in 1971, and at $26 per 100 pounds - down $4.50 from 1970 - made the crop worth $936,000.

Alfalfa seed is the smallest of the four crops, with 525,000 pounds harvested from 7,000 acres, 2,000 acres less than in 1970. The $29 price per 100 pounds was the same as for the last two years and made the crop value $152,000. In national production last year Minnesota ranked 14th, with less than half of one per cent of the total.

Seed production statistics were compiled by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Good Planning Said Key To Good Highways

A noted architect says good planning is the key to building highways compatible with the environment.

Douglas C. Smith says, "For the sake of the economic health of our nation as a whole, and of our urban areas in particular, Americans must have access to well-planned, well-integrated intercity and interstate highways."

In an article in the magazine "Petroleum Today", Smith describes the characteristics of a good, well-integrated highway system:

—A highway should be safe and convenient for the user, and be built into the city so that it fits its very grain, warp and woof. It should not disrupt the natural pattern, nor divide neighborhoods, nor ruin park areas.

—It should be built with an eye to its audiovisual impact on the non-user.

—It should avoid hardship to people that might be displaced. Social and environmental costs should be valued beforehand, along with dollars.

Such environmentally compatible highway systems, he said, already have been built in the U.S., many of them dating back as far as the 1940's.

In Sacramento, Calif., for example, the routing of Interstate 5 through the city permitted the preservation and restoration of "Old Sacramento." In San Mateo county, Calif., the Junipero Sierra freeway south of San Francisco has been called "the world's most beautiful freeway." It received an award of merit from the American Institute of planners.

Pittsburgh's "Golden Triangle" redevelopment, begun in the mid-1940's, resulted in a remarkably compatible parkroad combination, and an eventual wholesale "renaissance" of the entire central portion of the city.

In the Rosebud Sioux Indian reservation, Eagle Feather Lake, a 60-acre body of water was created by State Highway 63, which serves as both road and dam.

As architect Smith puts it, "Roads and aquaducts were the proudest accomplishments of the ancient Romans; many of their roads were the best in existence for hundreds of years after the empire's passing. We, too, may well boast of our highways; the safest and most comfortable of any the world has ever known."

THIRD GENERATION will soon take over operation of the Solem farm in Marshall county, north and west of Thief River Falls. Peter Solem, named for his grandfather who founded the farm in the late 1800's, will take over the farm this year. He is shown with his father, Alfred Solem, and a young bull which they purchased at the Red River Valley winter shows for use in their registered Angus operation.

FARMER AND HOMEMAKER for Marshall county, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem show the plaque which they received at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston recently. Alfred has lived on his present farm all his life and has operated it since the death of his father in 1929. He married the former Rebecca Halvorson in 1935 and the couple had six children, all active in 4-H club work.

friends and neighbors. Only 178 acres when Alfred began farming it in 1929, the farm now is 580 acres in size—about half of it open and used to raise feed for the registered Angus cow-calf operation for which the farm has long been noted.

76-Cow Herd

Presently the Solems have about 140 head of Angus on the farm, including 76 cows to calve this spring. Most of the young animals not used for herd replacement are sold as breeding stock throughout a 100-mile radius of the farm. Calves deemed not good enough for sale as breeding stock are marketed commercially. Breeding stock has been sold as far away as Minot, N.D.

"We used to show cattle quite a bit at county fairs and the winter shows," Alfred recalls, "and it was a good way to promote sales. In the last few years, since the boys graduated from 4-H club work, we haven't been showing much any more. There was a time when we showed two herds at some of the fairs," he smiled. "Then we would win both first and second."

Alfred bought his first registered Angus from the Schermerhorn farms at Mahnomen, purchasing three animals there. He added three more registered Angus from the Art Stenberg herd at Greenbush. This start, in 1946, led to the Angus herd the Solems now own.

One of the points of pride with Alfred is his winter watering system for the cattle. He has a pond with a circulating pump in the home pasture which keeps the water moving and prevents freezing, leaving the water available for the cattle at any time. In the summer there are stock ponds which provide an ample water supply.

Peter To Farm

This year the Solem's youngest son, Peter, will take over the farm operation. A senior at the University of Minnesota he will return to school for the spring quarter after being home during the winter. The third generation of Solem operation of the farm will again have a Peter Solem at the head.

"Dad broke this land with oxen and a grub axe," Alfred said. "It was hard work with long days. But he liked to hunt and the family ate a lot of partridge and rabbits and prairie chickens. There was even a nest of passenger pigeons (now extinct) down in the corner of the woods by the road (highway 59). They tell me somebody shot 'em and traded 'em for booze."

Peter says he might like to add some sheep to the livestock enterprise, but doesn't know for sure. At one time the farm had a flock of about 100 Columbia ewes—all purebred and most of them registered. The last of the flock was sold several years ago.

Solem Family

The Alfred Solem family has included five sons and a daughter. Arlen, the eldest son, was killed in a bow and arrow hunting accident in 1958. Roger has a farm west of Thief River Falls with about 20 head of Angus cattle and also works at Forsberg's, Inc. Stuart is a plant superintendent for 3M company in St. Paul and lives in Forest Lake.

The only daughter, Kathryn, is now Mrs. Kenneth Nelson and they live in Minneapolis where both are employed. Kermit is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and a student at Wartburg seminary in Dubuque, Ia. Peter may attempt to complete his university degree requirements by correspondence courses or quarter attendance later.

Active Lives

Alfred has been president of the Thief River Falls Livestock Shipping association and is still a board member; past clerk of School District 722-183 in Marshall and Pennington counties; lifetime member of the American Angus association; past president of the Steiner community club, and adult leader of the Steiner 4-H club for about 10 years.

Rebecca is a former rural school teacher, belongs to the West Steiner homemakers club, is now treasurer and past secretarhy of the Steiner community club and has been active in women's circles of Trinity Lutheran church. She has also taught Sunday school and served nine years as an adult leader for the Steiner 4-H club. One of her farm duties is keeping the records of the farm operation.

In 1969 the Solems were named to receive the Outstanding Senior Farmer award from the Thief River Falls Jaycees. The Valley Farmer and Homemaker plaque has now joined the Senior Farmer plaque on the kitchen wall.

Interest In Wildlife

Alfred has an intense interest in wildlife, an interest shared by Peter and evidenced in future farm plans. They intend to fence off a 40-acre wooded area which had formerly been used for pasture and let it return to its natural state. Consideration is also being given to acquiring additional property for wildlife use.

"There is a lot of country west of here and it's good to just get out in it and look around," Alfred said. "We see deer at the stock ponds in the summer. There are moose on occasion, and fox and rabbits and partridge. I still like to hunt whenever I can, but it's fun just to look and be a part of nature too."

Just then a pert downy woodpecker appeared at the bird feeder outside the window and began rapping expertly at the suet there. A nuthatch replaced the chickadees which left when the woodpecker arrived. It was a busy day at the feeder.

My coffee cup emptied just as a neighbor arrived to whisk Mrs. Solem to a homemakers gathering. It was an opportunity to tuck away my interview notes and depart. When you're in good company, leaving is the hardest thing to do.

And the Solems are good company.

Pennington DHIA Has 1,320 Cows On Test In Jan.

Pennington County Dairy Herd Improvement association, supervised by Jerry Hamre, had 1,320 cows from 37 herds on test in January, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension agent.

The following were rated as the top 10 herds in the association for the month.

	Pounds Milk	Pounds Fat
Clyde Swenson	1,504	56.9
Gene Nelson	1,327	54.6
Duane Vatsaas	1,279	49.8
Knute Nesland	1,441	49.7

Darrow Lundeen	1,216	44.9
Donald Erickson	1,162	44.7
Harry & John Hess	947	42.4
Earl Erickson	804	42.1

The herd ratings are affected by the number of dry cows because milk or butterfat production is averaged for all cows. This gives the farmer an indication of the earning power of his herd for the month. If there are too many dry cows in the herd, the average may be low, even though the milking cows are highly productive.

Twenty cows finished with over 500 pounds of butterfat during the testing year in a 305-day or less lactation cycle. They were from the follwowing herds:

Crookston Tips EGF 54-51 For District Championship

Crookston's never say die basketball team turned in an unspectacular, but steady performance to overcome a seven point fourth quarter deficit to slip by an erratic East Grand Forks quint 54-51 in the district 31 championship game Thursday night at UND, giving the Pirates their first district cage crown since 1959.

East Grand Forks contributed heavily to the Crookston victory as the defending champion Green Wave suffered through two of its worst quarters of basketball all season in the title game. Larry Selk's crew managed to score a meager three points in the first quarter and just six points in the fourth stanza as the GreenWave connected on only four of 23 shots from the field in the two nightmare periods.

"East Side" startled its home town fans in the slow moving first quarter by going scoreless for over six minutes while the Pirates opened up surprising 7-0 lead. The Wave finally appeared on the scoreboard when stymied All-Stater Kurt Knoff poped a short jump shot with 1:48 remaining. East Grand Forks was able to muster just one more point, a free throw by Rip Thompson, in the opening quarter as the Pirates opened up a gapping 11-3 lead.

Last year's third place finishers in the state class A tournament scored the first five points of the second quarter to trim the lead to just 11-9. But the stubborn Pirates maintained a narrow advantage until the amazing outside shooting of senior guard Doug LaFriniere riddled the Wave zone defense. LaFriniere scored three straight long range jumpers without a miss and Scott Youngquist also joined the deadeye group with a jumper from deep in the right corner for a 23-12 Crookston lead with 3:07 remaining in the half.

Crookston enjoyed a 25-17 halftime lead as the normally high percentage Green Wave shooters connected on just 28 per cent of their field goal attempts in the first 16 minutes. During the regular season the Wave led the Big Five Conference in field goal shooting with a 50.8 per cent performance.

The fair-sized crowd, evenly distributed between East Grand Forks and Crookston followers, witnessed an abrupt about-face in the third quarter as the Green Wave gunners canned 11 of 13 shots from the floor to take a 45-40 lead going into the final stanza.

Rip Thompson and Gary Wagner traded baskets to maintain a 27-10 Pirate lead at the outset of the third quarter before East Grand Forks rattled off 12 straight points to grab a 31-27 lead with 4:46 left to play.

"East Side" continued to harrass the Pirates into committing numerous turnover as a result of the Wave full court zone press, with Crookston coughing the ball up five times during the third quarter. Senior forward Bryan Johnson, turning in one of his best performances of the year, connected from long range to push the Wave lead to 45-38 before LaFriniere's 25-foot shot at the buzzer gave the Pirates momentum going into the final stanza.

Johnson lifted the Wave to a 47-40 lead just 10 seconds into the fourth quarter, but the Pirates came storming back with eight straight points to take a 48-47 lead with 5:36 left in the game.

Rip Thompson put the Wave back in front momentarily with a long jumper for a 49-48 contest with 5:13 remaining before Wagner and LaFriniere dumped in back to back buckets for a 52-49 Pirate edge with 2:14 to go.

With 1:52 remaining Selk abanded the zone defense in favor of an extremely tight man to man, attempting to force the Pirates into throwing the ball away. It worked once as Knoff picked up a loose ball and worked his way inside for a lay-up with 40 seconds left, cutting the Pirate lead to just 52-51.

Crookston moved the ball beautifully in the final tension-filled seconds, staying away from the foul-intended Wave guards, until Knoff was forced to committ his fifth personal with four seconds remaining.

Dave Brockemeier atoned for his two previous sub par tournament performances as he calmly tossed in the two free throws for the final 54-51 count. East Grand Forks immediately called a time out after the second gift toss, but even Thompson's determined efforts to draw a foul driving toward the basket failed to attain results.

With the help of their fantastic third quarter performance the Wave managed to shoot 41 per cent from the field during the game, but the mark could have easily been much higher. Crookston completely dominated the rebounding charts in the critical second half as the Pirates outboarded the Wave 13-6 following intermission. Under heavy pressure the Pirates hit on 9 of 18 second half shots from the floor, many from extremely long range.

Knoff ended his brilliant prep career with a game high 22 points, while Johnson added 12 for the Wave. LaFriniere topped Crookston's offensive showing with 18 points, while Brockemeier chipped in 13.

Crookston's championship performance was the Pirates' 10th district 31 title since 1913 with the other Crookston crowns coming in 1922, 23, 44, 46, 47, 55, 56, 58 and 59.

PROWLER CENTER Rande Smith (44) gets off a short hook shot against Crookston's Dave Brockemeier Wednesday night in the district 31 semi-final game at UND. Smith scored on this play and collected 16 points in the game, but later was plagued by foul trouble as the Pirates edged Thief River Falls 63-59.

Rande Smith

Jeff Rhoden

Two Thief River Falls players, senior center Rande Smith and junior forward Jeff Rhoden, were named to the eight man Big Five All-Conference basketball team.

District 31 champion Crookston placed three men on the squad, including senior forwards Gary Wagner and Dave Broekemeier and senior guard Scott Youngquist.

Two members of the East Grand Forks runner-up squad, senior forward Kurt Knoff and junior guard Rip Thompson, made the honor squad while senior forward Wayne Kobbervig rounded out the team.

Smith was the only repeater from the 1971 team, although Knoff was chosen to the 1970 squad before being injured for the entire conference season last year.

Smith and Rhoden ranked second and third respectively among league scorers during the 1971-72 campaign with Smith posting a 20.2 average and Rhoden 15.6 The Prowler combination also placed one-two in the conference rebounding charts with Smith pulling down an average of 20.7 caroms per game and Rhoden 11.9.

For the second time in three years Knoff was tabbed as the conference MVP as be captured the league scoring title with a 31.3 average while leading the Green Wave to their third straight loop crown.

Four players were also named as honorable mention picks, including junior guard Ordean Peterson, Thief River Falls, junior center Kevin Evenson, Climax; and senior forwards Jeff Norman and Bruce Schantzen of Warren.

Prowlers Stop Vikings In Consolation Game

Lincoln high school basketball team finished the 1971-72 campaign with an impressive 17-6 record as the Prowlers ended the season with a 92-78 district 31 consolation win over Climax Thursday night.

In a game with little meaning to either team after both squads suffered semi-final round losses the night before, the Prowlers and Vikings engaged in a surprisingly spirited offensive display.

Both squads were red-hot from the field at the outset of the contest, but helped by the 10-point scoring explosion of senior forward Tom Kays, Thief River Falls ran up to 21-9 bulge before the smaller Vikings cut the difference to just 24-21 at the first stop.

The inspired Vikings came to within 24-23 on Les Palm's two free throws to start the second quarter, but Jeff Rhoden's hot scoring hand, which netted the 6-3 junior 15 points in the first half, began to jell as he hit on a short jumper to give the Prowlers another three-point advantage, 26-23, with 7:25 remaining in the half.

Wayne Kobbervig, the Vikings' floor general, connected from long range to cut the Prowler lead to 26-25 with 7:15 left, but the strong board work of Rande Smith, Rhoden and Kays, along with balanced scoring from the entire starting five, began to take its effect as the Prowlers slowly pulled away to a comfortable 53-41 edge at the half.

Climax hurt its own cause in the third quarter with numerous turnovers while Kent Smith scored seven points in the first two minutes of the stanza, pushing the Thief River Falls lead to 61-41 with 6:06 remaining.

Flashing occasional displays of their season-long fast break offense, the Prowlers settled for a 78-57 lead going into the fourth quarter after leading by as much as 26 points in the third period.

The Prowlers shot an accurate 50 per cent from the field (39-of 78) for the game, while the Vikings shot a respectable 46 per cent (30 of 65) in the offensive-minded contest. From the free throw line the Prowlers sank 14 of 21 with the Vikings hitting on 14 of 25 gift tosses Thief River Falls held a bulging 36-22 rebound edge with Rande Smith pulling down 14 caroms. Both squads were hurt by turnovers with the Prowlers coughing up the ball 13 times and the Vikings 12.

Rhoden topped the balanced Prowler attack with 23 points while Rande scored 19, Kays 18, Kent Smith 14 and Ordean Peterson 10.

Prowlers Bow To Pirates 63-59 In District 31 Semi's

Crookston took advantage of two crucial fouls called against Prowler center Rande Smith in the waning moments of the third quarter to post a thrilling 63-59 come-from-behind win over Thief River Falls in the district 31 semi-finals Wednesday night in Grand Forks.

Smith, the backbone of the Thief River Falls club on both offense and defense, was called for two personal fouls, his third and fourth, in the last eight seconds of the third stanza. His fourth foul came right at the buzzer, sending the 6-5 senior to the bench to start the final quarter.

Meanwhile, the Pirates sank all four shots on two one-and-one situations to slice a 48-41 Thief River Falls lead with eight seconds left to just 48-45 going into the final eight minutes.

During Smith's absence, super sub Chuck Potter sank a pair of free throws to cut the difference to just 48-47 and junior forward Dave Broekemeier's three-point play gave the Pirates their first lead since midway through the first quarter, 50-48, with 7:01 left in the game.

Prowler guard Kent Smith's driving lay-up tied the game 50-50 with 6:05 remaining and TRF head coach Lee Swanson decided to insert Rande back in the Prowler line-up with 5:40 remaining.

But with Rande playing ultra-conservatively on defense to avoid his fifth, and final foul, Crookston continuously worked the ball into Pirate center Dave Dahlberg. Even with junior forward Jeff Rhoden dropping back from the Prowler zone to help defend against Dahlberg's driving tactics, the 6-5 Pirate senior managed to match his entire game point total in the fourth quarter as he collected seven points.

Dahlberg's first inside move netted the Pirates a 52-50 lead with 5:11 remaining before Rande countered with a nice move of his own to tie the game once again at 52-apeice.

Senior forward Tom Kays found himself completely alone under the Prowler basket for an easy two points and a 54-52 Thief River Falls lead with 4:35 left. But Crookston, gunning for its second straight district semi-final win over the Prowlers, connected on two buckets by Gary Wagner and Dahlberg for a 56-54 lead with four minutes remaining in the game.

Kent Smith's 10-foot jumper tied the game for the last time at 56-all with 3:41 left as the fan excitement reached a frenzied peak.

Once again Dahlberg drove nearly uncontested toward the bucket and Potter added a lay-up after a Prowler turnover to give the Pirates a 60-56 advantage with 3:04 remaining.

Rhoden pulled the Prowlers back to within 50-48 as he easily maneuvered around Dahleberg with 2:39 left to play. Rhoden turned in another outstanding individual performance moments later when he beautifully timed a blocked shot on Wagner, with an alert Kays picking up the loose ball. The play netted the Prowlers a free throw as Rande Smith trimmed the Pirate lead to just 60-59 with 1:03 remaining.

The very deliberate Pirate offense held onto the ball until Dahlberg sank a free throw with 41 seconds remaining, giving the Pirates a 61-59 lead.

With the Prowlers still very much in the thick of things, Kent Smith was called for an offensive foul on a questionable call while driving toward the basket with 33 seconds remaining.

Desperately trying to get the ball back, the Prowlers sent Brokemeier to the free throw line with eight seconds left and the 6-2 forward sank both gift tosses for the 63-59 final.

The Prowlers ended their frustrating night with another charging foul, this time against Rhoden with two seconds remaining.

Both teams looked exceptionally sharp to open the contest with Rande Smith's key rebounds and outside shooting touch pushing the Prowlers to a 15-11 first quarter lead.

The situation began to change slightly in the second canto as the Prowlers began forcing bad shots from the outside while the Pirates, led by guards Wagner and Potter, started driving through the Prowler defense.

Thief River Falls opened up a 12-point 27-15 lead with 4:48 remaining in the first half enroute to a 31-27 lead at intermission.

Rande Smith's short jump shot at the buzzer ending the first half was strangely disallowed, but the Pirates probably wished the shot had counted as Rande scored four points and pulled down two rebounds in the first minute of the third quarter, upping the Prowler lead to 37-27.

The Prowlers built another 10-point lead, 44-34, with 2:32 remaining in the third quarter before the Pirates began their comeback efforts.

Three Prowlers reached double figures with Rande Smith gathering 16, Kays 15 and Kent Smith 12. Dahlberg collected 14 for the Pirates while Brokemeier scored 14, Potter 11 and LaFriniere 10.

The Prowlers connected at a 47 per cent clip from the field during the game, but managed to sink only five of 12 free ghrow attempts. Crookston hit on 42 per cent of their field goals and added 17 to 22 free throws. The Prowlers held a narrow 28-27 rebound edge.

Burke Is Named To JC All-Star Squads

Tony Burke became the first Northland basketball player to be honored with post season All-Star selections last week when the 6-6 sophomore from Bemidji was chosen to the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) and the Region XIII honor squads.

Burke earned his spot on the 17-man MJCAA All-State team with impressive credentials during the 1971-72 campaign, including a scoring average of 21.2 points per game and a rebound average of 17.4 caroms per conference tilt.

Burke's selection to the second-team Region XIII honor squad was based on his season's play in all games, which included 20.5 and 16.5 scoring and rebounding averages.

The MJCAA covers all Minnesota junior colleges while the Region XIII area covers Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and parts of both Wisconsin and Michigan.

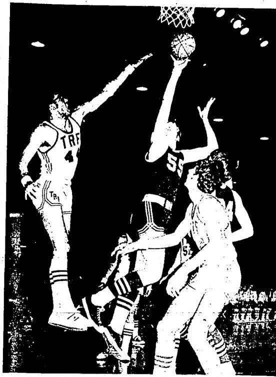
Named with Burke to the MJCAA All-State squad were Larry Potter and Dick Webber of Vermilion; Pablo Ronderos, Crookston Tech; Jerry Schwantz, Fergus Falls; Jack Olwell, Itasca; Rick Knutson, Austin; Eardis Carr, Bethany; Tony Clifton and Darrell Goring, Golden Valley; Tim Beaudry, Inver Hills; Russ Taylor, Metropolitan; Pete Van Nice and Tom Otterdahl, Normandale; Denny Voss and Mark Holmlund, Worthington; and Ron Gilbertson, Willmar.

Other MJCAA Northern Division players tabbed as honorable mention were Roger Wolters and Phil Aune, Brainerd; Bruce Smith, Fergus Falls; Bob Loushine, Hibbing; Neil McKenzie, Mesabi; Tom Marinaro and Gary Beckman, Vermilion; and Bob Johnson, Crookston Tech.

Named to the first-team Region XIII All-Star squad were Willie Austin, NDSSS Wahpeton; Pablo Ronderos, Crookston Tech; Jerry Schwantz, Fergus Falls; Pete Van Nice, Normandale; and Denny Voss, Worthington.

Selected to the second-team Region XIII squad, along with Burke, were Tim Beaudry, Inver Hills; Jim Bowen, Lake Region; Jack Olwell, Itasca and Ron Gilbertson, Willmar.

A third-team All-Region squad consisted of Dick Webber, Vermilion; Rick Condo, Bismark; Russ Taylor, Metropolitan; Larry Passint, Gogebic; and John Ford, Western Wisconsin Tech.



TYPICAL OF THE PLAY in the fourth quarter of Wednesday's district 31 semi-final game between Crookston and Thief River Falls was this driving lay-up by the Pirates' Dave Dahlberg. Prowler center Rande Smith (44) picked up his fourth personal foul as the third period ended, forcing Smith to give ground to Dahlberg who had been held in check with just seven points throughout the first three quarters. The Pirates junior center led a Crookston come from behind effort with seven points in the fourth stanza as the Pirates ousted the Prowlers from district competition for the second straight year with a 63-59 decision.

Crookston Will Face Stephen In Region Eight

Littlefork-Big Falls and Stephen retained their district basketball crowns over the weekend, while Crookston and Fosston provided new winners in area tournament action.

In Saturday night action Littlefork-Big Falls broke a 28-28 halftime tie to post an easy 62-48 win for its second straight district 29 title while Stephen edged Newfolden 67-66 for district 32 honors.

Friday night Fosston beat Mahnomen 62-48 in district 30 championship play and Crookston got by East Grand Forks 54-51 Thursday night in District 31.

Region eight tournament action will be held Friday and Saturday, March 17 and 18, at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse with Crookston meeting Stephen at 7 p.m. Friday night, followed by the Littlefork-Big Falls versus Fosston game.

The consolation and championship games will be played Saturday night with the champion advancing into the Minnesota class A state tournament at Williams Arena.

But to us who loved and lost him.
His memory will never grow old.
Sadly missed by his wife, daughter, Eileen and grandchildren. 1t21p

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, will meet in the council chambers in the Municipal Auditorium Building of said City at 7:00 p.m. on the 27th day of March, 1972, to consider making the following described improvements:

I. Street Construction

A. North Duluth & Arnold Avenues: The proposed construction would consist of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with gravel, subbase and base material, the construction of concrete curb and gutters, construction of hot-mixed bituminous surfacing and the installation of water and sewer service lines from the mains to behind the curb. Said construction to be on Arnold Ave. from 13th St. North a distance of 370' and on Duluth Avenue from 13th St. to 14th St. The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $33,000. The property benefited is all property abutting the proposed construction.

B. Cottonwood Ave North from West 1st St.
The proposed construction consists of the construction of a hot mixed bituminous surfacing on Cottonwood Ave. from 1st St. north to the north end of said Cottonwood Ave.
The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $2,500. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the construction.

C. West 1st Street and Countryside Trailer Court
The proposed construction consists of the construction of hot-mixed bituminous surfacing on 1st Street West from Barzen Ave. west to Westview Ave. and on all streets in Countryside Trailer Court and the construction of concrete curb and gutter on Westview from ½ block north of Stephen Street south to Christopher Street; on Stephen Street and on Christopher Street.
The estimated cost of the proposed improvement is $43,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the described improvement.

D. Streets between 4th and 8th and Main and Atlantic.
The proposed construction would consist of patching the existing road-mixed bituminous surfacing and overlaying said streets with a 1½" thick minimum layer of hot-mixed bituminous surfacing. Also, the replacement of existing curb and gutter as necessary to provide adequate drainage of the proposed streets. The proposed construction would be on LaBree Ave. from 4th to 8th St.; Horace Ave.—4th to 8th St.; 5th St.—Main to Atlantic; 6th St.—Main to Atlantic and 7th St.—Main to Atlantic.
The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $37,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction consists of all property abutting the proposed construction together with all property abutting the east line of Main Ave. between 4th and 8th St. and all property abutting the West Line of Atlantic Ave. from 4th St. to 8th St.

E. Riverside Trailer Court
The proposed construction includes the constructing of a hot-mixed bituminous surface on all streets in the Riverside Trailer Court.
The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $15,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the construction, Block 1 and the E½ of Block 2 of Riverside Addition to Thief River Falls.

F. North St. Paul, Markley, Kendall, Tindolph and Crocker Avenues, etc.
The proposed construction would consist of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with gravel subbase and base material, the replacement of existing curb and gutter where such curb and gutter does not provide adequate drainage. The construction of hot-mixed bituminous surfacing and the construction of concrete curb and gutter where no curb and gutter now exists and the replacement of any iron pipe water service lines together with the construction of water and sewer service lines to any vacant lots not now so served.
The proposed construction is on St. Paul Ave. from 1st St. to Mussey St.; on Markley Ave. from 1st St. to 3rd St.; on Kendall Ave. from 1st St. to Taft St.; Tindolph Ave. from Mussey to 3rd St.; Crocker Ave. from Mussey St. to Taft St. and Mussey St. from Crocker Ave. to Merriam Ave.
The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $75,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the construction and in addition thereto property lying within ½ block north and south of Mussey St. between Crocker Ave. and Merriam Ave.
We think it well to point out to the City Council and the property owners that the improvement of these streets was proposed at a hearing some years ago. At that time the proposal was to widen the curb to curb widths from the present 30' to 36'. There was considerable opposition to the project because of the cost of curb and gutter removal and replacement and the necessity of removing a large number of trees. It is our recommendation that two alternatives to the originally proposed widening be suggested to the property owners; either that the avenues be made one-way avenues with parking on both sides or that parking be allowed on only one side of the avenue.

G. Heinze Addition—Riverdale Drive
The proposed construction consists of constructing a hot-mixed bituminous surface, concrete curb and gutter on Riverdale Drive from Pennington Ave. west and south to the south end of said Riverdale Drive including the construction of a storm sewer from the south end of Riverdale Drive south to the existing drainage ditch.

K. Dale Street
The proposed construction consists of the construction of concrete curb and gutter and hot-mixed bituminous surfacing and installation of water and sewer service lines from the mains to behind the curbs on Dale Street from Edgewood Drive to Trunk Highway No. 59.

L. Off-Sale Store Lot and Frontage Road.
The proposed construction consists of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with gravel subbase and base material and constructing a hot-mixed bituminous surface on a parking lot at the Municipal Off-Sale Liquor Store and on a frontage road paralleling Trunk Highway No. 59 from Dale Street north a distance of approximately 250'.
The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $9,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting said construction.

The Crappie—Spring's Best Fish

Back in 1969 this column revealed that the majority of game fish taken by ice fishing are crappies. At that time we pointed out that the crappie is a member of the sunfish family along with bluegill and the large and small mouthed bass. The winter caught crappie is especially tasty. Unlike the other members of the sunfish family, the crappie often co-exists with heavy rough fish populations of carp and bullheads. There are two species of crappies in Minnesota. . .the black crappie and the white crappie. The easiet way to distringuish between them is by counting the spiny rays on the dorsal fin. The black crappie has seven or eight spines and the white crappie has five or six. The white crappie is paler colored and generally smaller than the black crappie. The white crappie occur mostly in the southern part of Minnesota, mostly south of the Twin Cities. It is generally smaller than the black crappie. The state record for the black crappie is five punds. This fish was caught by Tom Christerson in the Vermillion River in Dakota county in 1940. Since we have been fishing the crappie the year around the size has been growing with many three pounders entered in winter fishing conrests. The average age of a 12-inch crappie is eight years.

CrappieDiet

We have found the best winter bait to be a small minnow on a small jig. The crappie will fee on aquatic insects, crustacea, small minnows and other small fish. Plant material is sometimes eaten but this is a starvation diet. Crappie continue to feed through the winter.

Spawing Habits

Crappies usually begin to breed when they are two or three years old. Spawning usually occurs in May and June in Minnesota. The male excavates a nest, often where there is some vegetation, in water several feet deep and on various types of bottom soil. They spawn deeper than other members of the sunfish family; a habit which probably helps then to survive carp invested lakes. A female may lay from 20,000 to 140,000 eggs in the nest, which are fertilized by the male. Incubation usually lasts from five to ten days, with the male guarding the nest.

Keep A Score Card

A couple of years ago we asked fishermen to keep a fishing score card. We are making the same request this year. Here is what to do. Everytime you catch a fish mark down the color of the lure you are using. Make a note of whether the day is dark or bright. Mark down the time of day the fish was caught. Note the kind of fish it was. After you have marked several score cards send them to:

Minnesota Outdoord, P.O. Box 427, Spring Park, Minn. 55384.

From the research we have done so far in the past couple of years we have come to the conclusion that fish are not color blind. We have had the best luck with a bright lure on a bright day and a dark lure on a dark day. Perhaps it would be interesting if you would join in the research.

Liars Contest

There is still time to enter the 1972 Minnesota Outdoors liars contest. The tall tale does not have to be original. . .but the shorter the better. Send your stories to Minnesota Outdoors, P.O. Box 427, Spring Park, Minn. 55384.

Pat Buttram of the Green Acres tv program and Art Mercier, outdoor editor of WBBM—CBS, Chicago are the judges.

Wheeled Products Division Formed By Arctic Here

K. Gene Buroker

Dennis Bakke

Arctic Enterprises, Inc., has announced the formation of a wheeled products division which encompasses the engineering, manufacturing, marketing and sales of "Grass Cat" brand lawn and garden care equipment and Arctic Cat bikes.

Named general manager of the division is K. Gene Buroker. Dennis Bakke has been named sales supervisor.

Marketing and sales offices for the wheeled products division will be located in Thief River Falls. Engineering and manufacturing facilities will be located at the Omaha, Neb., plant of General Leisure Products corporation. General Leisure, which was acquired by Arctic in February of 1971, produces a line of private label lawn mowers in addition to Arctic Cat bikes and "Grass Cat" lawn and garden care equipment.

Refresher Course For Nurses At Junior College

A refresher course for registered nurses will be offered May 1 through May 26 in Thief River Falls under the co-sponsorship of Northland state junior college and the Northlands regional medical program. Minimum enrollment necessary to conduct the course has been set at 12 students.

Purpose of the course, according to Mrs. Mary Mergens, project coordinator, is to update the skill of RNs who have not practiced nursing in recent years and are considering returning to their profession.

The four-week course conbines classroom content and actual clinical experience in health care institutions. The curriculum devotes special attention to the nurse's expanded role in the delivery of health care by including information on teaching and learning, creativity, effective communication, death and grieving, drug abuse, coronary care and other areas. The emphasis is on nursing care rather than the setting where it is practiced.

Classes are held five days a week from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. to enable nurses with child care or homemaking responsibilities to attend. Two days each week are designated for clinical experience in a local hospital or other health care facility.

Tuition fee for the four-week course is $30. RN refreshers are also responsible for their own uniforms and textbooks.

Registration for the course may be made by calling Willard Kottke at Northland state junior college, 681-2181. Registrations may also be mailed. Upon receipt of student interest, official application blanks will be mailed to each person.

BSC Will Offer Course In City

Bemidji state college will offer the course "Traffic Engineering" beginning today (Monday) at 6:30 p.m. at Northland state junior college in Thief River Falls.

The graduate-undergraduate course was re-scheduled from February 28 because of tournament obligations and is a study of the problems of efficient movement of vehicular and pedestrian traffic. Tuition is $40.50 and Dave Hutchins of BSC health and safety faculty is instructor.

Girl Scout Week Is Observed By TR Falls Troops

Scouts of the United States. Present membership is almost 4 million. Membership is open to all girls of ages seven through 17 who accept the Girl Scout promise and laws.

Girl scouting offers a continuing program of activities centered around the arts, the home and the out-of-doors. The program is geared to the needs and interests of girls at each of four age levels: Brownie Girl Scouts (ages 7 and 8), Junior Girl Scouts (ages 9 through 11), Cadette Girl Scouts (ages 12 through 14) and Senior Girl Scouts (ages 15 through 17). In the Thief River Falls Neighborhood are Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Middle River and Newfolden with 260 girls and 40 active adult members in 21 Troops. Neighborhood chairwoman is Mrs. Richard Cullen, assisted by Mrs. Milton Hoff.

Girl Scouts work to earn badges which are awarded at an annual Court of Awards. Through out the year each troop undertakes many learning and service projects. Several troops visited the local hospital and nursing homes. One Cadette Troop served as assistants at the Discovery Place day care center. At Christmas time all troops participated in a Christmas party for retarded adults. They also sang Christmas carols in the downtown area and hospital.

A few Cadettes are serving as Candy Stripers at Northwestern hospital. The Candy Striper volunteer service was originally started by a Senior Girl Scout Troop several years ago. Now many girls, both scouts and non-scouts, are involved in this service.

During the Diamond Jubilee the Girl Scouts had a window display and a booth in the arena. They also participated in the parade. In November fourth grade troops attended the naturalization ceremony at the court house. Recently all troops presented a "Festival of Nations."

Nation-wide projects in which local Girl Scouts are involved include calendar and cookie sales. Cookies will be sold this year starting on April 8.

Camping is an important part of the Girl Scout program. For nearly 10 years local girls have had the use of Camp MOE. This is a 10-acre site located about four miles south of Thief River Falls. The property was given to the Girl Scout organization by Mr. and Mrs. Mons Engelstad, and is run by a camp committee. The camp has a lodge and can be used by the troops for either one day or overnight camping. It is also used for a summer day camp program.

Purpose of the organization is to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service so that they may become happy and resourceful citizens. To attain that goal, for 60 years the Girl Scouts' organization has stressed action—social action, interaction, ecological action and community service action—all stemming from the inner awareness and growth of the individual members.

A tour of the dairy facilities at the Northwest experiment station will conclude the day's program.

School Board Takes Action On Monday

Thief River Falls board of education approved signing of agreements for lease-purchase of the Arctic Enterprises building, terminated its post as host school for the Regional Interdistrict council (RIC), authorized the administration to issue contracts to specified teaching and administrative personnel and acted on a number of other matters at the regular meeting Monday evening at Lincoln senior high school.

The regular meeting followed a negotiating session with the faculty negotiating team. Lists of possible negotiable items were presented by both the board and teachers and reviewed by the two groups. At the next meeting—to be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. March 27—attempt will be made to reach agreement on the items which will be negotiated as the meetings continue.

Chairman Maynard Wedul and secretary E. C. Olson of the school board were authorized to sign the lease-purchase agreement with Arctic Enterprises, following approval of legality of the agreement by the law firm of Petterson and Popovich. Conditions of the agreement are payment of $6,600 per month with the first payment due August 1, 1972.

Termination of the RIC agreement providing special education for youngsters of the district was done to eliminate carrying full expenditures of the regional council on the local school district books. No services to special education students are to be curtailed, but a new method of administering the regional services must be arranged.

Resignations were received

It Takes A Drip To Keep Water Service Running

With a large number of requests to thaw out frozen water service lines, the utilities department in Thief River Falls suggests that city residents let a water faucet in their houses run at a fast drip to avoid freeze-up.

"We have had 25 calls on Tuesday and five already this morning," stated Morris Owen, superintendent of utilities about 10 a.m. today. Yesterday we were only able to answer nine of the 25 calls for service and people with water line problems will have to live with them until we can get the job done."

To avoid the inconvenience caused by frozen water lines, Owen suggested letting a faucet run at a fast drip. The cost of water used will be negligible and if the water keeps moving, even just a little bit, it will likely prevent freezing.

Apparently frost went deeper than usual this year and will reach some of the service lines normally deep enough to avoid the problem. Shallow service lines are almost sure to cause a problem if water flow is not sufficient to keep them open.

Owen said that there have been five water main breaks in the city during the winter as well as a number of service line breaks which usually affect only a single household.

C of C To Host Farmer-Merchant Mixer On Monday

Sixth annual farmer-merchant mixer will be held Monday at the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls, according to Vernon E. Nelson, chairman of the agri-business committee of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

All farmers from the area are invited to participate in the event which begins with a social hour from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. A smorgasbord-type meal will be served beginning at 7:30 p.m. A welcome will be given by a representative of the Chamber of Commerce and the response by James Muzzy, who farms north of Thief River Falls.

Preparations are being made for another capacity crowd and no advance registration is necessary for the farmer guests. All area farmers are invited to the stag event. Thief River Falls businessmen who have not been contacted for mixer tickets may purchase them at the door Monday evening.

"Businessmen of Thief River Falls want to take this opportunity to show their appreciation for farmer patronage during the year," Nelson said. "We feel that aside from the good fellowship displayed at such an event, it is a good place to discuss mutual problems of both farmers and merchants.

"Feel free to both ask questions and discuss any such problems you may have with your fellow businessmen, as both farmers and merchants are businessmen, and much could be gained by a friendly discussion of mutual problems."

Arctic Halts Construction; Awaits Decision On Water

Arctic Enterprises, represented by Ed Mazurek, announced that expansion of their present facilities in Thief River Falls has been halted and will take place elsewhere unless the city council can assure the company that the city's water system will be updated to keep pace with Arctic's projected needs for the future. Mazurek appeared at the Thief River Falls city council meeting Tuesday evening.

Supporting Mazurek's presentation were William LaFave of Arctic's board of directors; Richard Olson, who is Arctic's manager of facilities engineering; Don Elvig of Protection Mutual Insurance company; and James Murphey, who is Arctic's insurance broker.

The situation reportedly facing Arctic Enterprises is that the present water supply is not adequate to meet possible emergencies. Because of the deficiency, Arctic's insurance will be cancelled unless steps are taken to remedy the situation. Arctic would be able to continue to function for one more year but the company could not justify building at the present site unless it can expect to realize the potential of the expanded facilities, Mazurek said.

Proposed remedies include construction of a 500,000 gallon elevated water tank or additional mains. The topic will be fully discussed March 21 at 7:30 p.m., when the council will meet again. Mazurek stated that Arctic must have a definite answer by April 1.

In other business, Cliff Larson of the state highway department submitted plans and resolutions for constructing right turn lanes into commercial property along trunk highways 1, 32 and 59.

Art Stordahl of Stordahl trucking requested approval for him to purchase a small strip of land which is on the west side of the road across from his present property. The engineer will be instructed to stake out the property and call for bids on it.

There were several personnel changes made in city employment resulting from the retirement of Oscar Bakke. Clarence Breiland was named as

Public Meeting To Air County Reapportionment

To discuss reapportionment of the Pennington county commissioners' districts, a meeting will be held on March 24 at 1:30 p.m. in the Commissioners' room of the courthouse in Thief River Falls. The meeting will be open to the public.

Extending county road 62 was another topic discussed. The extension would be about one-fourth mile long and cross the railroad tracks to join the airport road. The county engineer was instructed to prepare an estimate of the cost.

For several years there has been discussion of developing a wildlife refuge in the Goose Lake area of Bray township. The proposal was made but not approved by the county board.

It was agreed to pay $592.35 for expenses from 1971 of the Agassiz health planning council. The council reviews and acts on proposed health care facilities for the area.

The county engineer was instructed to call for bids on the annual road and bridge maintenance. Items and services to be included are diesel fuel, fuel oil, gasoline, bridge materials, grading and graveling. The bid information and invitations will appear in the Thief River Falls Times.

Station Burned At Strandquist

No one was injured seriously when fire destroyed Johnson's Conoco station in Strandquist about noon on Monday.

About 11:20 a.m. "Doby" Erlandson parked a propane tank truck in front of the station's open garage door. As he started walking toward the station he reportedly heard something break on the truck and saw propane vapor shooting toward the open door. It is believed that the gas reached a heating unit in the station and ignited, causing an explosion.

Ray Hendrickson, Harry Brekke, Roy Stennes and August Lindgren were in or near the station at that time. All escaped with no more than minor burns. As the blaze continued, more gas escaped, causing more explosions and shooting flames into the air.

Witnesses estimated that flames reached a height of 75 to 100 feet and one explosion lifted the roof. A witness stated that it went up about eight feet before settling back into place.

Vernon Frankfurth, Strandquist's school superintendent, heard the first explosion and quickly checked to find the trouble. To eliminate possible danger to the students, he sent them out of the nearby school building until the fire burned itself out.

Carl Johnson, station manager, stated that he could not estimate the value of the loss at that time. He did not know if the account books and other receipts were in the safe at the time that the fire started and the debris was still too hot to try opening the safe.

The entire station was destroyed and everything in or near it, including Mileage gas delivery truck which was at the Conoco station for repairs and a car belonging to Lindgren who had just driven it into the garage for an oil change when Erlandson arrived in the propane truck.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rood of rural Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Hanson of Erskine.

Rev. H. S. Olson officiated at the couble ring ceremony attended by approximately 200 relatives and friends. Mrs. H. S. Olson served as organist. She played "Air" and "Bridal Chorus" for the processional and "Wedding March" as the recessional. She also accompanied Mrs. Gerald Tofte of Oklee, a friend of the couple, as she sang, "Children of the Heavenly Father" and "O Perfect Love."

Forming the setting for the candlelight service were candelabra and an arrangement of red and white carnations and gladioli. White bows marked the pews along the center aisle.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white satin fashioned with an empire waistline and long, fitted sleeves. Beaded lace, re-embroidered with seed pearls, trimmed the sleeves, high neckline and flowed down the front of the fitted bodice. Creating back interest was a long train attached at the waistline by a bow. Her chapel-length veil, edged with wide lace, was held by a lace bow headpiece. She carried six long-stemmed red carnations complemented by red and white ribbon streamers.

Miss Carolyn Rood, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Debbie Erickson of Thief River Falls, friend of the bride, and Miss Mary Hanson of Erskine, sister of the groom. All were attired in black tuxedos with white shirts, black bow ties and red carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue double-knit dress trimmed with matching lace. Navy blue accessories accented her attire. The mother of the groom was attired in an aqua knit dress complemented by black accessories. Both wore identical corsages composed of peppermint and white carnations.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hanson, Mrs. Selma Brekke, Mrs. Annie Rood and Mrs. Emma Schey.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception in the church parlors following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnsen, friends of the couple, served as host and hostess. Miss Glenda Trontvet, a friend of the couple, registered the guests as Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rood, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, served the punch.

The square, three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white with touches of lime green, was topped with a miniature bride and groom backed by a floral arch. Mrs. Gordon Borsvold, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Lester Brekke, aunt of the groom, cut and served the cake. At the coffee service were Mrs. Art Linder, aunt of the bride, and Edna Skiple, great-aunt of the groom. Waitresses were Mrs. Bernard Rustan and Mrs. Kermit Jordet.

The wedding gifts were opened by the bride and groom at their home.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Duluth, the bride wore a pink bonded crepe dress.

Correction Made In Arctic News

Correction in a news release supplied to the Times and published on Monday has been made by Arctic Enterprises, Inc.

The correction notes that K. Gene Buroker will be sales manager of the wheeled products division rather than general manager as indicated in the release.

"Additionally, the release may mislead. . .that Arctic is building a new facility in Omaha where its lawn and garden products manufacturing subsidiary, General Leisure Products, is based. This is not the case. The release merely deals with a new policy intended to separate manufacturing and marketing responsibilities of those products which General Leisure produces under private label from those which it produces under the Arctic brand name," the correction states.

Cadette Troop Is Active During Winter Months

Seventh Grade Cadette Troop 96 has had an active fall and winter. In October they camped out with cadettes of Middle River. Later they worked with and made toys for the preschoolers of Discovery Place to earn credit toward the child care badge. At Christmas they presented the Johnson home and Discovery Place with advent calander trains made from used Christmas cards.

They also participated in the annual Christmas party at Zion church and made treats, gifts and table decorations for a Christmas party which was held for preschoolers at St. John Church. One February week-end was spent at the Wallace Shodean home with some non-scout friends and a swimming party at Franklin pool with about 20 sixth grade Junior scouts.

The festival of nations was a big project for the cadettes, making more than 40 flags of nations which have girl scouts, preparing booths depicting girl scouting's world-wide organization and South Africa, and introducing the evening's program. In March the cadettes sponsored a public carnival and made cakes, cookies, pop corn balls, nearly 50 stuffed animals and gift enclosures for prizes. With the help of four adults and 15 junior scouts, they were able to raise money for future scout activities. For National Girl Scout week the cadettes assembled a window display at Penney's.

park foreman with a salary of $623 per month. Martin Nelson will fill Breiland's former job and receive $571 per month. Larry Joppru will work in the water department and Bruce Anderson is being hired as a meter reader. Joppru's salary will be $583 with two $15 raises at six-month intervals and Anderson's will be $533 with a $20 raise after six months plus $35 per month for car allowance.

Morris Owen asked about the wage being paid to part-time help. He said that it was very difficult to fill part-time jobs paying $1.60 per hour. He proposed that $1.75 be approved. He was told that the present scale permits department heads to pay up to $2 per hour, at their descretion, when they feel it is necessary to obtain sufficient help. Owen was also given a retroactive car allowance of $35 per month since January 1 for using his personal vehicle.

Thief River Falls ordinance number 376 which establishes pay rates is to be amended to include all shift workers under the same provisions for overtime pay. Some people had been inadvertently omitted originally.

A proposal was approved to purchase and install plexiglass in the north end of the hockey arena. Money from the camping fees at the tourist park had been ear-marked for that purpose. Approval of this proposal means that the order will be placed for the construction with the expectation of paying for it with the anticipated money from this coming camping season. The plexiglass installation will cost $2,200.

Gerald DeHaan, city assessor and building inspector, stated that he is meeting many deficiencies which produce a work load which warrants hiring a full-time building, housing and zoning inspector. The council agreed to run an advertisement requesting that people who are interested in applying for the position contact the state employment office.

The firm of Hodne-Stageberg of Minneapolis accepted a revised proposal which was submitted by the city council. Under the agreement Kermit Crouch of Hodne-Stageberg will be available for consultation as needed by the council, will review proposals made by the council or planning commission at the council's request and will update the data base to include information from the 1970 census.

There was one additional piece of information which may be of interest to some people. April 4 was set as the date when the ice will be removed from the hockey arena.

School Board Takes Action Monday Night

from Mrs. Vienna Grondahl, St. Hilaire elementary teacher; Mrs. Anna Waale, St. Hilaire elementary teacher; Thelma Peterson, cook's helper at Franklin JHS; Karen McCue, secretary at the area vocational-technical school; Ellen A. Peterson, Washington elementary school teacher; and Edwin Broughton, Franklin junior high school teacher. All were approved by the board.

Mrs. Marilyn Colby was hired as cook's helper at Franklin and a change in assignment was made for Dale Folger from administrative assistant to the principal at Franklin to classroom teacher in physical education effective June 3, 1972. He will replace Don Zaph in that position.

In authorizing the administration to issue contracts for faculty positions, the board approved several positions for which there is currently no personnel. In most cases the positions had been included in the budget but had not been filled. Supt. William Corliss indicated that it would be the administration's intent to fill counselor positions at Franklin, Lincoln and vocational-technical schools with women counselors, and also to hire a woman instructor in vocal music at the junior high school.

It is proposed that one counselor be hired for a new position at the junior high school and another for half-time work with the senior high school and vocational-technical school. Contracts will be issued without a salary figure, but under the continuing contract law teachers are assured of having contracts at no less than those of the previous year.

Adjustment was approved for realignment of secretarial responsibilities for Kathy Ford and completion of six-month probationary period, with a salary adjustment from $380 to $400 per month.

Hiring of K. Russell Anderson as architect and the firm of Stewart & Walker as engineers to review and initial the proposed facility changes at the Arctic Cat plant was approved by the board. Review and initialing is required by the state department of education in regard to proposed remodeling. Stanley N. Mortenson was also hired as school district attorney.

Resolution was also made in regard to the annual school election which will be held Tuesday, May 16. First date to file for office will be April 1 and the last day to file will be April 25. Two locations were set for voting—Lincoln senior high school and St. Hilaire elementary school. Judges of the election in Thief River Falls will be Mrs. Avis Holum, Mrs. Elizabeth Howick and Mrs. Vyann Feragen. Named judges at St. Hilaire were Mrs. Marlys Swanson, Lloyd Noreen and Harry Sjulson and Bob Miller as alternate. Ballots will be canvassed by the board immediately following the election.

Rules and regulations regarding the administration, maintenance and supervision of the Franklin junior high school swimming pool were approved. Changes provide that locker room attendants need not be teachers, that school time use of the pool is a school administration problem and that non-school use of the pool is the pool director's problem. The pool director must hold a current water safety instructor and Red Cross lifesaving certificate but need not have a school teaching certificate.

Transportation report was received by the board from Louis Longtin and Clair Carlson, showing forms used for record keeping in the transportation department. The district now operates 25 buses with the addition of six buses for the former St. Hilaire district.

Warn Of Tires Made For Use Off Highways

Many thousands of tires that were actually made for off-highway use and are exceedingly dangerous at high speeds are believed to be in use on our highways, W. R. Hoaglund, commissioner of public safety, announced today.

"Apparently many drivers have been convinced by dealers that the department of transportation warnings against such use are of no importance. It may be that some owners are driving on sub-standard tires from which the warnings have been removed, and are quite unaware of the danger.

"Vehicles equipped with such tires are a serious menace not only to their own drivers but to other drivers on the highway," he said. He suggested that owners who may suspect that they have sub-standard tires inspect them for warnings or for signs that the warnings have been removed. "A very low-priced new tire should be examined very carefully," he advised.

The department of transportation has required that such tires manufactured since 1968 be labeled. "During the past year, 80,000 such tires have been manufactured, a great many more than would be needed for off-highway use. This is a strong indication that thousands are in illegal use. The department of transportation has proceeded against two dealers for selling sub-standard tires and is investigating several more. It has concluded that the only effective way of dealing with the problem is to ban the manufacture of such tires altogether, and is now proposing such a ban."

Secretary Butz Opposes Control On Farm Prices

Secretary of agriculture Earl Butz sharply opposed proposed price controls on farm products in a talk at the agricultural outlook conference in Washington, D.C., last week.

University of Minnesota economist Willis Anthony, who attended the conference, said Butz opposed farm price controls for four reasons:

Farmers have not caused inflation. Since 1967, food prices have risen less than most other items on the consumer price index. In 1971, the proportion of the consumer dollar spent for food went down to 16 cents and is likely to be near 15 cents in 1972.

Controls likely will not work for seasonal and perishable food products. In the past price controls for agricultural commodities have resulted in black market activities, rationing, regulations, government priorities, allocations and other problems.

Farm income should not be suppressed. Per capita farm income in 1972 will average about three-fourths as high as average per capita non-farm incomes. In 1972, net farm income is likely to be higher than 1971, but may still be less than the record farm income of 17 billion dollars 25 years ago.

Agriculture is competitive. The main cause of present inflation is the exercise of concentrated economic power by special interest groups, Butz said. Concentrated economic power is exercised to administer prices, but in contrast, agriculture is highly competitive.

Firm Approves University Use Of Own Planes

An independent consulting firm has recommended that the University of Minnesota continue to operate its eight place twin-engine airplane and maintain its flight facilities at the Anoka county airport.

The report by Ralph E. Piper and company, aviation consultants of St. Louis, Mo., was made public Thursday by the regents' committee on budget, audit and legislative relationships.

"Having given careful consideration to the university flight department, its aircraft, facilities and personnel and having observed the services it has provided for the various departments, and comparing the costs of these services to other types of transportation, we find no better alternative than to continue the present system of operation," the report said.

The university owns and operates eight airplanes—three of which are used for university flights and five for pilot training and courses in aviation.

The report recommended written policies and an operations manual to prevent misunderstanding of the flight facilities and to avoid criticism. It also recommended a cost-accounting plan to improve the method of charging departments for their use of the flight facilities.

The report said that the average value of the time of a professor earning $25,000 per year (including all benefits) is about $28 per hour and that long trips by air save considerable amounts when compared to the costs of driving.

Driving to Crookston, for example, where the university has a campus, takes six hours and 12 minutes by car from the Twin Cities and less than one hour and 15 minutes by air. Cost of the King Air to Crookston is $312.04 while a charter flight on a similar plane would cost $515.04.

Ten fulltime employees work at the facility, including four pilots and two flight instructors. Three other flight instructors work part-time and one person is a part-time custodian of the grounds, the report said.

The report said that replacement cost of the university's facilities and airplanes would be $960,000 but that the university had obtained the equipment over time from gifts and earnings at less than that cost.

Of the total flights in 1970-71 by university aircraft, the administration scheduled 102 trips while agriculture scheduled 127. University services, such as engineering and physical plant offices, used the planes for 96 trips, the general extension division for 66 trips and the health sciences for 60.

The flight facilities were begun in 1939 when the university was one of 11 universitiies selected to pioneer the civilian pilot training program. During World War II, it was called the war training service and trained pilots for the military.

In 1951 because of a new highway at its site north of St. Paul, its location was moved to the Anoka county airport, where the university was given a 30-year lease for one dollar.

The facilities are still used to train pilots for the military services. During the current academic year, the air force has three student pilots, the Navy four, and the Army one student using the facilities. Next year, the Air Force comtemplates 21 student pilots, the report said.

Thirty five students who are not in the military used the facilities this year, it said.

"The flight training school has a history of costs above normal, but planned changes in the cost control indicate the possibility of operating with a margin of profit in the future. Provided the school shows a slight margin of profit to the University we recommend it remain in operation," the report said. The savings will be achieved this fiscal year primarily by the sharing of maintenance activities with other flight facilities, according to vice president James Brinkerhoff.

Compare Counties For 1971 Dairy Production

Stearns and Otter Tail counties repeated as champion and runnerup in county rankings of Minnesota dairy production for 1971, but some significant gains were scored by Goodhue, Winona, Olmsted, Nicollet and Hennepin counties, reports agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald.

One of only 10 counties that increased dairy cow inventories last year, while the state experienced an overall reduction by 8,000 cows, Stearns holds an undisputable lead with 65,200 cows, up 100, that produced a total of 659 million pounds of milk. That production represented nearly seven per cent of the state total.

Otter Tail actually had the biggest reduction in cows, 800, and coupled with a drop in average milk production by 400 pounds per head, experienced the biggest cutback in production, by 32 million pounds. But the 477 million pound yield by the 46,800 cows in Otter Tail still commands a safe lead over the nearest challenger.

Goodhue climbed over Todd county into third place in production rankings although ranking fifth and Todd third in number of milk cows. Goodhue did it by increasing average production per cow by 100 pounds to 10,600 for the year and joined the exclusive club of the 12 lead counties in production efficiency.

Ranked behind fourth place Todd county in total milk production last year are Wright, Morrison, Winona, Carver, McLeod and Fillmore counties. Winona moved up one notch from revised 1970 rankings, trading places with Carver.

Steele county tied Carven for the 1971 crown in top average production per cow, 10,800 pounds. Ramsey, Washington Dakota and Olmsted counties climbed into a second place tie with Meeker and Wright counties in production efficiency, all averaging 10,700 pounds per cow. Goodhue, Nicollet, Hennepin gained a tie with Scott for the third highest production averages. Changes in production efficiency rankings dropped Otter Tail and Pope counties from the top dozen. Twenty-seven counties dropped in average yields. Clay, Itasca and Redwood counties paced gainers, averaging 900 pounds more milk per cow.

Sherburne county made the biggest increase in milk cows last year, by 500 head. Others increasing herds were Marshall, St. Louis, Traverse, Kandiyohi, Todd, Wadena, Nobles, Rock and Stearns.

Ice Follies To Offer Variety Of New Routines

Ice Follies salutes the ecology movement in its opening production number, "It's Still a Beautiful World," with a look at a beautiful garden of flowers. Twenty-five lovely Folliettes in long, sherbert-shaded gowns get things rolling by skating to such tunes as "What a Lot of Flowers," "I'll Paint You a Song," and "Brand New Morning."

They are joined by Kathy Miller, Jimmy Stuart, The Boyers, Ricky Inglesi and Christie Ito and end up skating in unison to the strains of "We've Only Just Begun."

America's most lovable beagle is back for his second season still claiming to be the world's most famous skater and performing even more daring routines than last year. There's no telling where Snoopy will pop up during the show. He obviously loves his new life on skates.

Eight year-old Joy Lynn LeDuc, daughter of veteran skaters Bob and Kathy LeDuc, introduces "Nernie-the-Nurd" during the "Mix-up at Montessori" number. "Nernie" is a rather weird four-legged animal that defies description. Skaters Rik McKinnon (fore) and Dick Cooper (aft) who bring "Nernie" to life, call the Nurd the most fun animal they have ever portrayed.

The "Let Your Spirits Soar" production number starts with a darkened arena, a sudden flare of lights with skaters silhouetted by tiny light bulbs attached to their skates and unfolds into one of the most fantastic productions ever staged on ice. Starring the beautiful Karen Kresge and the dashing Ricky Inglesi, supported by 32 Ice Folliettes, the number is skated to the real sound of soul in American music.

Mr. Frick, who has been delighting Ice Follies audiences for 33 years, does it again. This year the ageless Swiss takes off on an expedition to the North Pole accompanied by a trapper friend (Jim Reid). When they arrive they are greeted by an Eskimo girl and a polar bear and the fun begins.

The romantic Richard Dwyer and his glamour quartet do their thing in a number called "For Beautiful People." Dwyer's four skating companions are gowned exquisitely. They are joined by the ever-popular Boyers. The theme music from "Love Story" heightens the romantic mood of this number.

Comedy occures when two sailors in the audience begin whistling and distrupting the solo number of a beautiful girl. A local policeman warns them to be quiet or he'll throw them out. The girl is too much for them and they rush out on the ice followed by the policeman. Naturally, it's the "Scarecrows" and that's when the action begins.

Those are just a few of the many acts in this year's Follies, another family show opening March 22 and running through April 2.

The 1972 edition of the Follies offers 16 performances to choose from. Tickets are $5.50, $4.50 and $3.50. Youngsters sixteen and under receive a $1.00 discount. Friday, March 31, there will be a special bargain matinee at 2 p.m. with all loge seats $3.50 and mezzanine $2.50. Group discounts and Golden Age discounts are available. For information, call 854-8585. Correspondence should be directed to Met Center, 7901 Cedar Avenue South, Minneapolis, 55420.

Performances include the following: Wed., Mar. 22, 8 p.m.; Thu., Mar. 23, 8 p.m.; Fri., Mar. 24, 8 p.m.; Sat., Mar. 25, 1 p.m.; Sat., Mar. 25, 5 p.m.; Sat., Mar. 25, 9 p.m. Sun., Mar. 26, 2 p.m.; Sun., Mar. 26, 6:30 p.m.; Wed., Mar. 29, 8 p.m.; Thu., Mar. 30, 8 p.m.; Fri., Mar. 31, 2 p.m.; Fri., Mar. 31, 8 p.m.; Sat., Apr. 1, 2 p.m.; Sat., Apr. 1, 8 p.m.; Sun., Apr. 2, 2 p.m.; and Sun., Apr. 2, 6:30 p.m.

Each year while in the Twin Cities, auditions for new skaters are held. Young skaters who would like to try out for the Ice Follies are asked to write Richard Dwyer, Ice Follies, 1600 Dain Tower, Minneapolis, 55402.

SBA Loans Aid In 220 New Jobs

Two hundred twenty new jobs will be created in Minnesota as a result of 46 loans disbursed in the state by banks and guaranteed by the Small Business administration during February.

These loans, according to Paul W. Jansen, district director of the Minnesota office of the SBA, amounted to $2,536,000. Small business firms wishing to apply for SBA loans can do so by contacting their local bank or the Small Business administration.

Wet and snowy weather is a particularly bad time to be driving on bald tires, the tire industry safety council advises. When two or more tread grooves are down to the safety minimum of one-sixteenth inch in depth the tire should be replaced immediately.

Suggests Doctors Have Greater Role In Team Leadership

"The public is acquiring an increasing distrust for health professionals because a health care delivery system that meets the public's expectations has not been produced," says Joseph V. Terenzio, president of Evanston (Ill.) hospital.

Terenzio is one of several authorities examining the physician's role in health care management in the March 1 issue of "The Hospital Medical Staff," a journal published by the American Hospital association largely for hospital-based physicians. Terenzio envisions the physician in a new role, quite different from that of the leader of the "medical care team."

The Evanston administrator sees doctor as a member of a team concerned with health care delivery, of which the episodic illness of one patient is only a part. According to Terenzio this new group will be composed of board members of a provider organization; physicians; administrative personnel; professional health care planners; specialists in public health, preventive medicine, community medicine and family care; and consumers.

Terenzio says that if the track record of physicians is examined, there would be little evidence of leadership in designing a system that provides more effective health care delivery. Instead, the biggest input into the health care delivery system is being made today by health care economists, politicians, labor union leaders, and private insurance companies, says Terenzio.

Floyd C. Mann, Ph.D., a behavioral scientist comments that if physicians were given an opportunity to participate in hospital decision-making, the quality of decisions would improve.

Mann, who is associated with the center for research on utilization of scientific knowledge, institute for social research, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, believes that physicians bring in-depth knowledge about health care problems and delivery to the decision-making process. Doctors also have learned basic scientific problem-solving principles which are helpful when translated into organizational problem-solving, according to Mann.

Samuel R. Sherman, M.D., senior surgeon at Mount Zion hospital, San Francisco, urges physicians to enter into the hospital's decision-making process by serving on the governing board.

"The physician no longer works in a vacuum, but has accepted the health team approach for patient care," Sherman says. "The doctor has expressed a genuine concern in making certain that the governance of his hospital meets the health needs of his patients and of the community, and he is willing to engage in a collective effort with other hospital trustees to plan for present and future needs."

Sherman asserts the doctor can serve effectively and make important contributions if he is selected to serve on a hospital's governing board in the same manner as other members of the board, with the same tenure, privileges and responsibilities. He adds that the young physicians on hospital staffs today are anxious to assume obligations.

Another contributor to the March issue, Lloyd Wescott, is president of the board of trustees of the Hunterdon medical center in Flemington, N.J., a center which from its inception has made physicians central to the decision-making process.

Wescott reports on the Hunterdon system and its mechanism to induce a staff of physicians to make group decisions and to assume a broad community responsibility. The process "does not work perfectly, but it works surprisingly well," Wescott says.

The issue, according to Wescott, is not whether physicians should be involved in the decision-making process in the hospital, but that they must be involved to a greater degree.

"Essentially administrators and governing boards have left their medical staffs with the delightful freedom to make vital decisions affecting the institution without being required to assume on overall responsibility to the community for the quality, comprehensiveness, or cost of medical care rendered," says Wescott.

RLF Hospital Is Recipient Of New Equipment

St. John's hospital gift and memorial fund has donated a new cardiac monitor writeout machine to the hospital. This piece of equipment is coupled with the monitor itself located at the nurses' station and enables the nurse to obtain an accurate printed record of exactly what is being monitored from the patient.

The machine is all transistorized and needs no warm up time. It was purchased at the cost of $735.

The gift and memorial fund was set up in February of 1971. Since that time the fund had grown to the amount of slightly over $900. With this purchase the fund will be back to about $165. All donations made to the fund are placed in a special account and accrued until enough is available for the purchase of some needed equipment for the patients.

All items purchased are to be plated with the inscription, "Donated by the St. John's Gift and Memorial Fund", and dated. This is the first item purchased by the fund. All donations are acknowledged by a letter of thanks from the fund.

Weber Elected Head Of Minn. Newspaper Ass'n.

John D. Weber, publisher of the Murray County Herald, Slayton, was elected president of the Minnesota Newspaper association (MNA) at the association's 106th annual meeting recently in Minneapolis.

Weber graduated from Slayton high school and joined the U. S. Navy at the age of 17. After returning from military service he enrolled at the University of Minnesota, but because of the sudden death of his father had to return to Slayton and take over the family newspaper before graduating.

His father, the late J. V. "Vin" Weber was an extremely active member of Minnesota Editorial Association (then MEA) and served as its president in 1927, just one year after John D. Weber was born. "Vin" was a state senator for 16 years.

Weber is married and has three boys—Vin, 19; Jim, 16; and Joey, 9. He has served on the Slayton school board, has been president of his local Chamber of Commerce, and has been mayor of his community. He belongs to numerous civic, political and religious organizations.

Other members of the nine-member board are: John R. Pfund, Norman County Index, Ada; Harry Davey, International Falls Daily Journal; John Meyer, Detroit Lakes Newspapers; Charles Warner, Brownton Bulletin; Robert Mack, Plainview News; Eugene D. Jobs Freed From Age Barrier By Labor Department

Some 118,500 jobs in the Midwest were freed of discriminatory age barriers through enforcement of the age discrimination in employment act (ADEA) by the U. S. department of labor, according to labor secretary J. D. Hodgson.

In an annual report to the Congress on administration of the act, in fiscal 1971, Secretary Hodgson announced various compliance statistics.

In the Chicago region (Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin) the department made 716 ADEA investigations. Some 237 of the 716 firms were found to be violating the law.

Wage-hour officials in the Chicago regional office say that to maximize enforcement efforts, most of the firms investigated are in the 500-employee plus category. The 237 firms agreed to correct infractions and to comply in the future indicating that discriminatory barriers were lifted from some 118,500 jobs in the six-state region.

As the investigation procedure sensitized all 716 investigated firms to the issue of age discrimination, an even larger number of jobs—nearly 350,000 for the region—may be viewed as freed of age barriers.

Secretary Hodgson also emphasized department efforts to secure voluntary compliance with the act.

In the Chicago region, there were 7,172 such compliance contacts of an educational nature about the act including walk-ins at labor department offices throughout the six states, telephone calls and correspondence in response to various public and employer queries.

The age discrimination in employment act encourages employment based on ability rather than on age. It protects most workers between 40 and 65 from discrimination in hiring, firing, pay, promotions, leave and other fringe benefits.

The act also bans placement of help-wanted advertising using such phrases as "recent college graduate", "junior executive", "age 18 to 25" or any others which imply older applicants will not be considered.

The report to Congress also cited several recent court cases won by the department on age discrimination. One, that is pending in federal district court, Chicago, is Hodgson v. Greyhound Lines, Inc., USDC NC Ill. Civil No. 69 C 2227 which arose from the firm's alleged refusal to hire bus drivers who are more than 35 years of age.

Secretary Hodgson noted that three more states enacted state age discrimination laws during the year leaving only 19 states and the District of Columbia without such standards. Of the six Chicago-region states, only Minnesota has no age bias law.

In the nation, approximately 685,000 establishments employing 43 million persons are covered by the federal law. The law does not apply to federal, state and local governments nor to establishments employing fewer than 25 persons.

THE ANNUAL big game census was flown March 2 covering the Agassiz national wildlife refuge and the adjacent state game management areas. Estimated deer numbers on the refuge was 1,020, along with 498 deer on the management areas, bringing the total number of deer to a record breaking 1,518. The previous high population was 1,300 deer recorded in 1949. At the time of the flight, habitat conditions appeared to be excellent and unless drastic weather occurrs before spring, the deer herd should come through the winter in good shape.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

There is a great need in our society for trained Christian psychiatrists and psychologists. The difference between the two is that the former is an M.D. who specializes in nervous and mental diseases and the psychologist is one with a masters or a Ph.D. degree in psychology only. Now this may seem to be a peculiar statement, but many professional people, clergymen, doctors, policemen and social workers will agree it is logical. Many problems in society stem from nervous people suffering and reacting to unresolved guilt feelings. Modern trends in psychiatry disagree with this approach and even go so far as to blame the "taboo" of Christian Morality for many complexes patients may have.

One psychiatrist, Dr. G. Brock Chisholm, is working in the government research program called Behavioral Research. He believes in an anti Christian view and has gone to say, "For many generations we have bowed our necks to the yoke of the conviction of sin. We have allowed all manner of poisonous certainties fed us by our parents, our Sunday School teachers, our priests, etc., and others with a vested interest in controlling us."

This attitude against the Christian concept of the nature of man is reflected in the modern permissive culture. The individual with a deep sense of unresolved guilt and with the many varieties of mental and social problems he might suffer, looks for help and may not get it. The reason might be a real lack of trained people who have not lost their faith in God or in Christ.

We hear much about mental health clinics and there is a great need for them. The character of these clinics is even more important. The use of drugs and psychotherapy to dissolve feelings of guilt does not always answer the patient's problem. To say there is no guilt when the person confesses to a specific crime against society, for example, is like telling a person in a burning building that it is not on fire. This type of approach is in essence what some of these trends in psychiatry are trying to do. It does not dispel the bad feelings in the patient and it does not work for children either. If we over protect the child so he has no conflict, he will not be able to make decisions when he is grown. Permissiveness creates more problems than facing up to this matter of "conviction of sin" as the psychiatrist mentioned.

There are apparently two different attitudes today concerning the approach to nervous problems. I have been aware of the growing government involvement in behavioral research. A few weeks ago there was a bill passed called the Child Control Act. This fortunately was vetoed by President Nixon. There are many programs being proposed to "help" us think better and more correctly. They will need close watching by all of us, as the Control Act mentioned above is one of the products of this type of thinking.

Here is a challenge for young people who are motivated to help others and who might be interested in psychiatry. The need is great for those who can keep their faith and their feet on the ground.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Sterilization is gaining in popularity. The Association for Voluntary Sterilization estimates that about one million Americans obtained sterilizations last year. Of these, 75 per cent were male patients.

The male sterilization procedure is known as a vasectomy, says the Minnesota State Medical association. Vasectomies are frequently done in a physician's office under local anesthetic, although many physicians prefer doing the operation in the hospital emergency or outpatient department.

The procedure takes only a few minutes. The physician makes two small incisions through the skin on either side of the scrotum, the sac containing the testicles which manufacture sperm. On each side he removes a half-inch segment of the vas deferens or tubes which carry the sperm to where they are mixed with semen. Semen is the fluid that surrounds and maintains the sperm.

The operation does not interfere with the ability to have an erection or ejaculate but the semen no longer contains sperm. The sperm deteriorate as they are manufactured and are absorbed by the white blood cells with no danger to the body.

Recovery is as simple as the operation. The patient is asked to take it easy for several days as he goes about his daily routine. Within two weeks, the stitches will dissolve or fall out. Contraception must be continued for about two months because it takes 12 to 15 ejaculations to empty the reservior of sperm at the end of the vas deferens.

In a few cases, vasectomies can be reversed, but the success rate is very low. Therefore, patients should consider the operation permanent.

Do you know that sore throats come in varieties? Many, many different things cause sore throats. Some people get a sore throat when they are overtired. Some people get a sore throat as an allergic reaction. More sore throats, however, are caused by one of two agents: the streptococcus bacteria or a virus. "Strep throat", is triggered by the streptococcus bacteria. A sore throat accompanying the common cold stems from a virus infection.

When a patient complains of a sore throat, the physician's first move is to determine what kind, says the Minnesota State Medical Association.

A streptococcal throat infection may be mild or it may be severe but it is always potentially dangerous because of complications which might accompany it such as rheumatic fever. Fortunately, there are number of tell-tale signs which betray strep throat to the physician. And, the many antibiotics now available are used to turn this potentially serious disease into a rather harmless one.

The sore throat stemming from a cold may make you feel more miserable that a strep throat, but it is less dangerous. In most cases, it will respond to standard treatment of gargles, aspirin, rest and patience. Generally, physicians will not prescribe antibiotics for a sore throat accompanying a cold unless he discovers that you have a cold plus a strep throat infection.

When a throat condition is severe, does not respond to aspirin or gargles, persists longer than a few days or becomes progressively worse, consult your physician.

License Law For Food Handlers Has Been Changed

Operators of some 1,000 seasonal drive-in refreshment stands in Minnesota were advised by agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald to defer sending in money and applications for renewal of their state retail ice milk and beverage manufacture licenses.

He explained that the 1971 legislature changed the state food handler license law. Licenses issued in 1971 will be valid through June 30, 1972, without regard to the April 1 or May 1 expiration dates on current licenses. Fees also were changed.

Renewal applications have been arriving in the food industries division of the Minnesota department of agriculture in increasing volume since March 1, as operators begin preparing for what they hope will be an early opening of the outdoor season.

Applications and payments received are being returned with an explanation and a copy of the new application forms that all seasonal drive-in operators will receive after May 1.

State food handler licenses are required of all retail ice milk or non-alcoholic beverage service establishments. Formerly two licenses have been consolidated into a single license at a flat annual fee of $15, instead of previously scaled fees of $6 to $42.50 that were determined by the volume of business.

However, the license extension applies only to renewals. Any new retail ice milk or beverage manufacturing and drive-in service establishment, any such businesses being reopened that did not operate or obtain a license in 1971, and any that have changed ownership or franchised leasee must contact the food industries division of the Minnesota department of agriculture for a valid new license at the $15 fee. New licenses will be issued only after the establishment has passed state inspection.

Advance Payment For Farmers Is Bergland Plea

U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland introduced last week legislation requiring the department of agriculture to implement advance payments for farmers participating in federal feed grain and wheat programs. Bergland's bill calls for advance payments of not less than 50 per cent to help farmers meet planting and operating expenses.

Speaking for the 25 co-sponsors of the bill he authored, Bergland said: "There can be no practical grounds for opposing the concept of advance payments. Payments made immediately after signup would not incur any additional costs to the government but it would add $1 billion to the pocketbooks of farmers—and subsequently to the cash registers of thousands of main street businesses—at a time when it is most needed."

In his statement Bergland emphasized the "urgency" of the measure. "Since the harvest of 1971," he said, "producers of wheat and feed grains have been faced with prices dipping to the lowest level since the great depression. In spite of slight increases at terminal markets, corn and wheat hardly bring more than break-even prices in most areas. The result will be—unless advance payments are initiated—that farmers will again be required to go deeply into debt to finance planting and operating costs."

When you check out your recreational vehicle for the coming season make sure the spare is in as good shape as the other tires. Some tire sizes, especially on smaller trailers, may not be available when and if you get off the beaten path.

If you are planning to add a camper body to a light truck, the original tires, valves and wheels may not be adequate to carry the aditional load. The tire industry safety council suggests consulting the vehicle manufacturer or your dealer on reccommended sizes and the possible need for a heavier suspension package.

Region Eight Basketball Tournament Starts Friday

A balanced region eight basketball tournament, with four evenly matched teams, begins Friday in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks with each head coach casting a cautious optimistic eye toward a possible berth in next week's Minnesota class A state tournament. None of the entries have claimed a regional crown since the state was realined into eight regions in 1931.

Crookston will face Stephen at 7 p.m. Friday, while Littlefork-Big Falls takes on Fosston at 8:45, in a field where there is no clear-cut favorite.

Littlefork-Big Falls enters the tournament for the second straight year and third time since 1968 with the most impressive record of the four hopefuls. The Vikings carry a hefty 19-4 record into the tournament. Losses have been at the hands of Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Eveleth and International Falls, a loss Littlefork-Big Falls later avenged by 19 points. The Vikings claimed their second straight Northland conference title this year with a 12-0 record, stretching their unbeaten conference winning streak to 30 games.

The Vikings will employ one of the biggest line-ups in the tournament with 6-7 senior Tom Morris, 6-5 junior Randy Cody and 6-3 junior Craig Jaakkola forming the front line. In the backcourt the Vikings will use 5-11 senior Dave Stelton and 5-8 junior Casey Foster. Also expected to see plenty of playing time are 6-1 Ken Olson, 5-11 John Polkinghorne and 5-10 junior Rod Fougner. Morris has turned in an outstanding season for the Vikings with a 22-point scoring average while pulling down 17 rebounds a game. Cody averaged 13 points and 10 rebounds a contest while Jaakkola added 11 points per game.

The Vikings averaged over 72 points per game during the regular season while limiting their opposition to a mere 52 point average. Admittedly head coach Don Rockstad says the key to his club's success is getting the ball insode to Morris and Cody. "Our real strength is our board work," said Rockstad, "if we can pull down the rebounds and work the ball inside to our two big men we'll do alright. We'll set up on offense and will play a lot of zone defense," said Rockstad.

Littlefork-Big Falls defeated Kelliher, Walker and LaPorte in district 29 action, winning the title game by a lopsided 62-48 count.

Stephen will also be making its second straight appearance in the classic, earning its way to the meet based on a 17-6 won-lost record. Among the Tigers' victims have been Newfolden, Climax and Oslo, as well as Top of the State conference foes. The Tigers claimed the conference crown with an undefeated league slate. Losses have come at the hands of Littlefork-Big Falls, East Grand Forks, Mentor and North Dakota class A consolation winner Langdon.

The Tigers' starting line-up will feature 6-5 junior Greg Kuznia at center, 6-1 seniors Scott Laudal and Pat Knoll at forwards and 6-1 senior Darrell Laudal, along with 5-10 junior Gary Chwialkowski at the guards. The Tigers' front line supplies the scoring punch with Scott Laudal and Kuznia scoring at a 15.1 clip and Knoll scoring 14 points per game. Kuznia is the club's big rebounder with an average of 13 per game.

"We'll try to fast break if the opportunity is there," said head coach Bill Leslie. Defensively we'll go with a man to man occasionally, but we'll mostly go with a combination of zones, it all depends on what the other team is doing on offense. Against Crookston I feel we'll have to try to control the boards and try to get through their press. I feel we're capable of beating them if we can keep our mistakes down to a minimum and get a good effort from everyone."

In district 32 competition the Tigers defeated Warroad (80-57), Kennedy (63-58) and Newfolden (67-66) to claim their second straight title.

Fosston won its first district 30 crown since 1968 with a 62-49 championship game win over Mahnomen last week. During the regular season Mahnomen defeated the Greyhounds to win the Pine to Prairie Conference crown.

Fosston's starting line-up will probably include 6-2 junior Dan Storrusten at center, 6-3 senior Bruce Anderson and 6-1 Steve Reitmeier at forwards and 5-10 seniors Scott Reierson and Gary Hilliard at guards. Anderson supplied a 16.2 scoring average during the regular season while Storrusten scored at a 15.3 clip and Hilliard added 11 points per game.

Fosston's 17-7 season record includes a pair of wins over Karlstad and Newfolden of district 32 while losses have been to Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Mentor, Ada and Gonvick.

"We'll go with a man to man defense against Littlefork," stated Greyhound head coach Ralph Boline, "we'll have to try to stop Morris and Cody up front. On offense we'll go with either a high or low post."

Crookston might be tagged with the slight favorite role going into the two-day tournament, but the advantage would be very small.

The Pirates' 12-7 regular season record was bolstered by three wins in the district 31 tournament in which Crookston beat Fisher (75-54), Thief River Falls (63-59) and East Grand Forks (54-51).

The Crookston starting line-up will find 6-5 junior Dave Dahlberg at center, 6-2 juniors Scott Youngquist and Dave Brockemeier at forwards, and 6-0 Gary Wagner, along with 5-11 Doug LaFriniere at the guards.

The Pirate offense is spearheaded by the outside shooting of Wagner and LaFriniere and the inside play of Brockemeier. Wagner averaged 12.5 points per game while Youngquist and Brockemeier added 10.6 points per game during the regular season.

Littlefork-Big Falls and Stephen have never won a spot in the Minnesota state tournament while Fosston has made six state appearances and Crookston has had two state tournament entries, but Fosston's appearances came in 1913-14-15-17-18 and 1921 while Crookston played in the 1922 and 1923 classics.

Northland state junior college basketball team, under the guidance of head coach Chet Engelman, virtually rewrote the school's record books during the 1971-72 campaign as the Northmen broke 24 team and 14 individual standards.

Among the team records set this year were 15 seasonal highs, including best season record (13-12), best offensive average (87.1), best defensive average (81.3), most field goals (855), best field goal percentage (46.3), most free throws (467), most rebounds (1,252), best rebounding average (50.1), most assists (318), best assist average (12.7), most loose ball recoveries (311), best recovery average (12.4), fewest turnovers (376) and lowest turnover average (15.0). The 1971-72 squad also tied a club record for best MJCCAA conference record (6-8) set in the 1966-67 season.

Included among the nine team one-game records set this year were the highs for most points (132), fewest points by an opponent (49), most field goals (60), best field goal percentage (73.0), most free throws attempted (63), most free throws made (44), most rebounds (71), most assists (33) and fewest turnovers (6).

Sophomre center Tony Burke led the way in the individual record breaking department as the 6-6 Bemidji high school graduate amassed 12 record breaking performances. Burke set new career standards for most field goals (336), best field goals percentage (52.2), most rebounds (716) and most recoveries (78). New seasonal highs set by Burke during the 1971-72 campaign were most points (513), most field goals (216), best field goal percentage (61.7) and most rebounds (413). Burke also set four one-game records including best field goal percentage (84.6), most offensive rebounds (16), most defensive rebounds (15) and most rebounds (28).

Other individual records set this year included a seasonal high of 69 recoveries by Willie Bayne and one-game high of eight assists by Darrell Stromlund.

Northland wins this season were posted over Itasca (82-70 and 84-72), Hibbing (120-96 and 90-57), Thief River Falls vocational school (132-49 and 85-57), NSJC alumni (109-68), Bottineau (82-67), Rainy River (83-77 and 82-75), Anoka-Ramsey (92-82) and Mesabi (95-93 and 82-81). Losses were suffered at the hands of Lake Region (108-87 and 107-83), Williston (92-77), Brainerd (84-76 and 83-74), Inver Hills (75-72), Vermilion (83-71 and 78-71), Fergus Falls (103-93 and 104-89) and Crookston Tech (85-83 and 88-80).

"Our goal for this year was to have a winning season," stated Engelman, "looking back on it now, I think maybe we might have set our standards just a little bit too low. I think we gained some needed confidence this season and next year we'll make it to the state tournament," Engelman flatly states.

"We'll have a hard time replacing Burke, but we'll have to go out and find someone that will do the job for us," Engelman added. "We have some good kids coming back, and with a good recruiting year we would definitely have state tournament aspirations," concluded the head coach.

1971-72 squad members expected to return next season include Willie Bayne, Darrell Stromlund, Jamie Tronnes, Larry Diamond, Mike Rasch, Dale Hanson and Kent Hanson. Burke and Jay Forney were the only sophomores on this year's team.

"As far as the high or low points in the season, I couldn't really put a finger on one or two games, but our Minneapolis trip against Anoka-Ramsey and Inver Hills were very satisfying, while on the other hand, the two losses to Brainerd were big disappointments," Engelman related.

Hockey is presently played by 21 junior colleges in the United States, with over half the teams coming from New York and Massachusetts.

Arctic Has 12 Ironwood Firsts

Arctic Cat snowmobiles won 12 out of a possible 18 first places at the World Series of snowmobiling last weekend at Ironwood, Mich. Larry Coltom of Thief River Falls placed first in the 340 modified class and third in the 295 modified class to claim $1,000 in prize money.

In addition to standard stock and modified class wins, Arctic machines won all three junior classes and three out of four women's stock classes as well as the only women's modified class.

Reports are that the weather was warm and the track was primarily mud and water rather than snow. Only Arctic, Polaris and Rupp machines placed first in the racing events, according to word received here.

ONE HIS WAY for an easy fast break lay-up, a donkey ball player's animal suddenly decided to stop, throwing its rider off balance during Friday night's fun-filled game in the Lincoln gym.

A SMALLER member of the traveling donkey crew proved to be a clutch performer during Friday's game in the Lincoln gym as the diminutive animal carries its larger passenger toward the basket.

Two-Day Canoe Race Sponsored By Aquatennial

Minneapolis Aquatennial association has announced it will include a 102-mile, two-day professional canoe race on the Mississippi River as a major event in its ten-day summer festival beginning July 21.

According to Jerry O'Neill, Aquatennial vice commodore in charge of sports and lake events, the 1972 International Aquatennial canoe classic will be the third largest in the world and will be jointly sponsored by the Minnesota Canoe association and Aquatennial.

R. Scot Foss of Bloominton, who will be chairman of the event, said the race will begin at Watab, seven miles above St. Cloud on the Mississippi, and that the first leg of the race will finish nine or ten grueling hours later at Anoka on Saturday, July 22. The next day the race will continue from Anoka to Minneapolis where the finish line will be at the University of Minnesota Showboat landing on East River Road.

Many of the more than 50 teams expected in the race, Foss added, will be from Minnesota as well as a dozen other states and Canada. Cash prizes totaling $4,000 will be offered, making it the richest canoe race in America. Foss further said that several competitors from the 1968 Olympics as well as former national and world champions have expressed an interest in the Aquatennial canoe classic.

Eugene E. Woolley, Aquatennial Commodore, said the event would be a major attraction among the 250 events scheduled for this summer's festival from July 21 to 30, which will feature the theme treatment of "Seas of Magellan—'72."

Commodore Wolley drew attention to the spectacular rise in canoe participation in recent years, especially in Minnesota where 200,000 canoes were register He said there were 1,500 members of the Canoe association in Minnesota, which is known as the "Canoe Capitol of the World."

More Regulations Now Apply To Pleasure Boaters

Beginning April 17 all recreational boaters, with a few exceptions, will be required to carry coast guard approved lifesaving equipment in a readily accessible location while on the water.

The new ruling comes as an interim regulation to the federal boat safety act of 1972. Boats that were previously exempted from carrying life saving devices, such as boats propelled or controlled by oars, paddles, poles, sails or by another vessel, will be required to carry the proper number of coast guard approved lifesaving devices. Regulations are already in effect for boats equipped with propulsion machinery.

Commander Kenneth D. Albritton, coast guard district chief of the boating safety division, explains that the reason for the interim regulation is Section 5(b) of the boat safety act of 1971 which states that regulations may have an effective date less than 180 days from the date of issuance if "there exists a boating safety hazard so critical as to require an earlier effective date.

Allowing the boats covered by this rule to continue to operate without approved lifesaving devices for even one more boating season might have involved the unneccessary loss of many lives."

Except for a few special cases such as racing canoes, racing shells and rowing sculls, the new regulations will apply to boats manufactured or used primarily for noncommercial use, boats leased, rented or chartered to non-commercial users, and boats engaged in carrying six or fewer passengers for hire, propelled by any of the means above.

The majority of comments during the public hearing held Dec. 16, 1971, were concerned with white-water canoes and similar boats. Freedom of movement requirements and difficulty of stowage on these boats required special consideration.

The new regulations specify vest-type life saving devices which, although they are not coast guard approved, will be acceptable for canoes and kayaks enclosed by a deck or spray skirt. Racing shells or rowing sculls need not carry lifesaving equipment if enough approved devices are on board an accompaning vessel for both that vessel and the scull or shell. Sailboats of the sailboard type will be required to comply with the regulations, as there are now coast guard approved devices specifically designed to meet the movement requirements of these sailors.

Boats without propulsion machinery will have requirements as to the type of coast guard approved lifesaving devices they carry. These requirements are similar to the requirements which are in affect now for boats with propulsion machinery. Specifically, a boat less than 40 feet long will need at least one life preserver, ring life buoy, buoyant vest, buoyant cushion, or special purpose water safety buoyant device for each person on board.

Boats 40 to less than 65 feet long must have at least one life preserver or ring life buoy on board for each person. Boats 65 feet long or over must have one or more life preservers on board for each person. These must be readily accessible, coast guard approved, in good and serviceable condition, and legibly marked with markings required by law for that item of equipment.

Area Residents Attend National FU Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Berg, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Naplin and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson returned from Houston, Texas recently where they attended the 70th annual national convention of the Farmers Union.

More than 2,000 delegates and guests at the farm organization conference heard presidential candidates Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern attack administration policies for agriculture.

Humphrey charged, "the administration is trying to peddle a phony election year line that these are good times on the farm. . . the Nixon record on the needs of farmers is one of failure and neglect."

McGovern added, "Someone hasn't been paying attention to the struggle to save the family farm," and said, "the parity ratio has fallen as low as 67 per cent, the lowest since World War II."

Delegates adopted resolutions calling for a new approach to farm policy that would assure parity income for small and medium-sized farms and cut off payments to large corporation farms. The national president of Farmers Union, Tony Dechant, called the plan "a complete turnaround from present policies" and said that it was needed to halt the disappearance of the family farm.

In other convention action, delegates picked Omaha, Neb. as the site of the 1973 convention, re-elected Dechant as president, and elected E. W. Smith, Jamestown, North Dakota, as vice president.

Delegates heard panels headed by Governors William Guy of North Dakota and David Hall of Oklahoma discuss the invasion of farming by off-farm corporations, and a panel on local taxes headed by Governors Robert Docking of Kansas and Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin.

U. S. Senator Gal McGee, (D-Wyo.) headed a panel on voter registration and Nebraska Governor J. James Exon spoke on state legislatures.

Safety, Health Amendments To Become Effective

Forty-three amendments to construction safety and health standards will become effective March 17, the occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) has announced.

George C. Guenther, assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health, who heads OSHA, said the amendments cover a wide range of subjects and vary in significance.

The original standards were issued April 17, 1971, and applied to all construction. OSHA announced the proposed amendments on September 28 and held a later hearing.

"The amendments are the result of written comments and oral testimony we received from interested persons and associations, such as the associated general contractors, the national association of homebuilders and the national constructors association, recommendations of the OSHA advisory committee on construction safety, and of course our own consideration," Guenther said. "The overriding concern in every case was the appropriateness of the proposed standard to assure a safe or healthful place of employment."

Guenther said the amendments include requirements that:

A qualified person or persons be on the worksite to render first aid where medical facilities are not readily available;

Safety belts, lifelines and lanyards, once exposed to in-service loading, be removed from further service as lifelines;

Safety nets be installed no more than 25 feet below the work surface and extend eight feet beyond the edge;

Fenders be used only on rubber-tired vehicles designed for them; all other vehicles may use mud flaps;

Solid fuel heaters continue to be prohibited, and that oil-fired salamanders be permitted.

Specified hand tools be equipped with positive "on-off" controls, momentary contact "on-off" controls with lock-on control, or constant pressure switches, depending on the tool;

Custom design rigging equipment be marked with its capacity and pretested to 125 per cent of the rated load;

Excavations include sheeting, shoring, regular inspection, protection in hazardous atmospheres, avoidance of underground utilities and means of exit for workers;

Shoring of trench walls begin at depths of five feet, and that protable trench boxes or sliding trench shields be used in lieu of sloping or shoring when they provide equal or greater protection.

As announced earlier, the record remains open until May 1 to receive additional comments on overload protective devices on cranes and derricks.

The amendments were published in the "Federal Register" February 16.

Corporate Farms Must Report To State Officer

A deadline is near for farming operations which are required to report to the Minnesota secretary of state, under a law approved by the 1971 Minnesota legislature.

A reminder was issued this week by C. R. Appelman, secretary of Pennington county Farmers Union, that Chapter 201, 1971 Minnesota Laws, requires that all corporations engaged in farming must annually, not later than March 15, report to the Minnesota secretary of state on the extent and location of their farming operations.

Reports forms are available from the county agent's office or by writing to Secretary of State Arlen Erdahl, State Capitol, St. Paul, Minn. 55101.

Purpose of the law is "to determine the amount of land which is owned by or leased by corporations, foreign and domestic, and is used for agricultural purposes."

The report is required for all farming corporations, whether they own or lease the land.

In the report, the corporate farms are required to reveal their ownership, principal officers and members of the board of directors and the acreage and location of each parcel of land used for farming, listed by section, township and county.

Appelman said that following the March 15 deadline for registration of corporate farms, Farmers Union would check the list filed with the secretary of state to determine whether all known incorporated farms in the county had reported.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Volume 61 Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, March 15, 1972 Number 22

Federal Funds To Be Used For Sign Removals

Minnesota will receive $300,000 from the federal highway administration, under the provisions of the Highway Beautification Act of 1965 and subsequent amendments to it, for the removal of advertising signs along interstate and primary highways in fiscal year 1972, ending June 30. About 800 signs will be removed on the most heavily traveled roads. Including state money, it will cost about $500 to remove each sign. Part of the money will be for administrative expenses.

Although Minnesota has had a state billboard control law since 1965, federal aid became available only upon revision of that act by the 1971 legislature. In amending it to conform to federal law, the legislature extended sign control to highways within corporate limits.

Under terms of the agreement with the federal highway administration, federal funds will be made available to pay for three-fourths of the cost of a five-year sign removal program, totaling over $8 million.

On completion of the five-year billboard removal effort, it is anticipated that half of the 23,000 remaining signs will be gone. A million dollars is scheduled to be spent on the removal of 3,000 signs in fiscal year 1973, a million and a half per year for the removal of 3,000 more in fiscal years 1974 and 1975 and two million for the removal of 4,000 signs in fiscal year 1976. According to the numbers quoted, the complete program will cost about $465 per sign.

An initial inventory in 1966 accounted for approximately 65,000 roadside advertising devices, whose number has since been reduced to about 23,000. Some 32,000 were removed by sign owners or by the Highway department after hearings were held. Another 10,000 were taken down by owners who did not want to pay the permit fee prescribed by law. Since the original inventory 3,000 new signs, for which permit fees were paid, have been erected. They were allowed to go up while others were being removed at public expense.

Change Seen In Social Service Adoption Program

A decrease in the number of children referred for adoption, consistent with a national trend, has brought a change of focus in the adoption program of Lutheran social service of Minnesota.

The agency, now engaged in a $3,750,000 fund appeal among the three major Lutheran bodies in the state, placed 862 children for adoption in 1971, 161 fewer than the previous year.

Clayton H. Hagen, supervisor of the LSS adoption unit, noted four other changes taking place in the adoption picture:

(1) A continuing increase in placements of non-Caucasion infant—from 40 per cent in 1970 to 53 per cent in 1971.

(2) A continuing increase in placements of children from other areas than Minnesota—from 30 per cent in 1970 to 48 per cent in 1971.

(3) A significant drop in the number of black infants referred for adoption—from 121 in 1970 to 106 in 1972. "There seems to be good evidence that the label 'hard-to-place' has been removed from the black child as it has from the Indian and Korean children, and these children have also become desirable with a waiting list for them," Hagen reported.

(4) Firmer commitment to children who continue to wait for placement. These are mentally and physically impaired children and also those in other countries. Development of supportive services is required to assist families who may be unsure of their abilities to parent these children by themselves.

As the agency considers its response to the present adoption situation, Hagen said more focus will be given to the child who is available, whether Caucasian or non-Caucasian. An integral part of the total program is the further development of post placement and post adoption services. "It seems definite," Hagen said, "that many couples feel more able to consider adoption of children who may have special needs if they know the agency will be available to them as they parent their child."

Of the 455 non-Caucasian infants placed in 1971, Korean children accounted for 262. Hagen said the parnership which LSS has with Korean social service "is unique and seems to be the most appropriate way to work with people in other countries also."

Public Safety Official Scores Poor Seat Belts

Minnesota public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund today lashed out at U. S. auto manufacturers for "their poor design of the seat belt assembly which definitely discourages use of the belts.

"We have checked out several of the 1972 model cars," Hoaglund said, "and find it all but impossible to fasten the seat belts. In most cases, one end of the belt is snubbed so close to the seat that it is extremely difficult to get two hands on the mechanism to fasten it. And the problem is compounded in the northern states where occupants wear bulky outer clothing during more than half the year.

"This very bad design is particularly disturbing to those of us in the safety field because of the continuing efforts we expend in encouraging the driving and riding public to save lives and injuries by buckling up.

"Countless surveys have shown that buckling up is a matter of habit, and if the belt is easy to fasten, people are more prone to use them. If they're almost impossible to fasten, as is the case with many 1972 makes, even faithful users are going to give up using them.

"It appears that the country's auto manufacturers are adhering to the bare, minimum standards of the law by installing the belts in cars, but are making no effort to make them usable. In fact, we seem to be regressing, because belts in older cars are easier to fasten than in the new models."

What is to you . . . THIS CHURCH GOING?

Why, you say, do ministers and other Christians so constantly urge you to go to church?

It's probably because you're human. They know that there lies within you an urgent lack of confidence in yourself, a feeling of dependence on a Supreme Being. When you lift your heart in prayer or raise your voice in hymns of praise, your spiritual energy is renewed.

They know, too, there is something in the human heart that makes men brothers — more fully satisfied to SHARE in worship.

Going to church is all that . . . and much more!

Fun For Farmers

Farmers in the Thief River Falls community are again invited by the agri-business committee of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce to attend the farmer-merchant mixer on Monday evening. Social hour will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and dinner will be served promptly at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion club rooms.

This is the sixth year that the event will have been held and we are sure that better understanding and closer relationships have developed among farm and city residents because of it. Too often in the course of everyday events we don't take the time for the neighborly visits with our customers from the country who are such a vital part of the community in which we share.

Each year the farmer-merchant mixer gives the businessman and farmer an opportunity to sit down and visit without the pressure of a daily routine to hamper the conversation. They can talk about any subject they choose, from rain to grain and potash to politics. Differences of opinion can be sounded out and insight received into how those opinions are formed.

Each year the response to the event has been excellent by the visiting farmers and the sponsoring merchants alike. No advance listing is necessary as preparations are being made for a capacity crowd, according to Vernon E. Nelson, chairman of the agri-business committee. All area farmers are encouraged to be guests of the businessmen at the free, stag event.

Through the Loophole

Procedure proposed to help secure a motel and dining complex for the Thief River Falls community is a somewhat strange approach. Taking advantage of a legal loophole seems to us to be a somewhat unnecessary back-door, round-about way to accomplish a desired end.

The city council is endeavoring by its endorsement of the circumvention of the law to "have its cake and eat it too". It wants to have a motel-dining complex in the city with a license to serve liquor but wants to retain the municipal liquor operation which annually turns over city coffers in excess of $120,000 in revenue.

While apparently legal, the action proposed does not appear to be entirely right and proper. De-annexing an area recently annexed and then re-annexing the de-annexed area after a county liquor license has been issued seems to take undue advantage of the law.

We recognize that legal loopholes are being used many times every day across the nation, and that one of the tasks of attorneys is to find and use these loopholes to the advantage of their clients. But we cringe a little when such an obvious attempt is brought before us on a strictly local basis, for it seems to us to go against the grain of good old American standards of good conduct, honest government and facing the issue head-on.

We can't fault the developer for making a liquor license a condition of construction, for it appears to be his opinion that serving liquor would be a necessary part of his operation. And few will deny that the complex proposed would be a great asset to our community. It is simply the means to the end which is open to question at this time.

Perhaps we look to the city council for showing the courage to take the issue on its merits. Is the proposed complex worth enough to the city to sacrifice a portion of the municipal revenue? Or is it only worth enough to compromise the personal principles of the council members.

Family Conference

Mrs. John Pfund, writing in the Norman County Index at Ada, sets forth a family conference suggestion as prepared by her brother, Rev. Alan Olson of Montebello, Calif. While the suggestions may not be applicable in all cases, perhaps there are portions which would be helpful in establishing better family understanding and harmony. The guidelines follow:

Guidelines For A Family Conference Including Children

The following procedures have come out of a wide experience of how people need to develop a new awareness of listening so that genuine communication will take place and people will really hear one another. These procedures have been especially helpful to families that have experienced marriage conflict and child behavior problems. The purpose of the family conference is to create a climate where parents and children may feel free to express thoughts and feelings without any fear of punishment or retaliation at the time or later.

Our Family Will Agree:

1. The whole family will meet together 1, 2, or 3 times each week when needed or at a time agreed upon by all.
2. Each family member will have a turn at sharing feelings.
3. Our sharing will take place for at least thirty minutes. After thirty minutes any member is free to leave.
4. Anything (personal problems, happy experiences, feelings, questions, requests or goals) may be discussed.
5. Family members are permitted to shout, cry or sulk but no hitting or violence is permitted.
6. One member is recorder and reviews the rules of family conference and decisions to be corrected and acted upon at each meeting.
7. Family decided to act on agreements. Action plans are not finally ended until the problem which needs correction has been corrected.
8. Any person may request a problem not be mentioned until the next meeting after accepting the responsibility to work it out.
9. Any family member may call a conference at any time.
10. Progress and action plans of the previous meeting shall be reviewed at the beginning of the next meeting.

Suggestions To Parents

1. Decisions are finally made in the family by the parents, since they are responsible for the family. The family is not and should not pretend to be a democracy. The family members are not and connot be equally responsible and therefore they cannot have equal authority.
2. Parents will certainly listen to reasonable suggestions of their children and accommodate individual interests whenever this can be responsibly done, especially when the children have performed responsibly themselves.
3. It is especially meaningful when parents present their own program of self-improvement and self-punishment to the children. Children respect parents who are honest about their own irresponsibility and feel close to parents who are trying to make themselves better.
4. Loving parents give praises and privileges, discipline and punishments when they are deserved; they try to help children grow in every responsible way, dealing firmly, promptly and consistently with their own and their children's performance.
5. When the parents cannot reach satisfactory solutions together in a reasonable time, they should seek counseling help until they can agree. Unresolved issues in marriage and family life may lead to very serious consequences.

Another Kick Coming?

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

Farmers in our area have had a few things breaking in their direction for the past few months. It has actually reached the point, through adequate livestock prices, where the producer is once again able go make a decent living. But if the Cost of Living Council has its way, there may be another kick in the backside coming to the producers of food and fiber.

Meat prices, the Council seems to believe, are too high. They are contributing to inflation and contrary to administration efforts to stabilize the economy. Possible measures to be taken include price controls on meat and-or liberalizing of the government policy on the importation of beef.

A couple of weeks ago, several daily newspapers including one in this area which should have known better, carried lengthy and detailed but entirely misleading articles regarding the trend in beef prices for the past twenty years. The stories pointed out that beef is indeed higher priced today than it was twenty years ago—but what isn't?

The percentage of increase in the price of live beef is woefully low when compared to price trends in nearly every other product including state and federal taxes. The price of processing meat products, on the other hand, is substantially higher in practically every plant in the country with the exception of those which have gone to automation to the fullest extent and even in those cases processing prices have contributed by far the greatest amount of increase to the price charged consumers in the retail markets.

It seems to us that every federal administration in the past two decades has been determined to make an impossible situation for the small farmer even worse. Controls and more imports will certainly only be more detrimental to mer—and the importation of beef from other countries certainly is not going to other countries certainly is not going to be beneficial to the over-all picture regarding the American economy.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

I am very disappointed by the action of the city council of Thief River Falls wherein it agreed to de-annex a parcel of land from the city (give it back to the county) so that a proposed motel can be built on the site and can secure a liquor license from the county commissioners, and then can be re-annexed by the city, so the motel can come back into the city with a liquor license and can serve alcoholic beverages to the public within the city limits.

I can understand how, after hearing the announcement that a large motel might be built in our town—if certain conditions were met, the granting of a liquor license being one of them—the city council would vote for almost anything to secure that motel. (1) The city would receive additional tax income. (2) The motel complex would be able to have city water and sewage. (3) Another motel would enhance the prestige of the city. (4) It is widely suggested that the promoters of the motel will not agree to build their motel unless they can get a liquor license.

I heartily support new business expansion for Thief River Falls. And I do not protest this action out of any regard for or against the use of alcoholic beverages. That is not the issue, here. Nor do I quarrel with what seems to be an economic fact of life—that investors are reluctant to build motels or restaurants unless they can also serve liquor.

I protest because although the action of the council is within the provision of the law, it utilizes a legal loop hole which perverts the basic intent of the law. Here are the facts: (1) The law of the state of Minnesota prohibits all cities of our size from having the right to sell liquor through a municipal outlet at the same time it grants private liquor licenses. (2) If a city wishes to maintain both its municipal outlet and grant liquor licenses to private businesses (split-liquor), the law states that the voters, not the City Council, shall decide the issue in a special referendum. (3) A few years ago that very question was put before the voters of Thief River Falls. In that vote on whether to have split liquor, the voters registered their opposition. (4) The City Council, under pressure from the motel promoters, is trying, through a loop hole in the law, to do what the voters of this City specifically voted against. (5) The City Council could grant a liquor license to the motel right now, under the present law, without de-annexation or re-annexation, if it was willing to close up the off-sale section of the municipal liquor store and keep only the on-sale operation. (6) The City Council is unwilling to do so, even though it could continue the on-sale portion of the municipal liquor store, because the big money is in the off-sale, and the Council does not want to lose that revenue. (7) So the Council resorts to political expediency.

Probably, in the anticipation of a fine addition to the business of our city, very few members of the council asked the most important question: If I am an honest, moral man, and I seek to represent a completely open, honorable city, is this vote worthy of me?

Pastors are often accused of making the Christian ideal of the moral life so nebulous and cloudy that no one knows how to live it. Christian laymen very rightly demand of their pastors, "Quit giving us nebulous ideas; give us some particulars; give us some specific examples of Christian decision making for today." Well, here we have a particular! If our Christian morality does not come to bear in this type of decision, then we should ask ourselves, where does it ever come to bear?

Does a moral, a Christian man, vote for something that he knows is unscrupulous or slightly below board? Does such a man vote for something that, while it is lawful, is also in violation of the intent and purpose of the law? Of course a new motel means growth! But at what cost? A the cost of respect for ourselves and our elected representatives in government?

I submit that the cost is too high! Our sacred American institutions of government are coming under increased attack, especially from the young. They are disillusioned by decisions which are made under the table for expediency and money's sake. We tell them to get involved in government to see that it is really a good and clean thing. But they see decisions such as this motel decision, and hundreds like it in cities states across the nation, and even in our federal government. Can we blame them if they decide that our institutions are immoral, unscrupulous and unworthy of their support and participation? Is this motel decision an example of American government and our ideals that we would willingly hold up to the young—our own children—and say this is what we stand for? I think not!

To de-annex and then re-annex a portion of the city, just to circumvent the law, is beneath the dignity of the men of the council.

It is not too late for the council to reverse itself. The council could once again submit the split liquor question to the voters. If the voters become convinced, as the council seems convinced, that a motel with a liquor outlet is vital to our continued growth, they will vote for split liquor. The motel could then receive a city liquor license. Or the council could divest the municipal liquor store of its off-sale, and grant the new motel a liquor license under the existing law, without the subterfuge of de and re-annexation. Or the city council would de-annex the parcel of land from the city and make clear to all in writing that the parcel would not be re-annexed unless and until the law is changed. Or the council could encourage the motel builder to build the motel on city land without a liquor outlet. Perhaps a liquor outlet is not necessary to the motel, after all. There is probably at least one other alternative which is equally honest. I am sure that the council, if they gave it serious consideration, could resolve the problem in their own way, and in a way no one need be ashamed of.

In any event, I would encourage the county commissioners to refuse to grant a county liquor license to the motel. The county has nothing to gain, and much to lose, in loss of respect, honor and esteem.

I sincerely hope that in all things our city will be proud of what it does and what it stands for. So much is at stake. Not just city growth or tax revenue! But our own honor and a witness to our children of what we and our American institutions stand for. Our city council and our city have much to gain by reversing this hasty and ill-thought-out decision. I hope the council will do so.

Certainly, the voters should closely watch how our council handles this issue.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Law

Economic Stabilization

Questions and Answers

Internal Revenue Service

Q—Is it true that you have to meet with your landlord before filing a complaint of rent increase violation with the IRS?

A—Yes. The tenant must meet with his landlord before filing a complaint. At such meeting the tenant is entitled to hear the landlord's justification for the increase and to discuss the proposed increase. In addition, the tenant must provide the IRS with a copy of the notification of the proposed increase and a detailed statement in writing as to why he believes there has been a violation.

Q—My landlord has complied with the rent regulations by properly notifying me of his intention to raise rent, but I still believe the increase is in violation of stabilization regulations. Am I justified in refusing to pay the increase while action is pending on my complaint?

A—No. If a tenant receives sufficient notice of an increase and files a complaint of an alleged violation, the increase still becomes effective as of the date specified in the notification pending final action with respect to the alleged violation.

Q—What constitutes a violation under the stabilization program?

A—Failure to do what is required under the regulations, such as posting and reporting; giving false information on a report, refusal to divulge required information, etc., may constitute a violation. An individual or business may be penalized for each day he is in violation of the regulations.

Q—Can a consumer bring suit to enforce price commission regulations?

A—Yes, under certain circumstances, the Economic Stabilization Act gives any person who suffers a legal wrong under the act a right of action for appropriate relief in a federal district court, regardless of the amount involved. The relief available includes declaratory judgments, injunctions and damages.

You And The Gals And Peanuts

An informal luncheon for the gals may be just the occasion to serve this attractive and tasty Peanut Cheese Molded Salad. Look good in the picture? This recipe, suggested by the National Peanut Council, tells you how to make it:

Peanut Cheese Mold

2 tablespoons gelatin	1 cup dairy sour cream
2 cups milk	1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup shredded sharp cheese	1 teaspoon salt
1 8-ounce package cream cheese	1 cup sliced celery
½ cup peanut butter	½ cup green pepper strips
	½ cup sliced radishes
	¼ cup minced onion

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup milk; heat remaining milk until almost boiling; remove from heat and stir in sharp cheese, cream cheese and peanut butter, stirring until melted and blended. Stir in softened gelatin, then sour cream, vinegar and salt. Cool until slightly thickened. Meanwhile, arrange some of the vegetables in a design in greased 6-cup salad mold. Stir remaining vegetables into gelatin mixture; pour into mold. Chill until set. Slice and serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

And those finger sandwiches pictured alongside are so tasty and so easy to make: Blend equal parts orange marmalade and peanut butter; spread on bread fingers; then broil a few minutes until they are bubbly.

These two recipe suggestions are offered by the National Peanut Council to recognize National Peanut Week March 1 to 11.

Employment Rises Vietnam Veteran's

A dramatic drop in unemployment for Vietnam era veterans to 7.4 per cent in February—the lowest figure in more than a year—was announced today by John R. Murphy, director of the Veterans administration center at St. Paul.

Murphy said the latest Department of Labor's seasonally adjusted statistics show a drop in unemployment for veterans 20 to 29 years old from 8.5 per cent in January to the 7.4 per cent mark in February.

The VA director learned of the softening of the national unemployment situation for veterans from Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson, who hailed the decrease as a "real breakthrough."

"To me it is a sign that the national jobs for veterans campaign is really catching on fire," Johnson declared.

"It is also a tribute to private and public employers, the people who make the jobs possible, who are responding in increasing numbers to President Nixon's appeal for a vital effort 'to provide the returning veteran what he has earned—a smooth transition to civilian life and meaningful work.' "

Murphy said that in addition to the overall decline in the age 20 to 29 veterans' bracket, "particularly noteworthy" was the major drop in unemployment for veterans aged 20 to 24, from 12.3 per cent to 9.7 per cent, and the narrowing of the gap in unemployment figures between veterans and non-veterans in the same 20 to 29 age range.

He noted that unemployment among non-veterans aged 20 to 29 was seven per cent in February, essentially the same as in January and most of 1971, and that although non-veterans aged 20 to 24 have generally had a much lower unemployment rate than veterans, the big drop for younger veterans in February erased most of the difference.

Administrator Johnson said that the President's jobs for veterans campaign, spearheaded by his national committee chaired by James Oates, the department of labor and the national alliance of businessmen, "has increasingly focused the attention of America's employers on the job needs of returning Vietnam era veterans. Hundreds of state and city committees have been formed, and newspapers and radio and television outlets the nation over have supported the campaign as have major veterans organizations," he said.

"I think we are meeting the challenge," the VA chief declared. "The goal now must be to sustain and improve upon the big gains registered last month by repeatedly driving home the fact that our Vietnam era veterans offer maturity, discipline and excellent potential as prospective employees."

Meantime, Murphy said the VA itself employs some 13,000 Vietnam era veterans and has operated or co-sponsored more than 100 "job fairs" for veterans in recent years.

He noted that the VA's GI bill on-the-job training program has grown from 18,529 veteran trainees in fiscal year 1968 to an estimated 156,000 veterans in such training during the current fiscal year. Both Murphy and Johnson said they anticipate further expansion of the program in view of the President's request to Congress for a 48 per cent boost in VA training allowances paid to veterans, as well as a recent VA drive that has opened up about 40,000 more job training opportunities for veterans in thousands of business establishments across the nation.

The Minnesota VA director also pointed out that the VA's total education and training program under the GI Bill permits veterans to develop skills that will enhance greatly their future employment possibilities.

He said the VA expects total GI bill enrollment during the current fiscal year to number 2 million veterans, up nearly one-half million over last year. He said last year's enrollment, in turn, was up 36 per cent over 1970, 70 per cent more than in 1969, and 240 per cent over 1968.

Disabled Vets Are Now Aiding U.S. Boy Scouts

Greater numbers of the nation's physically and mentally handicapped boys have been guaranteed the benefits of Scouting through another contribution to the Boy Scouts of America this week from the Disabled American Veterans.

In DAV's 1972 contribution of $35,935.00 is the third such annual gift from the 360,000 member organization to the BSA Scouting for the Handicapped program. Direct financial support from the DAV will continue throughout the nation-wide BOYPOWER '76 project. This is the result of a formal DAV-BSA partnership inaugurated two years ago.

In addition to direct financial support, the DAV has assigned a full-time staff member to coordinate DAV Scouting for the Handicapped throughout the country.

According to DAV National Commander Edward Conroy, Bowie, Md., there are nearly 3.5 million handicapped boys of scouting age in the United States. "Yet," says Conroy, "only slightly more than three per cent of these youngsters are being reached by the scouting program.

Eventual goal of our partnership with the Boy Scouts of America is to bring the advantages of Scouting to at least one million of this country's handicapped boys, Conroy states.

DAV chapters throughout the nation are being encouraged to assume sponsorship of handicapped scout units. Approximately 80 such troops have come under DAV chapter sponsorship during the past 18 months, and accelerated activity at the local level is seen for the coming year. All funds to finance local DAV Scouting for the Handicapped are provided by the sponsoring chapter with no assistance from DAV national headquarters. It is estimated the DAV chapters will spend nearly $50,000 during 1972 to carry out DAV Scouting for the Handicapped programs in communities across the country.

The DAV, in cooperation with BSA, is sponsoring the 2nd National Workshop on Scouting for the Handicapped at Philmont national scout ranch, Cimarron, N. M., July 19-25, 1972. Eighty volunteer and professional scout leaders attended last summer's initial session, with a larger number expected this year.

During its two-year existance, DAV Scouting for the Handicapped has rapidly become one of the most significant nation-wide programs ever undertaken by the Disabled American Veterans.

DAV National Commander Conroy emphasizes that "it is our responsibility, as men who have overcome the disabilities of war, to help handicapped boys lead a happier, more productive life through the proven advantages of Scouting." Conroy adds that a number of disabled Vietnam era veterans have assumed leadership roles in DAV Scouting for the Handicapped activities.

The DAV effort is acknowledged by BSA officials as being chiefly responsible for the revived interest in bringing handicapped boys into the ranks of Boy Scout troops.

Upon receipt of the DAV's 1972 gift, Alden G. Barber, BSA Chief Executive, said, "We are especially greateful to your membership for bringing Scouting to more of America's youth."

SNOWMOBILE RESCUE will be part of the ambulance service available through Northwestern Hospital services in Thief River Falls. A rescue sled was built by Les Vigness, chief engineer and ambulance service supervisor at the hospital. It consists of an Arctic Cat hood and frame, wood base and cedar strip canopy reinforced with Fiberglas. The tricycle skis are also Arctic issue. The sled is seven feet long and the bottom is equipped with a four-inch foam rubber mattress. Arctic Enterprises has donated a snowmobile and double trailer so that the units can be transported behind the ambulance. Application of use is in snowmobile accidents where the victim cannot be reached by ambulance, and in rural or other areas during storms when access by other vehicle is impossible. Ambulance attendants demonstrating use of the equipment in the bottom photo are, left to right, Roger Braaton, Tom Albaugh and Fred Brodin.

Water Supply Topic For Council Tues.

by Dennis Johnson
Times Reporter

Thief River Falls is feeling the effect of rapid growth. According to D. H. Stewart, city engineer, Thief River Falls has been growing out of its water capacity for several years. In addition to the need for water to be used for drinking and other household uses, there must be a sizeable reserve for fire protection.

Thief River Falls has reached a point where the present reserve is no longer adequate. Attention has been focused on the deficiency by Arctic Enterprises in its recent decision to suspend expansion facilities construction due to inability to obtain proper insurance.

A complete discussion by the council is planned for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers. Ed Mazurek and Richard Olson will represent Arctic and Stewart will be present as city engineer.

Details of the present situation were obtained from Ed Mazurek, assistant vice president of manufacturing for Arctic Enterprises, and Richard Olson, Arctic's manager of facilities engineering. Admittedly they represent Arctic, however, the need for adequate fire protection is shared by the entire community. As Arctic expanded its facilities in Thief River Falls, executives knew that the situation was becoming critical. They continued to build, knowing that additional water would have to be made available.

In 1948 a master plan for the city's utilities made provisions for that eventuality. That plan calls for the construction of a 500,000 gallon elevated water tank. City councils have acknowledged the desireability of building the additional tower but put it off because of the cost of the structure. That can not be done much longer. The water supply in parts of Thief River Falls is not sufficient to meet the demands of a major fire at this time. The fire at Tunberg Motor company two years ago illustrated that.

A rating system used by insurance companies reflects the deficiency by giving several buildings on the west edge of Thief River Falls a rating of 10

Board To Study Redistricting

Previously announced in the Times as a public meeting on county redistricting, a meeting of the Pennington county board on Friday will be only to draft a more definite potential plan for county reapportionment.

The meeting will be open to the public—as all meetings of the county board are open—but the session will not be for public discussion of any redistricting plan.

Scout Troop 57 Court Of Honor Held Last Week

Coming events were announced, the troop charter presented and nine boys advanced in rank when Boy scout troop 57 held its court of honor last week at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Art Heinze, institutional representative, was in charge of the ceremony.

In addition to advancement awards, salesmanship awards were given to boys who sold the greatest amount in the troops fund raising projects. Dean Wedul received the super salesman award.

Advanced were Tim Schoonhoven and Brad Johnson, tenderfoot; Dan Cook and George Elshaug, second class; Jeff Reopelle, Jon Gibson and Tim Trudeau, first class; Bob Penne, life; and Ken Mathew, star.

Steve Phelps showed slides on Camp Wabaunaquat. Nearly 100 per cent of troop 57 will attend summer camp. Florian Kritz, neighborhood commissioner from the Lake Agassiz council, presented the troop charter to Dick Trudeau, troop committee chairman.

Plans for participating in the district exposition, spring city clean-up and Canadian scout exchange were also announced.

Pennington DFL Convention Sun.

Pennington county's DFL convention will be held Sunday, March 26 at the city auditorium and will start promptly at 1:30 p.m. Delegate registration will be held from 1 to 1:30 p.m. The business meeting will include election of local officers as well as delegates to conventions.

Anyone with resolutions which they want considered by the convention should leave them at Neil McEwen's office by noon on Friday. Speakers will be Rep. L. J. Lee of Bagley Sen. Roger Moe from Ada. Anyone may attend the meeting, however, only delegates may participate.

Annual Round-up For Pre-School Children Slated

Pre-school round-up for school district 564, including St. Hilaire, will be held on Saturday, April 15, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Washington elementary school. All children who will be five years old before September 1 and will enter kindergarten in the fall are asked to attend at the time specified on the cards which they will receive by Mail.

Birth certificates from a clerk of court's office will be required. A hospital certificate will not be accepted. Parents who moved to the Thief River Falls area since the last school census was taken and have children entering kindergarten this fall are asked to call Mrs. Dennis Kezar at 681-4198 or Margaret Race at 681-1336.

Expect To House 1,000 For Church Gathering Here

It is expected that some 1,000 delegates will be housed in hotels, motels and some private homes for the "Conscious of Our Spiritual Needs" convention of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held at the Thief River Falls Lincoln senior high school auditorium April 14-16.

R. H. Wetenkamp of Thief River Falls will supervise the rooming department. Commenting on the difficulties of locating adequate facilities, he said, "In the United States our church is divided into districts and districts are divided into circuits. Our circuit has just been increased from 16 to 19 congregations so we will need to furnish more rooms than previously. We will send room request forms to the congregations to find out how many rooms will be needed and the amount each delegate can afford to pay."

Members of the local congregation may be asked to call on city residents to list guest rooms to be rented to delegates if the need arises. "I am confident that the people of Thief River Falls will open their homes to tha Christian delegates if necessary," Wetenkamp said.

The highlight of the assembly will be the public talk "Are You Marked for Survival?" to be delivered at 2 p.m. April 16.

Haaven To Speak At Pennington GOP Convention

Rep. Jon Haaven of Alexandria, candidate for the GOP endorsement for U.S. Congress, will be guest speaker at the 1972 Pennington county Republican convention, according to Dr. David Brown, Goodridge, county GOP chairman.

Convention date is March 28 and the session will start at 6:30 p.m. in the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls, Dr. Brown said. Stanley N. Mortenson is rules chairman for the convention and Dale Folger is resolutions chairman. Richard F. Contos will be in charge of credentials.

Rep. Haaven was born in Crookston where he attended grade school. Later moving to East Grand Forks he was an all-state basketball player in the 1951 state tournament and graduated from East Grand Forks high school.

Continuing his education at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, he graduated with a bachelor's degree in journalism. While at the university he received Little All-America honors in basketball.

An army veteran, Haaven is married and the father of five daughters. He moved from East Grand Forks to Alexandria in 1958

"We think that the convention will be an exciting one and are looking forward to record attendance," Dr. Brown said.

United Fund To Support Testing For Diabetes

At its regular monthly meeting last week, the Thief River Falls United Fund board voted to sponsor diabetes testing in the area with the help of the Tri-County Nursing service. Details will be worked out by the nursing service and the united health services committee of the United Fund.

The testing will be done in the near future and will be completely free to the participants. The United Fund is sponsoring this testing in an on-going effort to provide local service to the people of this area.

Allocations to the following health agencies were also voted on at the meeting: Arthritis foundation, $950; Cerebral Palsy, $650; Cystic Fibrosis, $200; and kidney research at the University of Minnesota, $350.

Ken Ose of the local sheltered workshop was present to request funds for equipment. The board voted on an allocation of $2,000 toward his request, according to Mrs. James Carlson, secretary.

The work will be done on highway 89 between highway 11 at Fox and the Canadian border, on highway 308 between highway 11 and highway 89 near Fox and on highway 11 in Badger and Fox. Work is to start by June 19 and to be completed within 45 working days.

Appeal Dismissed In Grygla School Case

GIRLS STATE delegates and alternates from Thief River Falls and Goodridge were selected recently by the American Legion auxiliary unit in Thief River Falls. Named from Thief River Falls in the top photo were Pamela Kjensrud (right), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kjensrud, delegate, and Candy Mortenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley N. Mortenson, alternate. Chosen from Goodridge were Susan Nelson (left), delegate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson of Grygla, and Cheryl Race, alternate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Race of Goodridge. All are juniors in their respective schools. Announcement was made jointly by Mrs. Erwin Ferber, president of auxiliary unit 117, and Mrs. Silas Hanson, girls state chairman. Girls state is a practical application of Americanism and citizenship, teaching love of God and country and demonstrating the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizenship. The event will be held at the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul June 4-10.

"While I realize this litigation will not be ended by the foregoing order, it is assumed that it will end sometime." This is part of the statement by Judge John W. Graff of the Second Judicial district in dismissing an appeal of commissioner's decision regarding the Grygla school district.

The appeal denied by Judge Graff was brought by Harlan Cleven, Oliver Howland, Grant Sater, Reuben Engevik and Independent School District 561 of Goodridge against Howard B. Casmey, Minnesota commissioner of education. Commissioner Casmey had issued an order which gave the Grygla school district the full status of an independent school district, with authority to sell bonds and to build and operate a school grades one through 12.

"After due consideration," Judge Graff writes, "It is hereby ordered that the appeal be and hereby is dismissed. In view of this disposition, all other motions are regarded as moot." The order is dated March 3, and it is noted that the last briefs were filed by attorneys on February 22.

Weariness of the courts regarding the long and involved legal battle over the rights of the Grygla district in one form or another is evident in Judge Graff's memorandum.

"It can only be concluded that the entire course of this litigation, for the most part, has a dreary and involved history," Judge Graff writes. "It is not regarded as this court's duty to assess fault or fix blame for the morass created by this litigation but rather to determine the legal problems that have been submitted. For this purpose it is deemed necessary to review some prior events and prior litigation."

Judge Graff traces history of the controversy back to March of 1962 when the commissioner of education, state board of education and state department of education directed efforts toward a study of the existing school situations in the Grygla, Gatzke and Skime school districts. A school survey committee was formed to study the situation and make recommendations.

"These committees made a report to the commissioner to the effect that the best solution would be the consolidation of the Grygla district, the Gatzke district and a part of the Skime district, with eventual construction of a secondary school at Grygla," the judge writes.

He then traces issuance of a plat for consolidation, order for consolidation, appeal of that order, dismissal of the appeal,

Women's Club Room Discussed By Laurel Club

Women's Club room, located in the City auditorium, and especially the furnishings that are the property of Thief River Falls Federated Women's club, were discussed at the meeting of the Laurel art club held recently at the home of Pauline Johnson. The discussion was led by Mrs. Mayer Oakes. Vice president Mildred Walker presided at the meeting, in the absence of president Marie Biddick, who is vacationing in Texas. Included in the communications, was a letter from Mrs. Biddick.

Members of the club agreed to an early fall meeting at which time projects for the year will be determined.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

The next meeting of the Laurel Art club will be held April 11 at the home of Mrs. Carl Hovie.

Mrs. Jesch Dealt High Bridge Hand

Bridge players may take interest in an exceptional hand dealt to Mrs. Gil (Kay) Jesch during a social evening of bridge at the Richard Cullen home recently.

Mrs. Jesch was dealt the ace of hearts; ace, king, queen, jack and seven of clubs; ace, king, queen, jack, nine, four and three of diamonds; and was void in spades.

She bid seven diamonds and the ladies at the table never even played out the hand as Mrs. Jesch laid down her hand for the rest to see. As a sidelight, Mrs. Jesch's partner, Jan Azure, had the 10 of diamonds and ace of spades in her hand.

Stanina-Mohler Wedding Vows Said At Cambridge

Miss Janet Helen Stanina became the bride of Wallace Jay Mohler on Saturday afternoon, February 19, at a ceremony at Christ the King Catholic church in Cambridge. Rev. Gene Belair officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. O. J. Miller was the organist.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Stanina of Cambridge and formerly of Middle River. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mohler of Chicago City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white antique satin, made by Mrs. O'Delia Bartusch of Wyoming. The gown was designed in empire fashion with lantern sleeves. Lace trimmed the high neckline and the princess seaming on the bodice and skirt. A border of wide lace surrounded the A-line skirt and edged the detachable chapel-length train. Her veil of bridal illusion was held by a bow of matching white antique satin. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, starburst pompons and miniature carnations. Her only jewelry was a pair of white pearl earrings.

Miss JoAnne Stanina, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jenny Stanina, another sister, Marie Stanina of this city, a cousin, and Bonnie Yerigan, a friend. All wore floor-length gowns of blue velvet, styled in empire fashion with lace trim at the neckline and around the wrists of the full-length sleeves. The attendants wore matching blue velvet bows in their hair and each carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and miniature carnations.

The bride's personal attendant was Mrs. Mary Ann Freeman.

Tom Mohler, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Ken Carlson, Pat Kennedy and Russ Ramberg, friends of the groom. Seating the guests were Paul Stanina, Larry Krysinski, cousins of the bride, John Mohler, brother of the groom, and Paul Quade, brother-in-law of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Stanina chose a medium blue dress. The mother of the groom was attired in a green lace dress and Agnes Krysinski of Isanti, the grandmother of the bride, wore a lavender dress. All wore corsages composed of sweetheart roses and miniature carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Chisago City hall for approximately 275 guests. Mrs. Janice Shequen, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Betty Krysinski, aunt of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Pouring were Mrs. Sandra Johnson, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Evey Mohler, aunt of the groom.

Kay Lynn Johnson, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book. At the punch bowl was RoAnn Wuellner, a friend of the bride. Mrs. Eileen Quade, sister of the groom, Shirley Stanina of this city, cousin of the bride, and Pat Anderson, a friend of the bride, opened the gifts.

Waitresses were Kathy Stanina and Karen Pohl, cousins of the bride, Ronie Mohler cousin of the groom, Mrs. Celeste Mohler, sister-in-law of the groom, and Renee Eden and Cindy Weigenant, friends of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Mohler are now residing at Harris.

Lund Speaks To Local Chapter Of Mrs. Jaycees

Derwood "Swede" Lund was guest speaker at the March meeting of the Mrs. Jaycees chapter held recently at the home of Mrs. Ann Haugen. A representative of the State Department of Corrections, Lund explained the youth program in this area. He also suggested several ways in which the Mrs. Jaycees may be of assistance, on a voluntary basis.

In the absence of president Maxine McEwen, secretary Karen Lehrer presided at the meeting that included planning for a number of club activities.

The first event planned was the Mrs. Jaycees spring regional meeting to be held April 15. The event will be held in Thief River Falls at the Golf club and will be open to members of the chapters at East Grand Forks, Ada, Crookston, Roseau and Thief River Falls. Co-chairmen in charge of making local arrangements are State delegate Valerie Larson and Sharon Sims.

Another project of the Mrs. Jaycees, that of sponsoring a baby sitting clinic, was also discussed. The clinic was scheduled for April 6 through May 4 with Nancy Wood as chairman.

Appointed as chairmen of coming events were: Bev Fisher, who will be in charge of the Mrs. Jaycees concession at the Boy Scout Exposition to be held at the local Armory on April 30, and Del Loeb and Ila Hanson, who were named as hostesses for the two May meetings of the Friendship club.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Raymond Sourdif
of Rural Newfolden

Special salute to the Girl Scouts for providing the interesting window displays in Thief River Falls during National Girl Scout week. The community owes a special thanks also to all the leaders for donating countless hours in order to carry out the scouting program. The various activities in the scouting program in which the girls participate have helped many choose their vocations.

It is interesting to note how the public has latched onto words like ecology, ecumenism, and integration. All were practiced in scouting, years ago, as girls were taught to preserve wild life, clean up after picnics, and to work and play together regardless of religion, and nationality. Too bad more of our national leaders don't practice the principles of scouting. (EMS)

The recipe for today features meat loaf with a sweet-sour dressing. We are grateful to Mrs. Sourdif of Newfolden for sharing this recipe with the readers of Kitchen Karnival.

Meat Loaf

3 to 4 lbs. ground meat
6 or 8 crackers, finely crushed
1 egg
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
salt and pepper to taste
½ can tomato sauce
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 small onion, finely chopped

Method: Combine all ingredients and mix well. Form into a loaf and place in baking pan.

Topping

½ can tomato sauce
1 heaping tablespoon brown sugar
1 heaping tablespoon white sugar
2 tablespoons white vinegar

Method: Mix all ingredients together and pour over meat loaf. Slightly push pineapple chunks into top of loaf. Bake one hour in a 350 degree oven.

The Sourdifs live on a farm northwest of Thief River Falls. In addition to farming Mr. Sourdif is employed by Great Lakes Gas company. Of their eight children, only two are at home. They are Wayne, a sixth grader at Viking elementary school, and Donald, who attends kindergarten in Newfolden. Their other children are married. Susan lives in Germany with her husband who is in the United States Air Force; Larry is in Colorado, Gordon at Badger, Joyce at Moorhead, and Pat and Sandy live on farms in this area.

Mrs. Sourdif stated that her main hobby was sewing. She also enjoys crocheting and at present is completing a bedspread.

The Sourdifs are members of St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Says Salt Not Factor In State Highway Damage

Recently there have appeared letters in the newspapers implying that the damage to highway surfaces is caused by the use of salt.

In response to this misconception, the department of highways called attention to the "air entrainment" process used in making concrete in highway pavement construction which often isn't used in concrete in sidewalk or garage floor construction.

This "air entrainment" process is simply the formation of millions of microscopic air bubbles in the concrete caused by introducing an additive when mixing the concrete.

When salt is spread on an ice or snow-covered pavement the resulting melt water soaks into the concrete. As everyone knows, when water freezes it expands. The microscopic air bubbles in air entrained concrete allow room for this expansion to occur with no damage to the concrete pavement. If the concrete is not air entrained, as is the case with most concrete used in sidewalk or garage floor construction, there is no room available for the expansion of frozen water. This can result in damage to the concrete surface which is commonly called surface scaling.

'U' M Transplant Surgeons Make Collection Trips

University of Minnesota transplant surgeons have recently made three trips to outstate Minnesota communities to collect kidneys for later transplantation.

A term of three surgeons and two technicians have gone to St. Cloud twice and to Litchfield after being called by the physician of dying patients.

Dr. John S. Najarian, professor and chirman of the university surgery department, explained his transplant team now has the capability to go anywhere in the state to remove kidneys for transplantation at the University's health sciences center.

These trips to outstate communities and the subsequent life-giving transplants were made possible through Dr. Najarian's research efforts.

A special purified form of an anti-rejection serum was developed some two years ago and has given cadaver transplants a 50 per cent better chance for success than is obtained at other medical centers.

A portable organ-preservation machine, the Minnesota preservation machine, has been used successfully for some time in animal labs and is now being used to take advantage of cadaver kidneys becoming available miles from the transplant center.

The machine can keep kidneys viable for up to 48 hours using a perfusion solution and oxygen pressure. Usually less than 24 hours is all that is needed to do the necessary tissue typing, prepare the recipient and perform the transplant.

Load Limits Now On All Highways

All state highways are now restricted to legal or posted axle weights, according to the Minnesota department of highways. Restrictions were placed on zone six Friday—the last state zone to have the restrictions imposed.

Permits for overweight axle loads exceeding legal or posted axle weights will not be issued, the highway department said.

The Veterans administration estimates that 63,000 wives, widows and children of veterans will receive educational assistance allowance checks ranging up to $175 monthly this fiscal year.

$108.2 Million Spent In State Municipal Aids

More than $108.2 million in construction on the municipal state-aid street system in Minnesota communities since the initial apportionments in 1958 is reported today by Gordon M. Fay, state aid engineer, Minnesota department of highways.

Topping the work program was the grading of 601 miles of streets at a cost of $38,256,000. Surfacing of 595 miles and 571 miles of base construction were accomplished at an expenditure of $49,766,000. A total of 46 municipal bridges was built at a cost of $6,841,000. Other improvements included 321 miles of storm sewers ($9,343,000), 395 signal installations ($1,897,000), and 122 miscellaneous projects such as turn lanes and street widening ($2,231,000).

The MSA (municipal state-aid) apportionments annually to cities and villages of 5,000 or more population consist of nine per cent of the highway user distribution fund (state-collected motor fuel taxes and license fees). From the same source is the apportionment of 29 per cent of the net fund to Minnesota counties and 62 per cent to state trunk highways.

When the MSA program was established by constitutional amendment in 1957, the municipal state aid street system totaled 920 miles; 58 cities and villages participated in the initial apportionment in 1958. Currently, there are 1,497 miles on the MSA street system in 92 municipalities. The integrated street system of urban design throughfares is limited by law to 2,000 miles.

Livestock Board Says State Hog Cholera Free

Minnesota state livestock sanitary board has announced that on Friday, March 10, the state of Minnesota was officially recognized as hog cholera free in the national hog cholera eradication program. Minnesota is the 38th state to achieve this status.

It culminates an effort that started in 1962 when Governor Elmer L. Anderson appointed a state hog cholera committee under the chairmanship of Senator John Olson of Worthington. The program was carried out on a cooperative basis between the state livestock sanitary board and the animal and plant health service, veterinary services of the United States department of agriculture.

Minnesota entered Phase II of the program in April, 1964, Phase III on July 1, 1968, and Phase IV on July 1, 1969. The use of all hog cholera vaccines was prohibited in Minnesota on July 1, 1969, a prerequisite for entry into Phase IV. A state advances from Phase IV to Free when it has gone for one year with no cases of hog cholera.

Recognition must be given to the swine industry and related industries and to the practicing veterinarians for making the attainment of this goal possible. The eventual eradication of hog cholera from the United States will save the swine industry approximately 52 million dollars a year.

Exterior Auto Design Changes Are Suggested

Exterior car design may be in for some modifications if the findings of a recent study of the effects of design upon injuries to pedestrians in motor vehicle accidents are acted upon by the national highway traffic safety administration.

"It is obvious that non-functional, sharp-pointed objects should be eliminated from the exterior design, that pointed edges of hoods and fender corners be eliminated, and that, whenever possible, the design should include large areas of predominantly flat or shallowly curved surfaces," reports the Cornell aeronautical laboratory, which conducted the study and carried on simulations of pedestrian accidents for the traffic safety administration.

The study found that 75 per cent of all pedestrian injuries "are produced by contact with the ground or the hood edge and bumper of the automobile." Ground injuries, the report said, were relatively minor. It concluded that a more rounded contour and less rigidity of the front structure would improve pedestrian safety.

It was found that most of the serious injuries and deaths investigated occured at vehicle speeds above 15 and less than 20 miles an hour. "Impacts at less than 15 miles per hour generally were relatively minor. It appears, in fact, that there may be a critical speed level at about 15 miles per hour where serious injury begins to appear."

Noting that "pedestrians fared better in impacts with smaller foreign or sport automobiles than with American full-size automobiles," the report recommended gathering more data about these vehicle types, either through investigation of a large sampling or through contact with foreign sources where such vehicles are more prevalent.

The study is one of a number commissioned by the MHTSA to aid it in developing a standard on design safety for pedestrians.

Dismiss Appeal In Case About Grygla School

appeal to the state supreme court, dismissal of that appeal and subsequent order of detachment and annexation by the board of county commissioners.

Since that time there has been a constant maze of suits and countersuits in the courts of Minnesota. Every court decision to date has upheld the legality of the Grygla - Gatzke - Skime district and its right to make its own decisions. But each decision of the courts has been appealed or the next step of the Grygla district has been contested.

Commissioner Casmey, who issued the order which was upheld in Judge Graff's dismissal of appeal, visited the area twice in the past several months in an attempt to bring contesting groups together for their mutual interest. He succeeded in getting the Grygla and Goodridge school board together in joint session in Thief River Falls. They later met jointly at Goodridge and Grygla to inspect school facilities in the two communities.

Commissioner Casmey encouraged the two boards to drop all court action pending and to start working together for the good of students in the area. Outcome of the appeal of the commissioner's order had been awaited and may now encourage further cooperative effort.

Following appeal of the commissioner's order, the Grygla district filed a counterclaim of $500,000 against the Goodridge district for damages incurred over the years. The Grygla district had indicated that it would voluntarily dismiss the counterclaim as a matter of compromise and settlement if the court dismissed the appeal.

In ending his memorandum, Judge Graff quotes Chief Justice Oscar Knutson of the Minnesota supreme court as stating: "It is to be hoped that the bitterness engendered over these many years of litigation will now be forgotten so that the cooperation of all the people in the area can be obtained in providing for the children of school age and best education possible within this troublesome area."

Water Supply Is Topic For City Council Tuesday

which indicates that they are considered to have no fire protection at all. Arctic has been able to build to its present level only because it built its own emergency water reserve. Now Arctic is building even beyond the capability of that reserve.

Even if Arctic could find a solution to its own problem at this time, it might not be the best move for Thief River Falls. If Thief River Falls wants continued industrial expansion, steps must be taken now.

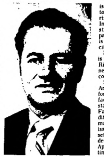
Any company which is considerering building in Thief River Falls will be facing the same problem that is confronting Arctic. Arctic's insurance group feels the situtation is so critical that it has said Arctic's insurance will be cancelled in one year unless an adequate water reserve is provided. Arctic can not afford to expand if it must assume the risk without insurance coverage. In view of that, Arctic has stopped preparations for expanding in Thief River Falls and is considering sites in other cities.

If a local company finds that it is not feasible to expand in Thief River Falls, it is not likely that new company would seriously consider building here.

Stewart was consulted by Arctic personnel when the need for an additional water storage facility became apparent. He has stated that the city of Thief River Falls definitely needs an additional water tank and related mains and can not postpone the issue much longer. The time limit set by Arctic is much more definite. A decision is needed by April 1 if Arctic is to order steel in time to continue with the expansion of its facilities in Thief River Falls.

Stewart prepared a preliminary cost estimate for a water tank and mains which would need to be constructed with it. A rough estimate is that the tank would cost about $200,000 and the complete system would run about $350,000. These figures represent reasonable limits of the expected cost.

NEW RECRUITER for Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties for the U.S. army is SFC Francis M. Trim, left, being welcomed by SSG James Long who previously covered this area. SSG Long will continue to work out of the Thief River Falls recruiting office and will serve Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties.



APPOINTED vice president of marketing for the snowmobile division of Arctic Enterprises recently was Robert Bromley, Arctic's director of marketing since joining the company in 1969. Previously he was national sales manager of Polaris Industries at Roseau. A native of Bend, Ore., Bromley has more than 15 years of sales and marketing experience in the recreational vehicle industry. Prior to joining Polaris, he was a partner in the largest motorcycle distributorship in the Pacific Northwest. Long active in snowmobile racing, he served as the first president of the Western Snowmobile association and was WSA snowmobile champion in 1966.

Meat Type Hogs Can Be Fed To Heavier Weights

University of Minnesota animal scientists report that meat type hogs can be carried to a final market weight of about 254 pounds without seriously affecting rate of gain or feed required per pound of gain.

In the study, animal scientists J. W. Rust and R. J. Meade used 240 pigs averaging 60 pounds to determine the effects of final weight, sex and protein level sequence on the rate of gain and efficiency of feed utilization.

Pigs fed to an average weight of 250 pounds made slower gains than those marketed at 200 pounds. However, the small differences in average daily gain were not large enough to be economically important.

The researchers found that pigs fed a 16 per cent protein diet were more efficient in converting feed to gain during the period from about 60 to 100 pounds than those fed a 14 per cent diet. However, this advantage did not persist during the final stages of the growing period as the per cent of dietary protein had no significant effect on the feed-gain ratio for the entire period of the experiment.

Pigs marketed at 200 pounds were more efficient at converting feed to gain than those marketed at weights of 225 pounds or 250 pounds. However, these differences in the feed-gain ratio were only about three per cent and were not large enough to exert a serious effect on the economics of production if there is no penalty for feeding pigs to heavier weights, the scientists said.

The pigs used in the study were produced as a result of continuous selection for boars that should have had the genotype to sire well muscled pigs with the capacity to gain efficiently. The pigs were produced by sows that had produced a previous pig crop from which 180 pigs slaughtered at an average weight of 207 pounds had an average backfat thickness of 1.28 inches and an average loin eye of 4.97 square inches.

"Movie of the month."

The song "Bless the Beasts & Children" performed by CARPENTERS

"Bless The Beasts" is a special movie much like "Billy Jack". It has that kind of freshness, toughness and charm. It's about six boys in a western summer camp, such misfits they're called "the bedwetters". just as in "Billy Jack" - they find their own way of fighting the unthinking adults. The music by the Carpenters is haunting. So is "Bless The Beasts And Children"! Do Come!

Margaret Semrud Will Travel On European Study

Margaret Elaine Semrud, a senior at Concordia college, Moorhead, will travel in Europe and Russia this summer studying contemporary Christianity. Miss Semrud is the daughter of Ray Allen Semrud of Thief River Falls and will participate in the May 1-June 4 seminar program sponsored by Concordia.

Students involved in seminars take a two of three-credit preparation course which is held once a week during the second semester at Concordia. They then spend five weeks traveling abroad and earn an additional three credits.

The seminar on contemporary Christianity will examine different challenges being experienced by Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic expressions of Christianity and will attempt to discover the response by these people and their institutions to their problems.

The seminar is planned to assist the student to see Christianity in its cultural and historical context. Some attention, therefore, will be given to political and social institutions as well as to historical sites and depositories of art treasures.

Executive Director

It has been quite some time since this column was written, however, I hope to have enough information available to provide interesting reading pertaining to farm programs administered through our office.

The wheat and feed grain program sign-up period ended on March 10. We have 90 per cent of the wheat and feed grain farms in Pennington county enrolled in the two programs for 1972. This is the same percentage we had last year, however, this year we have barley included in the feed grain program and therefore, have more farms enrolled than last year.

A point we want to emphasize at this time is the availability of measurement service. We will measure any three fields on a farm for a cost of $10. For any additional fields, the cost is $2.50 each. When farmers have measurement service, the fields are staked, giving a guarantee of acres if planting is done within the staked areas.

This year it will be important that farmers plant enough acres to cover their wheat allotment. For example, if a farmer has 10 acre wheat allotment and has signed up to set aside the minimum required set-aside, he then must plant at least 10 acres to protect his allotment. If he fails to plant the 10 acres he could lose 20 per cent of his allotment.

The same thing is true if he has signed up to set aside additional acres under the 75 per cent additional set aside provision. He then would have to be very careful so that he does not plant over his permitted acres and still plant enough to cover his allotment.

If a farmer chooses the additional set aside provision or 75 per cent of his wheat allotment, he must plant according to his signed intentions and set aside. For example, if last year his domestic wheat allotment was 10 acres and he had planted 100 acres of wheat, and this year he signed up for the additional wheat set aside provision of 75 per cent of his allotment, the set-aside will be 8.3 (83 per cent) acres minimum requirement plus 7.5 (75 per cent) additional set aside. His last year's planting of 100 acres—minus 7.5 acres—leaves him a permitted wheat acreage of 92.5 acres to plant this year.

Confused? Well, farmers with any questions on any of their sign up intentions, should please feel free to stop in and discuss them with us. More details will be given in the next column.

(A quotable quote) "They are manufacturing a new type of farm tractor that does not have a steering wheel or a seat. I understand that it is designed for farmers who have lost their fanny and don't know which way to turn."

Special Services At BSC Reports On Operations

Special services at Bemidji state college has now reported on one full year of aiding students with special problems in adjusting to college life.

"During the past year, we served a total of 117 students," special services director Thomas Thompson says. "Of this number approximately 50 per cent were of Indian ancestry.

He notes with pride that 60 students of the program who returned this year have maintained an average of 2.47 grade point average through fall quarter. This places them well within 'C' category, bordering on low 'B' grading.

"We've added some courses to the core curriculum, and have proposals for other classes now before senate committees," Thompson says. "Also, the teachers who have been involved in the program during the past year are now taking much more interest in the program than we'd thought. We have one instructor who has enrolled in a Chippewa language course since she started teaching our students."

Fall quarter, 1971, special services enrolled 172 students, with 112 new freshmen joining 60 from the sequence of last year. About 70 per cent of these 172 students are of Indian extraction, and Thompson says that 32 of these students made the dean's list fall quarter, while the average grade point was 2.44 for the entire freshman group.

With a schedule of smaller class sections to aid students who might otherwise find the transition from high school to college too difficult, special services offered freshman English, general biology, basic math, social-cultural history, elementary and intermediate Chippewa, introductory philosophy human relations, basic learning skills and basic reading study skills, and has just instituted courses in American Indian history, minority history, popular culture and modern film.

Interdisciplinary seminars offered insights into history and philosophy during fall quarter, and literature and philosophy during winter quarter.

In addition, independent projects such as artistic creativity and photography are encouraged. The hallway of the Birch hall headquarters of special services is filled with photos taken of special projects by students.

Counseling, tutoring, serving as a sounding board for student problems, and paying heed to the needs of the students are all part of the program. Increases in the number of students involved in the program was partly the result of a second year of operation and partly the result of minor recruiting and students contacting friends who might need the service.

"We've not had to be really firm yet in selecting students, but when we have to we'll admit minority students and those in the lower 50 percentile of their graduating classes first," Thompson says. "Right now, the main criterion is and will remain to be the economic status of the family."

He notes that the program is set for 250-280 students next fall.

"Most of the actual course work is completed freshman year and the second year is largely a matter of counselor-contact and some tutorial help, in addition to picking up a class or two the student might have missed during his freshman year," assistant director Don Garrigan explains.

Students interested in further information about the program should contact either Thompson or Garrigan at Birch hall.

Higher Livestock Prices Reflected In Farm Gains

Higher livestock prices through mid-February helped Minnesota farmers score a modest three per cent gain in the average of all prices farmers received in the latest monthly index.

However, commissioner of agriculture Jon Wefald said that Minnesota farm prices still trailed the U.S. average by three per cent, compared to 1967 price averages. On Feb. 15, 1972 Minnesota farm prices were 119 per cent, U.S. farm prices 122 per cent of the 1967 index, according to the Minnesota department of agriculture state-federal crop and livestock reporting service.

He added that the mid-February price averages for Minnesota farm products was only six per cent higher than for the 1947-49 period regarded by some economists as a more true base for measuring national growth trends.

Minnesota's mid-February farm prices were eight per cent higher than a year earlier while the national average was up 10 per cent.

Livestock prices received by Minnesota farmers gained nine per cent during the month and were 22 per cent higher than a year earlier, but reflected the rather limited period of currently favorable prices with identical gains of 37 per cent on both the 1967 and 1947-49 indexes.

Commissioner Wefald said that housewives may be interested in the February 15, 1972 prices farmers received per pound of live weight for their livestock: hogs 25.6 cents, all cattle 29.9 cents, cows 24.1, steers and heifers 31 calves 43.6, sheep 5.5 cents, lambs 29.3 cents. Hogs were the biggest gainer, up 6.3 cents for the year, while other livestock prices gained 3.4 to 5.1 cents per pound of live weight.

Other price gainers over the previous year are milk by 15 cents per 100 pounds, turkeys by 1.5 cents a pound, soybeans by 14 cents a bushel, flaxseed by eight cents a bushel and baled hay up $1 a ton.

Farmers last month received 18 cents a dozen for eggs, down four cents for the year, 17 cents a pound for wool, down 11 cents, $1.45 per 100 pounds for potatoes, 15 cents less than a year ago. They also received less for wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley and chickens.

MEA Delegate Assembly Meets In Rochester

Returning to the scene of its founding 111 years ago, the Minnesota Educational association hopes to set an attendance record April 6-8 when it expects to draw about 500 education leaders from throughout Minnesota for its 49th annual delegate assembly in Rochester.

The assembly is the MEA's governing body and determines overall policy. It oversees actions of the board of directors, which are implemented by the professional staff and committees, commissions and other voluntary agencies.

The resolutions that will be considered by the delegates will provide the basis for the MEA's legislative program in the 1973 Legislature.

Untested Barley May Be Problem For Farmers

Noting that planting season is only a few weeks away, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald warns Minnesota barley growers that they may experience heavy economic loss if they plant untested seed.

Continued testing by the loose barley smut control laboratory of the Minnesota department of agriculture has revealed an even more serious infection problem in potential seed stocks than was indicated by preliminary tests two months ago.

Forty-seven per cent of the 650 barley samples tested through March 6 showed loose smut infection greater than five per cent of the stock. Fourteen per cent of the samples were above 10 per cent infection and numerous samples were recorded in the teens and above the 20 per cent infection level. The average infection for all samples tested was 5.5 per cent. One sample had 33 per ecent infection.

Commissioner Wefald said growers can expect a loss of production at least comparable to the degree of loose smut infection in barley seed used. A five per cent loss, applied to the $34.6 million value of Minnesota's 1971 barley crop, would amount to $1.73 million, he pointed out.

Agronomist K. L. Blanchard of the department's plant industry laboratory staff said the samples tested are indicative of the problem that exists throughout Minnesota's barley producing area, principally the Red River Valley.

He added that the loose smut problem could mean shortage of clean barley seed for those farmers who wait until planting time to make a selection, pointing out that the Minnesota Crop Improvement association will not certify seed with over four per cent infection.

About half of the barley seed used in Minnesota is selected from the grower's own carryover stock of the previous year's production. Most of the balance is cleaned, tested by the state laboratory and offered for sale by the country elevators.

Blanchard also pointed out that proper testing of seed samples takes about a week, from the time the farmer or elevator mails a sample, until the laboratory can confirm and report the analysis. A $5 fee must accompany each barley seed sample.

GF Girl Scouts Plan Festival

Girl Scouts of Grand Forks will hold a "Festival of Fun" Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the University of North Dakota field house. The afternoon program will start at 2:30 p.m. and tickets are $1 per family or 25 cents per individual. Theme of the event is "Acres of Green, Patches of Brown" and Girl scouts from 52 troops will display their skills in booths and on stage.

Freezing And Thawing Create Road Hazards

We are now approaching the season when motorists must be especially alert for slippery spots caused by thawing and freezing, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund warned today.

"When the sun starts to climb during March and April, there are always portions of the streets and highways where the surface is wet during the day and freezes to a thin glaze overnight. If you travel the same route every day, make note of those areas where there is melting during the day. Cances are that when you travel the same route in the morning or evening, those spots will be iced over.

"Changing temperatures also generate frost overnight, so bridges and overpasses will continue to be hazardous during the night and early morning hours."

Girl Scouting helps today's girls assume leadership roles and execute community service with increasing maturity and good judgment.

No Threat Yet

President Nixon has found no threat yet in the primary elections which have been held. He personally captured 87 per cent of the Republican primary vote in Florida while the DFL ballot was cluttered and inconclusive.

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama swamped all challengers in the Florida primary but it's a foregone conclusion that he will never get anywhere politically on a national basis. Sen. Edmund Muskie, who at one time was considered to be a front runner, only received nine per cent of the Democrat vote—about half of what former Vice President Hubert Humphrey obtained.

It was interesting to see how Sen. Humphrey talked around a direct question by a television reporter after the primary. Asked if he would refuse to have Gov. Wallace as a running-mate, Humphrey simply refused to answer the question. The fact that he would not rule out the possibility leaves room for speculation on an unusual alliance.

We don't look for such an alliance to take place, but it is interesting that Sen. Humphrey would not say no to it.

There are a lot of people who think that a number of Wallace's viewpoints carry considerable amounts of what government has not exhibited lately—good old-fashioned common sense. We are among those who think so. But we are also among the many who, in spite of agreement with some of Wallace's statements, couldn't bring ourselves to vote for him as a U.S. Presidential candidate.

If the Democrats hope to have a chance in the November Presidential election, they're going to have to put something together in better fashion than has been shown so far. They have presented no threat yet.

An Obligation

Concern by Arctic Enterprises regarding potential water service to the area of the main Arctic plant west of the city brings to public attention a serious problem. And the problem involves Arctic Enterprises as only a part of the total, for a large portion of the western area of the city is involved.

Arctic's problem is not in having sufficient water supply for its day-to-day uses, but in the potential need for water for fire protection. The same problem exists for other businesses and residences in that same area, including mobile home parks. It is not the actuality but the eventuality that provides the problem.

Thief River Falls is really beginning to feel its growing pains. Economic growth has been met with open arms by the community, and it is now time to embrace the bitter with the sweet. It must be recognized that progress is not entirely a one-way street and that something must be given in return for value received.

The city was insistent, and rightly so, that Arctic Enterprises and trailer court property be annexed to the city before water and sewer service were extended. It is proper that city services not be provided to non-city property.

But it is equally proper that the city provide the services which its residents pay for and have a right to expect. The city has an obligation to provide adequate water supply, and that obligation exists regardless of financial considerations. There is no question whether or not the service must be provided; the only question can be how it is provided.

Filling Arctic's need is not making a concession to the company; it is fulfilling an obligation which the city assumed when it annexed the property and agreed to provide service.

Industrial development has been a popular cry in Thief River Falls for many years. We have been guilty too often of looking to the outside and neglecting the inside. We have taken our farmers for granted and their numbers have dwindled. Now we may be guilty of taking a valuable industry for granted and face the possibility of losing at least some of it as well.

Economic aspect is an important thing to consider, but the responsible attitude of the city is important too. Our economic and development organizations should take a strong position on expanded service and make that position known. Harmony of purpose should be the outcome and a satisfactory solution reached by all concerned.

A Sports Reminder

It's difficult not to get involved emotionally when a person's offspring is engaged in competitive activity. This applies to academic standing, extracurricular activities and the competition of everyday living as well as athletics. But it is in the field of athletics that emotions probably become the most highly aroused.

Sometimes we get so involved in empathizing with our youngsters that we go beyond the rules of common sense in our own actions. Maybe the following letter—whether real or the creation of an imaginative adult—can help put us back on track. It appeared on the program for the Northern Minnesota Regional PeeWee hockey tournament and has been widely published in Minnesota newspapers:

Dear Mom and Dad:

I hope you won't get mad at me for writing this letter but you always told me never to keep back anything that I ought to bring out in the open.

So, here goes. . . .Remember the other morning when my team was playing and both of you were sitting watching??? Well, Mom and Dad, I hope you won't get mad at me but you kind of embarrassed me. Remember when I went after the puck in front of the net trying to score and fell, well Mom I could hear you yelling at the goalie for getting in my way and tripping me. Shucks, it wasn't his fault, that's what he is suppose to do.

Then do you remember yelling at me to get on the other side of the blue line, well I just didn't know where to go then, cause the coach had told me to cover my man, and I couldn't if I listened to you, so while I tried to decide they scored against us, then you yelled at me for being in the wrong place.

But what really got me, Mom and Dad, was what happened after the game. You should not have jumped over the coach for pulling me off the ice. He's a pretty good hockey coach and a real swell guy and he knew what he was doing. Besides, he's just a volunteer coming down at all hours of the morning helping us kids, just because he loves sports.

And then neither of you spoke to me the whole way home, I guess you were pretty sore at me for not getting a goal. I tried awfully hard but I guess I'm just a lousy hockey player. But I love to play hockey. It's a lot of fun being with other kids and learning to compete in a real good sport.

But, gosh, Mom and Dad, how can I learn if you don't show me a good example? And anyhow, I thought I was playing hockey for fun; to have a good time and to learn good sportsmanship.

I didn't know you were going to get so upset because I couldn't become a star.

Love, Your Son.

Federal Spending: A Family's Share

The average American has little—if any—concept of just how big the 1973 Federal Budget rally is. Few people can grasp the enormity of the entire $246.3 billion spending proposals that President Nixon sent to Congress, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States says.

However, ask almost any family just how big a sum like $3,500 is and what it would buy and they might reply: "It would pay for 'x' number of months of the children's college tuition," or maybe, "It would buy a new car for the family."

One thing it would not cover is the average household's share of what the Federal Government proposes to spend in next year's budget, the National Chamber says. That cost comes to $3,681, a figure which is 82 per cent more than the comparable cost 10 years ago. Even the consumer price index, which is some 36 per cent higher than it was in 1962 has not grown as fast as federal spending.

"What are the reasons for such growth and just what are we getting for such spending?" is a natural question for the American family to ask. In terms of a "family budget," some of these more costly items of the overall $3,681 spending proposals—and the way they have grown since the 1963 budget—include:

	Dollars	Percentage
National defense	$1,170	+ 23
Income security (Social Security welfare and public assistance, retirement benefits, etc.)	1,041	+138
Interest on the national debt	316	+ 89
Public health	271	+984
Veterans benefits	175	+ 75
Commerce and transportation	173	+ 65
Education and manpower	169	+526
Agriculture and rural development	103	+ 11

Even the cost of spending this money is more expensive now than it was 10 years ago. General government costs were only $33 per household in 1963, while the 1973 budget includes an average of $83, an increase of 152 per cent for the period, the National Chamber points out.

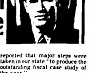
"Every man is a damn fool for at least five minutes every day; wisdom consists in not exceeding the limit." —Elbert Hubbard

notes from the governor



Since its creation by Congress in 1959, the advisory commission on intergovernmental relations (ACIR) has monitored the operation of our federal system of government and has recommended improvements.

The makeup of the permanent, 26-member commission, by law, is bipartisan. The research it conducts on intergovernmental relations is regarded as the most authoritive in the nation.

All Minnesotans, I feel, can take great pride in ACIR's 13th annual report, released this past Sunday.

It is entitled "Federalism in 1971: The Crisis Continues." In most respects it is a gloomy report.

"All the unfinished intergovernmental business that was on the national agenda in January was still there in December," Robert E. Merriam, ACIR chairman, explained.

"Some states took significant individual actions. . .But for the most part 1971 seemed to be a period of protracted haggling and sloganeering among partisans, public interest groups and lobbyists."

But under the headline "The Minnesota Miracle," ACIR reported that major steps were taken in our state "to produce the outstanding fiscal case study of the year."

Chief among the Minnesota actions cited was enactment of our new tax-revenue distribution law which, the commission said, coordinates state and local fiscal policies in "unprecedented fashion," permits school and other local governmental officials to spend less time and energy on raising revenue and focus instead on developing sound programs, and insures equal educational opportunity to all Minnesota elementary and secondary students.

"The Minnesota lawmakers and governor may well claim the outstanding fiscal performance award of 1971 for their effort to provide a rational state-local fiscal system," ACIR concludes.

"By assuming a dominant role in state-local fiscal policymaking they intended to reduce the fiscal disparities among school districts, strengthen the general fiscal position of cities and counties, and ease the property taxes on homeowners and business firms. In the process, they made Minnesota a model for other states to follow."

Department of Economic Development

Battle Lake, a community of 800 in northwestern Minnesota's "101 Lakes" district, is not only a fine recreation area but rich in historic background.

Except that in this case the history belongs solely to the Indians.

The area, including West Battle Lake and East Battle Lake, was a point of contention between the Sioux and Chippewa Indian tribes for centuries. It was a favorite of both for its abundance of fish and game, wild rice, fruits, herbs and maple sugar.

Many battles were fought here, including one about 1795 which involved 50 Chippewa from Leech Lake against a greater number of Sioux. Details of the desperate conflict are given in Warren's "History of the Ojibways," part of the Minnesota Historical Society collection.

But the last bloody battle in this area occurred in 1847 on the shores of West Battle Lake, when the Chippewa launched on attack designed to drive the Sioux from the region once and for all.

A stand was made by the Sioux about a half mile north of the bridge (where some burial mounds can still be seen, incidentally), but they were forced to retreat westward along the south shore to the present townsite. The retreat continued around the north side of the lake to a point where the Sioux made another unsuccessful—and last—stand.

This final victory for the Chippewa freed them from future threats by the Sioux and June 14—the day of the battle—is still celebrated by them as their Independence Day.

An old trench, stone hammers and pipes, not to mention other fragments left from the many battles, have been found on and near the battle sites. Now you know how the town and the lakes got their names.

But aside from the history of the place—the old earthen ramparts of Fort Julson are still in evidence west of town, for instance—Battle Lake is a good place for water sports and fishing. Northerns, walleye, bass and panfish are all found here, and you can even go after muskies in West Battle Lake.

If you've never heard of Wasioja, it's surprising. At one time, this town was bigger than Rochester.

That was a while back, of course, when Wasioja had a population of 1,000 on an important Territorial Road stagecoach stop. At that time it had a new seminary, a fairgrounds and racetrack, and many fine stores and buildings circled by limestone slab sidewalks cut from local quarries. Wasiojans enjoyed the weekly Wasioja Gazette (established in 1856) and looked forward to years of prosperity.

But a new railroad by-passed the town and hopes for the future were dashed. The flourishing community dwindled quickly until today a few scattered homes and some landmarks remain.

But what landmarks these are! They are worth a side trip when you find yourself in the Mantorville area this summer.

The stone schoolhouse, built in 1856, is preserved complete with a huge rock on the school grounds. This rock wore out many pairs of trousers and shoes, as children used it for a slide. When parents threatened to remove the rock, the local cobbler said he'd have to close his shop and leave town. So the rock remains.

At the southeast edge of town, in a grove of Norway spruce, are the ghostly remains of the Wasioja Seminary, opened in 1860 by the Free Will Baptists. Hardly had the school been underway when recruits for the Civil War were called. Ninety students marched to the town recruiting station to enlist, forming the nucleus of the 2nd Minnesota Regiment which saved the day at Chickamauga. None of the students returned.

The school was closed until the Wesleyan Methodists opened it in 1873. But lack of transportation was having a telling effort on it and the town. In 1905 it burned, and its remains have almost been swallowed up in the rank growth of the once landscaped grounds.

The small, square, stone building, built as a bank in 1855, is the only Civil War Recruiting Station still existing in Minnesota. It was dedicated in 1961 as a Civil War Centennial Project.

At the historical museum in Mantorville (which is just down the road a piece) is an elegant, old horsedrawn hearse, with carved wooden tassels and fringed curtains at the windows. This was used in Wasioja until 1901.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

Headlines and news broadcasts today are filled with words of peace and a new spirit of cooperation. A simple, honest review of modern history gives me an uneasy feeling. Last week Mr. John Noble was in Grand Forks on a lecture tour. He has lived some of this modern history during and after WWII. Some of his story is worth remembering.

Mr. Noble was thrown into prison at the beginning of WW II by the Nazis. After several years in prison the war came to a close and he waited for his release. This was not to be, however, as someone in Washington decided that General Patton was to go no further east. As the Russians moved westward, the town where Mr. Noble was a prisoner came under their control. Our loyal Russian "Ally" promptly put him in prison again where there were about 700 other prisoners, many American. Out of this group over 600 starved to death. From there Mr. Noble and hundreds of American G.I.s were shipped to Siberia. By some miracle he was able to get a post card out of the work camp and it finally reached President Eisenhower who personally intervened for his release. At the same time these Americans were being sent to Siberia, our government was helping Russia build up its war machine.

The most important lesson to be learned from this man's unbelievable story is the nature of these totalitarian systems. When government by people rather than by law is supreme, there can be no end to injustice. Mr. Noble was imprisoned without a trial because he was a so called political prisoner, whatever that means. He also said this is true in North Viet Nam. If, for example, we surrender completely, which is what most of the Democrat presidential candidates are demanding, we may get the three hundred or more prisoners that are listed as war prisoners, but nothing is being said about the many more who are considered as political prisoners. We have not declared war on North Viet Nam and therefore are not really at war with them, and Mr. Noble felt from what he observed in 16 years as a prisoner that nothing will ever be heard from those prisoners again. Now this is a terrible Godless form of injustice, but it is communist justice and we might as well get used to it.

The question is, whether our country is ready to forget about all these brave men who are not going to be released. There are still supposed to be an unknown number of prisoners in North Korea. We should learn from history, but apparently we are unable to do so. About 20 years ago hundreds and thousands of Americans pleaded with our leaders to stay in North Korea and liberate the whole country. We insisted that if this was not done, we would have to fight again, but those who yelled Peace the loudest won out. Now after many years and over 50,000 deaths in Viet Nam, we still have not learned our lesson. Maybe we should reverse gears and at least threaten North Viet Nam with the power we have there now unless all our prisoners are released and unless Red Cross inspection can be made in all prison camps where they may be hiding "political" prisoners. Deals with the dictators of North Viet Nam and China and Russia are not to be trusted if we read history with any honesty at all. This is why I feel uneasy when everyone is so taken up with new hopes for peace. I hope I am wrong.

Home Improvement Painting Ideas

Every amateur painter is familiar with painting tape to insure straight lines without paint smears. Now, there's an improved combination tape and paper called Easy Mask® (Pat. No. 3,032,181) which offers countless new versatile painting ideas.

Treated with a special coating on only part of its width, this unusual tape will not stick to itself. This makes it easier to apply and opens up many unique painting possibilities.

TWO TONE EFFECTS

The painting tape makes it a simple matter to mask off a variety of outdoor furniture and equipment. Swing and gym sets can easily be repainted in separate colors. Garage doors, barbecue grills can be trimmed in two tone colors. And what's wrong with having a two color striped garbage can for easy identity?

Bright greens, yellows, oranges can be striped together on flower pots, ash trays and garden furniture. Painting tape makes the job so clean and straight, people will think it was bought that way.

HIGHLIGHT DANGER SPOTS

As a safety feature, the painting tape can be used to mask off danger areas for painting in a different color. For example, porch swings can be highlighted to show where fingers could be pinched, skirts caught or drinks tipped over. Paint the rockers of rocking chairs a brighter color to remind little hands to be careful.

Since Easy-Mask readily clings to contours of furniture, a variety of effects can be accomplished on dressers, desks, chairs and other furniture.

NEW IDEAS FOR TOYS

Painting tape can be used to make arrows on toys or for painting names on sand boxes, wagons, club houses or even mail boxes.

Outline a hopscotch game or shuffleboard court on your patio. Again, the painting tape makes it simple. Another idea is to outline a parking ramp for bikes left in the garage. Kids love to park between the lines, just like Dad does in parking lots.

PROTECTS CARPETING

Protecting wall-to-wall carpeting takes only minutes with painting tape and beats spreading newspapers or hard-to-manage tapes. The extra width of Easy-Mask allows for faster roller, brush or spray application. Works when dyeing or shampooing rugs, too.

Painting tape can help to paint kitchen and bathroom cabinets without spotting the walls around them. Some home owners even mask off different water pipes and air conditioning and heating ducts for fast identification. In addition, electrical fuse boxes can be coded by sticking a piece of painting tape inside the cover and writing out key numbers.

Besides the obvious uses on ceilings, windows and mouldings, painting tape also works well on hard to reach areas such as stair railings and door corners and hinges.

With these thoughts as idea starters, you'll probably come up with many ideas of your own to use painting tape to speed up those do-it-yourself chores. Easy-Mask is available at paint, hardware, building supply and discount stores.

Sportswear Snags Fashion Scene

Sportswear is "where it's at" thru this spring and summer, reflecting a new silhouette revolution — the end of which seems nowhere in sight.

"The excitement in fashion this spring and continuing thru the summer will be in pant ensembles, beach cover-ups (beach sportswear), tops, long and short skirts and shorts," reflects Mabel Westerberg, Senior Vice President and Fashion Coordinator for a leading national direct selling firm, Queen's-Way to Fashion.

"Sportswear allows women to put together their own look, while offering them a better value in the face of rising costs," explains the Fashion Coordinator. Popular in double knits, wool, polyesters and other synthetic light-weight fabrics, sportswear separates keep up a sizzling pace of smart but casual styling which has become the predominating way of life for todays women.

"For instance," says Mrs. Westerberg, "beach cover-ups, already a popular spring item, promises to become even bigger in seasons ahead in their new role of dresses from pool to party. The long skirt and romper coordinates are particularly functional in these areas — separating to provide airy play togs for outdoor activities or put together for evening at-home parties."

The new sportswear silhouette in separates provides a casual but polished layered look. A new kind of styling away from the sloppy or bland appearance. It's more fun and has more economic sense than other areas of apparel. It is a reflection of the whole refined evolution within fashion today.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I was honorably discharged from military service recently and wonder if some type of insurance is available?

A—If you have a service-connected disability, you may qualify for service disabled veterans insurance. You must apply within one year of the date of VA notice that service-connection is granted. However, you may apply before requesting or receiving a grant of service-connection, and the Veterans administration will determine whether you are eligible for this insurance. Also, a veteran may convert his servicemen's group life insurance to an individual, permanent policy within 120 days of separation from service.

Q—When will I receive the dividend check on my GI insurance?

A—Dividends ordinarily are due on the anniversary date of the policy. However, the Veterans administration plans to mail current dividends during the first six months of 1972.

Q—I draw a Veterans administration pension for a total and permanent nonservice-connected disability and have been rated as in need of aid and attendance. Am I also eligible for outpatient medical treatment for any condition?

A—Yes, you are eligible for any medical treatment required, except for dental conditions.

Q—I hear that Veterans administration pensioners over 72 years of age do not have to file annual income questionnaires anymore. Is that true?

A—Yes. A recent law excludes persons 72 years old and older who draw pensions for non-service-connected disabilities and parents receiving indemnity compensation during two consecutive years from filing annual income questionnaires. However, they still must report changes in income.

Q—May a veteran pay off a GI loan before date final payment is due?

A—Yes. A Veterans administration guaranteed loan may be partially or fully paid at any time ahead of schedule. However, part payments may not be less than one monthly payment or $100, whichever is less.

Q—About two years ago, I received Veterans administration outpatient treatment for an injury sustained in service and verified by the VA. Can I receive treatment again from the VA?

A—Yes, if you have established this service-connection with VA, you should apply for treatment again.

Q—I have been drawing widow's pension of $81 since January 1971, and I earned $900 the rest of the year. Should I report this to the Veterans administration, and what effect will this have on my pension?

A—Anytime a person who draws nonservice-connected death pension has a change in income during the year, it must be reported to the VA office having his records. That office will decide if pension adjustments are necessary. If there is income that could not have been anticipated, payments are usually adjusted at end of year in which income changed.

Q—I was honorably discharged from the Army after serving four years, part of it in Vietnam. Can I get a GI home loan and go to school under the GI bill at the same time?

A—Yes, you may take advantage of both of these Veterans administration benefits at the same time provided you have adequate income to handle the loan.

Q—Does the veterans administration pay dividends on "RH" life insurance, and what interest rate is paid on National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) dividends left with the VA as credit?

A—The answer to the first part of your question is "no." Effective the first of this year, the interest rate on NSLI dividends held as credit with the VA was increased from 4.24 to 4.5 per cent.

Q—I received a Veterans administration pension check made out to my husband who died last month. Shall I return it, and if I do, will the VA re-issue the check to me?

A—Yes, you must return the check. If you are eligible for a widow's pension, your first check from the VA will be issued at your husband's rate of payment, if his rate was greater than yours. Thereafter, you will receive checks at widow pension rates.

Q—Several years ago I elected to receive benefits under the new pension law when I exceeded the $1,600 annual income limitation, resulting in termination of benefits under the old pension law. Now that income limitations under the old law have been increased, can I go back to drawing pension under the old law?

A—No. Once a pensioner has chosen benefits under the new law, he cannot go back to the old law.

Broasted Foods Answer The Need For Fast, Tasty, Nutritious, Convenience Meals

Grandma was an expert with a pressure cooker and practically everyone makes fried foods, but no one ever conceived of combining the best features of both. That is until a small Rockton, Illinois company did just that and Broasted® foods were born in the early 1950s.

RETAINS NATURAL JUICES

These foods are so unique that the U.S. Patent Office granted a patent to the process, which describes the food that emerges from the Broaster's pressure fryer as a "properly browned appealing color. It is thoroughly cooked all the way through and substantially all the natural juices are retained."

The reason for this is that Broasted foods are heat sealed the moment they are placed in the Broaster under controlled pressure at a uniform temperature. This seals in all the natural juices, vitamins and nutrients, while sealing out the vegetable shortening the foods are cooked in.

Foods emerge from the pressure fryer crisp, tasty and yet never greasy. Even people on restricted diets are able to enjoy Broasted foods.

WHY PRESSURE COOKING?

When cooking meat, regardless of the process used, it is the heating of the juices in the meats that cooks. Since these juices are mainly water, they turn to steam and boil away at 212°F. — the normal boiling point of water. Thus, the more juices retained, the more flavor that remains.

By introducing pressure into cooking, the boiling point changes. This is an established principal of science. If 10 pounds of pressure is present when cooking, the boiling point is raised to 240° F.

Thus, it is the addition of pressure in the pressure fryer that keeps the juices in the meat from boiling out while keeping the flavor in.

SPEEDS COOKING

A pressure fryer also speeds up the cooking process. A wide variety of foods can be prepared rapidly in a Broaster pressure fryer. For instance, chicken cooks in 7 minutes, shrimp in 3½ minutes, pork chops in 4 minutes and ribs in 6 minutes.

These are a few of the varieties of poultry, seafood, meats and vegetables that are cooked in minutes with a pressure fryer.

For nutrition, color, aroma, texture and taste, broasting is a cooking method that Grandma would definitely approve. Broasted Foods are available in fine restaurants throughout the nation.

Sailor's Menu

Ship ahoy and anchors away for a nautical party suitable for a birthday celebration or a special supper the children help make themselves!

SAILOR'S MENU

Superfish Sandwich
Seven Seas Fruitcup
Carrot Curls
Anchor Cupcakes
Seafoam Sipper

The chief cook can catch the fish right out of the freezer and bake them in the oven for 15 minutes. Pop the buns in the last few minutes to warm them. Some like tartar sauce and some like catsup on their sandwiches, and of course they're good as is, too!

While the fillets are baking, make carrot curls and, using canned fruit with diced apple or a combination of fresh fruit such as bananas, oranges, pears or pineapple, make the Seven Seas Fruitcup.

Seafoam Sipper is delicious and truly fun to make. For each serving, beat or shake 1 cup of milk with 2 teaspoons of raspberry or strawberry jam, ice cream topping or thawed frozen berries. Add 2 or 3 drops of food coloring if you like, then top with whipped cream "sea foam."

Last of all, the Anchor Cupcakes, which have been finished ahead of time and are all ready to serve.

ANCHOR CUPCAKES

Frost cupcakes with fluffy white frosting. Fill a decorating tube or an envelope with a tiny corner cut off with fluffy frosting tinted blue or chocolate frosting and make an anchor on each cupcake. Leave cupcakes in paper cups for easy handling.

Enjoy a Sailor's Supper soon at your house. It's so simple to do with Gorton's Superfish™ fillets, fried, breaded cod in a shape resembling a fish, and the supper is nutritious, too!

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Drinking and driving do not mix on the highway or on Minnesota's fields of snow. No matter when it is used, alcohol deteriorates judgment and reduces inhibitions—dangerous impairments for one driving a snowmobile, says the Minnesota State Medical Association.

From recent statistics obtained through a study of snowmobile accidents, two Minnesota physicians concluded that alcohol is a significant factor in snowmobile accidents.

Richard A. Fink, M.D., Rochester, and James J. Monge, M.D., Duluth, reported that 22 per cent of those involved in snowmobile accidents admitted alcohol ingestion. In addition, a significant percentage avoided answering the question.

Other major causes of snowmobile accidents cited in their report included high speed and reckless driving and stunting.

Snowmobiling injuries will increase with the popularity of the pastime, projected Doctors Fink and Monge.

But, snowmobilers can do a better job of protecting themselves, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. Here are some suggestions:

Learn to know and respect the capabilities of your snowmobile.

Do not go on extended excursions alone. Carry extra fuel and a safety kit of vital spare parts when on a long trip.

Do not travel over strange terrain at night.

Choose protective clothing, particularly safety helmets.

Do not drink and drive.

Do not drive when fatigued.

Practice defensive driving and leave stunting to the very skilled.

Many married couples today are limiting their family size. Perhaps they do so for health or financial reasons; perhaps because of concern about the overpopulation question. Whatever the reason, more and more often, couples are turning to voluntary sterilization to carry out family planning.

Either partner may become sterilized, says the Minnesota State Medical association, although the procedure is simpler and less expensive to perform on a male. In either case, an operation is in order, but for men it can be performed in a physician's office under a local anesthetic and may take only half an hour.

Male sterilizations are called vasectomies. A female sterilization is known as salpingectomy or tubal ligation.

A tubal ligation has to be done in a hospital and takes a two to five day stay. It involves cutting and tying the fallopian tubes that carry the eggs from the ovary where they are manufactured to the cavity of the uterus which would house an egg if fertilized. Most often, a tubal igation is performed after a woman has delivered a baby, however, elective tubal ligations are being done increasingly more often through the vagina by laparotomy or laparoscopy.

Vasectomies and tubal ligations are legal in Minnesota. Some states have laws which require consent of the spouse. It is not clear in Minnesota law whether consent is required although most physicians and hospitals require the consent of both partners.

Physicians are seeing a lot of bronchitis this winter, reports the Minnesota State Medical association. Daily, patients enter their offices with symptoms of a lingering rasping cough, usually producing green or yellow sputum, and, in more advanced cases, shortness of breath.

The physician probably prescribes antibiotics. And, to really clear up and prevent bronchitis, he probably advises his patient to eliminate sources of irritation and infection in nose, throat, mouth, sinuses, and bronchial tubes. He may tell his patient to give up smoking, avoid exposure to dust and fumes and stay in good physical condition through proper diet, rest and regular exercise. Sometimes an allergic cause may have to be eliminated.

It is the inflammation of the lining of the bronchial tubes which connect the windpipe with the lungs. It begins with prolonged irritation of the bronchial lining which causes thickening and susceptibility to infection. Irritation may start with another disease, an allergy, cigarette smoking or air pollution.

Bronchitis is classified as acute or chronic. Most people suffer acute bronchitis with fever, coughing and spitting when they have a severe cold. Chronic bronchitis occurs when the coughing and spitting continue for months and return each year, lasting slightly longer with each attack.

Many people neglect bronchitis until it is in an advanced stage and they are susceptible to heart attack and serious lung diseases such as tuberculosis and emphysema. Yet, if treated early, it may be reversed and disability prevented.

Kissing may lead to many pleasures and pains, says the Minnesota state medical association. The "kissing disease" for one. Although mononucleosis or the "kissing disease" is not necessarily contracted through kissing, this may be one way it could be spread.

Medical men believe that it is transmitted through sneezing, coughing, talking or through handling things that have become contaminated with mouth secretions. But they are not sure. They are not sure what causes it either, although it appears to be a virus.

What is known is that mononucleosis produces an abnormal lymphocyte in the blood which infiltrates almost any tissue of the body so the disease may have a number of bizarre manifestations. For example, it may appear to be an acute infection of the liver or central nervous system. Or, it may seem to be an atypical pneumonia. Some people have been known to pack the disease around without noticing any symptoms.

Mononucleosis occurs most often during the first three decades of a person's life and rarely occurs in people over 40. It works little hardship on children who have plenty of time for a gradual recovery but really hurts those of college age whose immunity is low and who can afford little lost time through sickness.

Generally, mononucleosis symptoms include fever, sore throat and enlarged lymph glands. The disease runs its course in about a week but residual effects may last for weeks, often months.

The symptoms of mononucleosis are treated as they arise but outside of general nursing care, there is no treatment. Antibiotics are used to control secondary infections but have no effect on the primary disease.

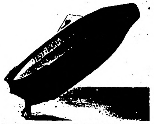
Ex Bronc-Buster Turns Boat-Buster



IT'S UP, UP AND AWAAAAY as Glastron Boat Company's No. 1 boat tester, John (Salty) Allison "flies" a test boat across Galveston Bay.

Most people like to feel that their life's work is constructive — but not ex bronc-buster John "Salty" Allison of Austin, Texas, Glastron Boat Company's No. 1 test driver. He spends his working days doing his best to rip Glastrons to pieces.

"I really feel bad when I do tear one up," Salty says, "but when I finish with a boat we know it can take normal punishment for years and years."

During each stage of a new design's development, Salty "wrings it out" on one of the local lakes. To detect any weak points in the structure and correct them, the testing period may last a year or more.

Before he gives his final approval to a boat Allison takes it to the Gulf Coast of Texas for 40 hours or more of real rough water testing. Any sign of weakness sends the boat back to the drawing board.

Offshore testing, the most vital and critical as well as the most obviously dangerous procedure, is a test of endurance for man as well as boat.

As an ex-rodeo rider, Salty says it's "nothing." During the six years he has been riding herd for Glastron he's "only" had a dislocated shoulder, a few broken ribs and "minor" injuries such as torn back muscles and a bruised kidney. "It's a whole lot better than getting stomped by a bull," he laughs.

Anyone who has seen color movies of his ocean tests finds his injury list ridiculously small. An impact meter attached to his test boats regularly registers forces up to 25 G's, or 25 times the force of gravity. Momentary impacts up to 30 G's are not unusual.

While testing of a new model ends with Salty, that's certainly not where it begins. Glastron's special testing laboratory rigidly checks all individual components for quality and endurance.

The more testing before Allison sees a boat, the better he likes it. "I don't like to get my feet wet," is the way he puts it. A really successful day for him is when he can subject his current test model to violent maneuvers and come home dry.

And a boat model is never safe from him. Long after it has been put in production, he's still going down the line and selecting a model at random for one of his "wringouts".

Bronco-busting or boat-busting — it's all fun to him.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Feet deserve to be pampered—after all, they take the average American a distance equivalent to a trip from coast to coast each year.

Many adults abuse their feet and, unfortunately, pay little attention to the care of their children's feet. Good foot care is essential for the well-being of the whole body, says the Minnesota state medical association. Abnormal painful feet can cause bad posture, fatigue, headaches, muscular cramps and backache.

Some parents purchase rigid shoes or the so-called corrective orthopedic shoes for their children. They are unaware that the growing foot is intended to move around unshod so that muscles and ligaments may develop uninhibited. Loose fitting cloth booties are adequate for infants before they walk. When they need shoes, the fit is extremely important.

One-half to three-quarters of an inch of empty space should lie between the big toe and end of the shoe. Shoes which are too short gradually cause the toes to flex, which weakens the foot muscles and deforms the toes.

The shoe's widest width should correspond with the widest weight-bearing portion of the foot. The sole and leather of baby's shoe should be supple. It is wrong to force a baby's foot into a miniature adult-style shoe. Arches and heels are not necessary early in life.

Remember, baby's feet grow rapidly—three months is the average length of time a baby's shoe will fit well. Inspect shoes often so that the baby does not outgrow them without your awareness. And, keep in mind, when he needs new shoes, he usually needs larger stockings.

Children will eat or drink anything. Unfortunately, this may include one of many poisonous household items. Each year, hundreds of thousands of children are poisoned through their curiosity. Hundreds die; throusands are permanently handicapped.

Accidental poisoning is preventable, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. Its prevention requires a personal effort to develop habits of safe living and an awareness of a possible accident.

The following are preventive practices for successful poison control :

Label everything.

Keep all household chemicals, cleansing agents and polishes out of the reach of children and return them to safe storage immediately after using.

Keep all medicines, including aspirin, in a locked or inaccessible cabinet.

Never put a poison or toxic substance in a container designed to contain food. Never store poisonous substances with or near food.

Accept children's curiosity and the fact that they will eat or drink anything regardless of its flavor.

Never sell a child on the idea of taking medicine by telling him it's candy.

Teach children that there are some things that are yours which they must leave alone.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. National Poison Prevention Week, March 19-25, is a good time to begin. Check your home. Besure everything harmful is in a safe place

Its exact cause is not known. There is no known cure. Yet, psoriasis the mystery skin disorder, affects at least one out of 50 Americans.

It's a discouraging ailment and baffling to physicians. Hundreds of preparations have been tried and still no specific therapy exists for its cure. The best a physician can do is prescribe medications to remove the scales and ease the itching. And, while the symptoms may disappear temporarily, chances are they will return.

There is no scientific basis for a hopeless attitude, however. The disease sometimes subsides and does not return for as long as five years or more. It may even disappear forever.

Psoriasis appears as itchy, silvery-scaled brown-red lesions on the elbows, knees, scalp and trunk. Sometimes the underarm and genital areas may be involved. In the scalp, the red plaques are visible at the hair line. These shed large quantities of silvery-white scales resembling severe dandruff.

Although medical science has not discovered the exact cause of psoriasis, much more is known about its complexity today than in the past. Psoriasis is not an infection and certainly is not contagious. It is likely that a psoriatic tendency is hereditary. Injury to the skin is the most common factor precipitating the appearance of psoriatic lesions. Psoriasis appears to respond well to sunlight and improves during the summer; worsens during the winter.

Research continues into the nature of psoriasis. Until there is more knowledge of its mysteries, however, the patient's understanding of his disease and his friends' sympathy will lessen the burden of living with the disease.

SHRIMP TIP

Salvos for shrimp cocktail, especially the madly popular one with the red sauce on top! True, home production usually takes some doing but not if you already have a can of shrimp tucked away in the refrigerator. Canned shrimp, thoroughly chilled, make good cocktail shrimp. As for the favorite red cocktail sauce, it is simple beyond belief to make.

COCKTAIL FOR TWO

1 can (4½ ounces) shrimp
Crisp lettuce
1/2 cup chili sauce or tomato catsup
1/3 cup chopped celery
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Rinse shrimp in cold water. Arrange in lettuce-lined cocktail glasses. Combine sauce ingredients and spoon over shrimp.

Culinary Game Plan

Football fans can't seem to get together without getting hungry. To score with your fans, try a culinary game plan with football flavor.

1) Plan three basic plays: pre-game hot snacks; cold snacks during the game; a post-game buffet while the armchair-quarterbacks rehash the action. 2) Keep the menu hearty; football fans get as hungry as if they were on the field. 3) Base your menu on NFL Training Table Foods; the fact that they're "football's own" adds a special savor. 4) Don't interrupt the action. If there's anything that fans take more seriously than food, it's . . . football!

HARWOOD RETURNS!

If you were old enough to drink back in the late 40's, chances are you remember Harwood with respect, if not affection. A fine rich Canadian with its own ideas about quality. But just about the time you began to enjoy it, we disappeared. We apologize. You see, our production at that time was limited, so reluctantly we decided to keep most of it at home.

Since we went away, more Americans have developed a taste for Canadians, today's Canadians, the lighter ones. And we have developed a way to supply them with one we can truly call Harwood. Lighter, yes. Lesser, no.

Now that we are returning to America, with all due modesty, we trust America will return to us.

Especially as Harwood costs no more than those Canadians-come-lately.

Vikings Overcome Pirates 59-55 For Region 8 Crown

FOSSTON FORWARD Dan Storrusten has his route to the basket blocked by Randy Cody of Littlefork-Big Falls during their first round region eight game Friday night in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse. Also in the photo are the Vikings' Tom Morris (52) and Rodney Faugner. Storrusten scored 13 points in the game, but the district 29 champion Vikings won the contest 64-59.

Littlefork-Big Falls gained its first berth ever in the Minnesota state high school basketball tournament Saturday night with an almost unbelievable 59-55 come from behind win over Crookston in the region eight championship game at Grand Forks.

The hero of the Cinderella-like fourth quarter efforts of the Vikings was 5-9 senior Dave Stelton who came off the bench for the foul troubled Vikings in the fourth quarter and burned the Pirates with eight points - his seventh and eighth being the deciding factor in the game.

Littlefork-Big Falls overcame a gigantic nine-point 49-40 Crookston lead with 6:15 remaining in the game to tie the contest 55-55 with 1:45 left. The Pirates, desperately trying to regain their lost poise, still appeared to be in the drivers' seat as they called time out with nine seconds remaining in the deadlocked contest. Veteran Pirate guards Doug LaFriniere and Gary Wagner prepared for the Crookston inbounds pass at midcourt, but Stelton appeared out of nowhere to knock the pass out of Wagner's hands and raced unmolested toward the Littlefork basket for the winning points.

The visibly shaken Pirates still had six seconds remaining to tie the game, but in their hurried excitement, missed coach Herb Hasz' time out signal and a desperation full court pass was thrown out of bounds. Crookston stopped the clock with two seconds left, but Littlefork's in bounds pass found Craig Jaakkola breaking toward the basket for an easy lay-up at the final buzzer.

Littlefork-Big Falls was forced to stage a game-long come back effort as the fired-up Crookston quint opened up a quick 5-0 lead by working the ball inside the Viking zone defense for easy lay-ups from Pirate center Dave Dahlberg.

Dave Brockemeier's free throw opened up a wide 14-4 lead for the Pirates with 2:14 remaining in the first quarter before the Vikings finally found the touch with eight straight points, many from underneath by 6-6 Tom Morris and 6-4 Randy Cody, to trail just 14-12 at the first stop.

Morris' tip-in tied the contest 14-14 at the outset of the second quarter, but the Pirates, led by the sharp outside shooting of LaFriniere, managed to slowly pull away for an eight-point 34-26 lead at the half.

Littlefork's superior height inside began to pay off as the third quarter started with the Vikings trimming the difference to just 36-34 behind a fast break offense with 2:50 remaining.

Cody's fourth personal resulted in a short rest period for the big junior and the Pirates took advantage of the situation by erupting for a 44-36 lead going into the final canto.

Crookston opened up three nine-point leads in the early part of the fourth quarter before Littlefork stagged a confident come back effort midway through the stanza.

The Pirates led 51-43 with 5:42 remaining when Stelton began to make his appearance felt. Littlefork's full court press enabled the Vikings to climb back to within 53-51 as Stelton hit two long jump shots following Crookston turnovers with 2:15 left.

Another Pirate turnover, the third straight time Crookston gave up the ball without attempting a shot, found Morris connecting from close range to tie the contest 53-all with two minutes remaining.

Charlie Potter made both attempts from the gift line with 1:47 left to give Crookston a short lived 55-53 advantage, but just three seconds later Littlefork's hurry-up, but accurate, offense tied the game 55-55 on Jaakkola's short jumper.

Wagner missed an opportunity to put the Pirates back on top when he missed the first shot on a one and one free throw situation with 49 seconds remaining.

The Vikings missed a short jump shot with about 35 seconds remaining and the Pirates controlled the rebound, holding the ball until their fatal time out.

Littlefork-Big Falls shot 41 per cent from the floor for the game, but in the crucial fourth quarter the Vikings hit on 11 of 15 from the field. Crookston managed to connect on just 38 per cent of their shots from the floor. From the free throw line the Pirates made 11 of 20 while the Vikings were given just six free throw opportunities during the game, hitting three of them. The Vikings held a narrow 35-32 rebound advantage.

Littlefork-Big Falls will meet defending class A champion Melrose Thursday night in the first round of the state meet at Williams arena in Minneapolis.

State Pheasants Low In Mercury

Minnesota pheasants tested for mercury and pesticides are well within the levels set by the federal government as safe for eating, the department of natural resources reported this week.

For sampling purposes, 62 birds were taken from various parts of the state during 1969 and 1970.

Nearly half of the pheasants contained no detectable amount of mercury. The highest amount found in any pheasant was .15 parts per million, far below the maximum level of 0.5 set by the federal government.

All of the pheasants tested for chlorinated hydrocarbon pesticides contained a measureable amount of such chemicals but none exceeded a level of 0.03. This is well below the maximum of 0.5 for such chemicals established by the government as safe for edible materials.

Wildlife Week Cites "Ecology: A Wild Idea"

Film star-ecologist, Robert Redford, has been named national chairman of the 35th annual National Wildlife week, March 19-25, sponsored by the National Wildlife federation and its state affiliates.

The 1972 Wildlife week theme, "Ecology: A Wild Idea," focuses on the fact that wildlife is a part of the environmental crisis and is dependent upon the quality of natural surroundings.

The bald eagle, emblem of the United States, is in serious trouble. Its plight symbolizes the fate of 100 other American wildlife species threatened by extinction due to man's interference with the natural world.

"The bald eagle is more than a decoration for dollar bills, postage stamps and commercial advertising," Redford said. "It is a symbol of strength, freedom and quality of life."

"It may be a wild idea to believe we can reverse environmental destruction to protect the bald eagle and create a quality life for man, but this country was founded on the wild idea of independence, and not so long ago a wild idea took us to the moon. Ecology is another wild idea that will work."

During Wildlife week the National Wildlife federation and its three million members will be urging people throughout the United States to consider their relationship to the natural world and make personal commitments to help improve environmental quality.

The Minnesota Vikings averaged 36,654 fans per game during the 1961 NFL season.

CROOKSTON'S Charlie Potter (13) has a hard time getting by Littlefork-Big Falls' Tom Morris on this play in Saturday night's region eight championship game at the UND fieldhouse in Grand Forks. Morris played a tremendous two-way game to lead the Vikings to a thrilling 59-55 come from behind win to gain a berth in this week's Minnesota class A state tournament.

Fosston Rally Wins Consolation Contest

Fosston claimed third place consolation honors in the region eight basketball tournament Saturday night with a 67-59 decision over Stephen in the UND fieldhouse.

The district 30 champion Greyhounds overcame a 12-point 21-9 first quarter deficit to climb to within 31-29 at the half. Fosston finally managed to overtake the Tigers on Bruce Anderson's short jump shot with 5:57 remaining in the third quarter, giving the Greyhounds a 35-34 lead.

Fosston never trailed after Anderson's bucket, but the score was tied three times and the Greyhounds were never able to build more than a six point lead until the final seconds.

Dan Storrusten led the Greyhound attack with 21 points while Anderson chipped in 13. Junior center Greg Kuznia led the Tigers with 21 points and Pat Knoll added 11 in the losing effort.

Fosston connected on 40 per cent of their shots from the field in the game with Stephen hitting 44 per cent. From the gift stripe the teams matched fairly even with Fosston claiming a 57 per cent performance and the Tigers 52 per cent. The teams each grabbed 32 rebounds, but the telling factor were turnovers when Stephen coughed the ball up 18 times.

Rande Smith Breaks Big 5 Rebound Mark

Lincoln high school senior Rande Smith shattered Sheldon Joppru's 1969 Big Five Conference rebounding record this season with 124 caroms in six league starts.

Joppru, a former Lincoln All-Stater, held the previous record of 95 rebounds during the 1968-69 season while averaging 15.8 rebounds per game. Smith, a 6-5 center, averaged a remarkable 20.7 rebounds per game this season.

As a team the Prowlers set a new standard for field goal attempts against Climax when they fired 99 times from the floor. The previous record was 95 attempts by Crookston, also against Climax, during the 1969-70 season.

There was a total of 17 new individual and team records broken in Big Five Conference play during the 1971-72 campaign. Among the individual single game marks set this season included most field goal attempts, 33 by Climax's Wayne Kobbervig against East Grand Forks; most field goals made, 16 by EGF's Kurt Knoff against Crookston and Climax; and most points, 38 by Knoff against Crookston.

Team single game records set in the 1971-72 season included field goals made, 44 by EGF against Warren; assists, 28 by EGF against Climax (ties their own record set in 1970-71); points, 98 by Crookston against Climax; and the Prowlers' field goal attempts mark.

Individual season records broken this year included field goal percentage, 63.8 by Crookston's Dave Broekemeier; scoring average, 31.6 by Knoff; and Smith's rebounding mark.

Team season records set this season were field goals made, 282 by EGF; field goal percentage, 50.4 by EGF; free throw attempts, 216 by Climax (tied own record set in 1970-71); free throw percentage, 64.0 by Crookston; assists average, 22.9 by EGF; total points, 672 by EGF; and offensive average, 84.0 by EGF.

FOSSTON GUARD Scott Reierson was able to get his 5-9 frame above Littlefork-Big Falls' 6-6 forward Tom Morris for a short jump shot during Friday's region eight tournament game at Grand Forks. Littlefork-Big Falls won the game 64-59 to advance into the championship contest for the second straight year.

Lincoln high school head basketball coach Lee Swanson completed his first year at the Prowler helm by directing his team to the school's best won-lost record since the 1960-61 season, but the new Prowler mentor was still disappointed with the season's final outcome.

"I felt we had a good season," confessed Swanson, "but we're still disappointed with our tournament play. It's kind of hard to accept the fact that we finished 17-6, but still only ended up third in the district. I feel we're just as capable as Crookston, but I guess losing is just a part of life that we have to live with."

The Prowlers' 15-5 regular season and 17-6 overall records were both the best marks posted by a Lincoln quint since 15-3 and 18-6 marks recorded during the 1960-61 campaign.

Prowler regular season wins were posted over Fisher (70-67), Detroit Lakes (53-43), Grafton (85-62), Pine City (73-48), Chisago Lakes (81-77), Kennedy (84-52), Bagley (84-55), East Grand Forks (73-59), Warren (60-51 and 87-34), Ada (68-53), Climax (94-60), Crookston (68-63), Fosston (72-62) and Bemidji (68-65). Losses came at the hands of Mentor (57-49), Crookston (72-66), Bemidji (68-65), Littlefork-Big Falls (57-54) and East Grand Forks (81-74).

In district 31 tournament play the Prowlers dumped Alvarado 84-58 but lost a semi-final 63-59 decision to Crookston. Thief River Falls beat Climax 92-78 for its ninth district 31 consolation title since 1931.

Team captain Rande Smith led a balanced Prowler offensive attack as all five starters averaged in double figures throughout the entire season. The 6-5 center averaged 18.4 points and 16.4 rebounds per game, after missing six of the first seven games because of illness. Smith saw his first action December 29 against Pine City in the sixth game of the season and scored 17 points and pulled down 14 rebounds in spot duty. The senior pivot man missed the squad's next game against Chisago Lakes, but was back in the line-up the rest of the season while never failing to reach double figures in the scoring column. His best effort was 31 points against Ada.

Junior foward Jeff Rhoden, voted co-captain of next year's squad, scored more points than anyone else on the squad (270) and averaged 13.5 points per game with a top effort of 25 against East Grand Forks. The 6-3 underclassman also averaged 10.8 rebounds per game.

Ordean Peterson, the other half of next year's captain combination, finished third in the team scoring parade as the 6-2 junior averaged 13.2 points per game. Peterson's top performance was a 30-point effort against Bagley.

Senior forward Tom Kays finished the season with 250 points for a 12.5 average, to go along with 8.1 rebounds per contest. Kays' 27 points led the Prowlers to their win over Grafton.

Kent Smith rounded out the Prowler starting five with an 11.8 average. The 6-1 junior guard's top effort was 26 points against Chisago Lakes.

As a team, the Prowlers averaged 70.8 points per game while giving up just 58.6 per contest, best defensive average among district 31 schools. The Prowlers also led the district schools n rebounding with an average of 45.5 per contest. Thief River Falls recorded a 43 per cent shooting mark from the field and a 62 per cent performance from the free throw line.

The Prowlers placed second in the Big Five Conference race with 5-2 loop mark for six points, trailing East Grand Forks' 7-1 record and seven points. Next season the Prowler cagers will belong to both the Big Five and the Northwest Conference. Thief River Falls, Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Fergus Falls and Breckenridge will form the Northwest Conference basketball race while the Big Five remains intact with Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Climax and Warren.

"I would like to take this opportunity to give a very sincere thank you to the community's tremendous support during the year," Swanson said. "The fine support during the year and the telegrams during the tournament games were really appreciated."

"We'll miss all of our seniors," continued the Prowler head coach. "They played a very important role in our seccess this season." There were five seniors on the Prowler squad during the 1971-72 season, including Smith, Kays, Lee Sorensen, Randy Carlson and Warren Seaverson.

"I hope our fine support continues next year," added coach Swanson. "We feel we'll be able to field a competitive team next season. We won't be as big as we were this year, but we'll have to get a little more physical. We'll have some spots open on the varsity next year and it's up to the entire junior varsity to work throughout the summer if they want to make a contribution next season." The 1971-72 Prowler JV's finished the season with a 9-8 record.

Swanson also gave special thanks to all of the coaches in the Thief River Falls system, including assistant coaches Glen Peters and Vern Treat; Bill Blankenfeld, Franklin ninth grade; Tom Tapper and Don Hejlik, Franklin eighth grade; Peter Tri, Northrop; Howie Thorsen, St. Hilaire; Frank Womack, Washington; Walt Redinger, Mark Twain; Dick Tyler, Knox; and Lincoln athletic director Russ Smith.

Stephen Youth Killed In Area Hunting Mishap

Jon Thomas Dufualt, 13, died from a gunshot wound inflicted as a result of a hunting accident south of Stephen late in the afternoon of Wednesday, March 15. The youth was hit by a bullet fired from a .22 caliber rifle while he and another 13-year-old boy were hunting rabbits on the Francis Knoll farm.

The accident occurred about 5:45 p.m., according to the Marshall county sheriff's department, as the boys were in a field about 200 yards from the farm buildings. They were reportedly chasing a rabbit and the Dufualt youth was apparently struck in the chest when he ran into his companion's line of fire. He tried to get up but fell back down and was dead on arrival at Warren hospital.

Jon Dufualt, who has been living with the Knolls, his grandparents, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Dufualt, former residents of the Argyle area.

Lundbohm & Marshall Pace NSJC Pucksters

In the span of just one year, Northland state junior college hockey fortunes improved from a dismal three-win campaign during the 1970-71 season to a 13-11 winning record in 1971-72.

Northland began its first season of intercollegiate hockey in 1970-71 and suffered regular drubbings at the hands of the University of North Dakota and Bemidji state college junior varsity teams enroute to a 3-21 season record.

With an expanded Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) for the 1971-72 season, the Northland sextet played a 16-game conference slate and finished third in the final standings with an 8-8 loop mark. The Northmen finished their non-conference schedule with a 4-2 ledger for a final 12-10 regular season slate. Northland lost a first round 7-5 decision to Rainy River in the MJCAA state tournament, before bouncing back to claim a 12-5 consolation round win over Lakewood.

Northland opened the season with a clean breakaway as the Northmen won their first six games, two over Crookston Tech and four over Hibbing, before Rainy River swept a two-game weekend series at International Falls. The first eight games proved to be the pattern for the entire season as the Northmen swept 13 games without a loss against Crookston, Hibbing and Lakewood, but suffered nine losses without a win at the hands of th MJCAA's top two teams, Itasca and Rainy River. The Northmen also lost single encounters against Mesabi and the Concordia college junior varsity.

Sophomore centers Bob Lundbohm (Roseau) and Leo Marshall (Warroad) shared the team scoring leadership with 65 points each. Lundbohm collected 27 goals and 38 assists while Marshall scored 33 times and added 32 assists. Sophomore wing Rodney Bolduc (Anoka) finished third on the scoring parade with 26 goals and 20 assists for 46 points with another second year wing, Rich Ellerbusch (Warroad), close behind on 22 goals and 23 assists for 45 points.

Skating with just two forward lines, out of necessity, for the entire season found Marshall's line, with Ellerbusch and Bolduc on the wings, collecting 81 goals and 156 points during the 24-game campaign. Lundbohm's line, with freshmen Mark Hughes (EGF) and John Barger (Hallock) on the wings, scored 64 goals and collected 138 points.

Sophomore Leonard Kotta (Roseau) and freshman Roger Erickson (Roseau) provided valuable reserve strength during the year as they added 14 points in their spot duty assignments.

On defense the Northmen were led by the play of sophomores Jeff Baumgartner (Roseau), Rick Lindegard (Hallock), Gary Halvorson (Roseau) and John Hellquist (TRF), along with freshmen Doug Palm (Aurora-Hoyt Lakes) and Paul Johnson (TRF), Baumgartner also provided some offensive spark from the blueline as he scored 14 goals and 23 assists for 37 points.

Sophomore Maurie Pearson (Crookston), along with freshmen Tom Matanich (Aurora-Hoyt Lakes) and Dave Steen (Duluth East) shared the Northland goal tending duties during the season.

Individual scoring for coach Swede Lund's Northmen during the 1971-72 season is as follows:

	g	a	tp
Bob Lundbohm	27	38	65
Leo Marshall	33	32	65
Rodney Bolduc	26	20	46

Jeff Baumgartner	14	23	37

Gary Halvorson	3	3	6
Doug Palm	1	2	3

MAKING DO

While it may be true that "Heaven will protect the working girl," today's liberated career woman takes care of herself. Since she doesn't have much time to primp for an after-work date — nor does her desk drawer hold all the equipment her bathroom shelf does — she learns to "make do" with what's available. The housewife can easily adapt some of these hints to make her at-home life easier: 1) Can't find your clothes brush? Wrap a length of Scotch double coated tape around your index finger for a quick lint remover. 2) This same tape will hold a finicky blouse-button closed. 3) Scotch book tape will mend a torn boot till you can get to the shoemaker.

F. North St. Paul, Markley, Kendall, Tindolph and Crocker Avenues, etc.

The proposed construction would consist of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with gravel, subbase and base material, the replacement of existing curb and gutter where such curb and gutter does not provide adequate drainage. The construction of hot mixed bituminous surfacing and the construction of concrete curb and gutter where no curb and gutter now exists and the replacement of any iron pipe water service lines together with the construction of water and sewer service lines to any vacant lots not now so served.

The proposed construction is on St. Paul Ave. from 1st St. to Mussey St.; on Markley Ave. from 1st St. to 3rd St.; on Kendall Ave. from 1st St. to Taft St.; Tindolph Ave. from Mussey to 3rd St.; Crocker Ave. from Mussey St. to Taft St. and Mussey St. from Crocker Ave. to Merriam Ave.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $75,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the construction and in addition thereto property lying within ½ block north and south of Mussey St. between Crocker Ave. and Merriam Ave.

We think it well to point out to the City Council and the property owners that the improvement of these streets was proposed at a hearing some years ago. At that time the proposal was to widen the curb to curb widths from the present 30' to 36'. There was considerable opposition to the project because of the cost of curb and gutter removal and replacement and the necessity of removing a large number of trees. It is our recommendation that two alternatives to the originally proposed widening be suggested to the property owners; either that the avenues be made one-way avenues with parking on both sides or that parking be allowed on only one side of the avenue.

G. Heinze Addition—Riverdale Drive

The proposed construction consists of constructing a hot-mixed bituminous surface, concrete curb and gutter on Riverdale Drive from Pennington Ave. west and south to the south end of said Riverdale Drive including the construction of a storm sewer from the south end of Riverdale Drive south to the existing drainage ditch.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $15,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the construction.

H. Greendale Manor Trailer Court

The proposed construction is the constructing of a hot-mixed bituminous surface on Tonder Street and Parnham Street from Kendall Ave. west to the west end of said streets.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $10,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting said construction.

I. South Tindolph

The proposed construction is the constructing of a hot-mixed bituminous surface on South Tindolph from Greenwood St. south to County Road No. 62.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $9,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting said construction.

J. South Crocker

The proposed construction consists of the construction of concrete curb and gutter, hot-mixed bituminous surfacing on Crocker Ave. South from Greenwood Street to 10th St. South; and the construction of a storm sewer along Greenwood Street from Crocker Ave. east to Alice Drive.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $18,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting the street construction and in addition thereto Lots 29 through 30 of Block 2 of Southern Addition.

K. Dale Street

The proposed construction consists of the construction of concrete curb and gutter and hot-mixed bituminous surfacing and installation of water and sewer service lines from the mains to behind the curbs on Dale Street from Edgewood Drive to Trunk Highway No. 59.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $9,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting said construction.

L. Off-Sale Store Lot and Frontage Road.

The proposed construction consists of excavating unsuitable soils, backfilling with gravel subbase and base material and constructing a hot-mixed bituminous surface on a parking lot at the Municipal Off-Sale Liquor Store and on a frontage road paralleling Trunk Highway No. 59 from Dale Street north a distance of approximately 250'.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $9,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is all property abutting said construction.

II. Water and Sewer Extensions

A. Nelson-Hess Addition.

The proposed construction is the extension of the sanitary sewer on 13th Street from Arnold Ave. west to Greenhill Drive; thence south on Greenhill Drive to serve Lot 9 of Block 2 of said Addition. The recommended extension would be with an 8" sewer.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $20,000. The benefited property would be all property abutting the proposed construction. It should be pointed out that the construction would abut the north line of St. Bernard's cemetery. A determination will have to be made as to whether or not there is a benefit to this property. Also, the property abutting the north side of 13th St. is out of the City limits.

B. Sanitary Sewer west of Oakland Park Road.

The proposed construction would be the construction of an 8" sanitary sewer along the west line of Lots 3 through 9 inclusive of Block 2, Oakland Park 2nd Addition from Oakmount Drive south a distance of 800'.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $11,000. The property benefited by the construction would be all property abutting the proposed construction.

C. Water and Sewer Extension - Noper's 2nd Addition.

The proposed construction is the extension of a 12" sewer along the south line of Blocks 2 and 3 of Noper's 2nd Addition from the end of the existing sewer northwesterly to the southwest corner of Lot 10 of said Block 20; the extension of an 8" sanitary sewer north along the west line of said Lot 10 to the northwest corner thereof; thence East along the north line of said Lot 10 a distance of 250'; and extension of an 8" water main along the south line of said Block 3 from the end of the present main to Ruby Ave.; thence northeasterly along Ruby Ave. to the north line of Lot 10 of said Block 2; thence west along the north line of said Lot 10 a distance of 300'.

The estimated cost of the proposed sanitary sewer extension is $22,000. The estimated cost of the proposed water main extension is $14,000. The benefited property is all property abutting the proposed construction.

D. Park and Nelson's Addition.

The proposed construction consists of extending the City's water mains and sanitary sewer system including the construction of a sewage lift station to serve the following described. Lot 1 of Block 6 and Lots 1 through 5 inclusive of Block 7 of Park Addition; All of Narverud's 1st Addition; all of Peterson's 1st Addition; Lots 1 through 9 inclusive of Block 6, Lots 4, 5, 6 and 7 of Block 7, Nelson's 1st Addition; all the unplatted portions of Gov't. Lots 9, 10, 11 and 12, Section 35, T.154N., R.43W.

The estimated cost of the proposed sanitary sewer lift station and extensions is $145,000. The estimated cost of the proposed water main extension is $30,000. The property benefited by the proposed construction is the same as that listed above.

C. Water Main Extension - Barzen Ave. South.

The proposed construction would be the construction of a 16" water main along Barzen Ave. South from 1st St. south a distance of approximately 1200'.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $22,000. The benefited property would be all property abutting the proposed construction.

The total estimated cost of the proposed improvement is $539,500.

The area proposed to be assessed is the property benefiting from such improvements as hereinbefore described. Such persons as desired to be heard with reference to the proposed improvements will be heard at this meeting.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

March 20, 1972
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS
PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA
March 7, 1972

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of County Commissioners met in the Commissioners' Room in the Court-house in Thief River Falls at 10:00 a.m., March 7, 1972.

Members present: Hanson, Olson, Anderson, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

The minutes of the meeting of February 8th were read and approved as read.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Stenberg that the sum of $592.35 be appropriated to the Agassiz Health Planning Council to assist in their Health work. Motion carried.

Bob Farmes appeared relative to a proposed development of a wild life area in the West end of the County in Bray and Polk Centre Townships which has been referred to as the Goose Lake Project. The State Department of Game and Fish has agreed not to enter into a project without the approval of the County Commissioners and at this time has an option on land owned by Gregory Weiland and would like to acquire the land to start the project. A part of the land to be acquired would be traded or sold back to individuals to use as farm land because it is more adapted to farming than to wild life production and would retire land need for a tax base. The commissioners did not approve the proposal at this time.

At 2:00 p.m. a delegation appeared relative to a possible extension of C.R. 62 West as it extends from T.H. 59 on the south edge of the City to connect with the Air port road just south of the City adjacent to the newly developed industrial site. A resolution was received from the City Council urging the extension be made. The matter was taken under advisement and the Board instructed the County Engineer to develop an estimate of the cost of the project.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Tasa that the County Engineer and Auditor be instructed and authorized to advertise for bids for SAP 57-617-01 Grade and gravel base on SA 17 for a distance of 4 miles from S.A. 3 south to the County line in River Falls Township and SAP 57-623-02 Grade and gravel 4 miles of SA 23 from TH No. 1 south to SA 6 in Kratka Township with bids to be called and opened at 11:00 a.m., April 11, 1972. Motion carried.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Hanson that the County Engineer and Auditor call for bids for the seasons supply of Diesel fuel, gas, oil and bridge materials with bids to be called and opened at 11:00 a.m., April 11, 1972. Motion carried.

Moved by Anderson seconded by Hanson that bids be called for furnishing and installing a concrete culvert at the intersection of Co. Ditch 16 and CAR 55 in River Falls Township with bids to be opened at 11:00 a.m., April 11, 1972. Motion carried.

Moved by Anderson seconded by Stenberg that the County Engineer and Auditor be authorized and instructed to call for bids for County wide gravelling for 1972. Motion carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Anderson that Contract for furnishing a Motor Grader be accepted as complete and payment be made in the amount of $27,956.00 as per contract. Motion carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the following resolution be adopted:

RESOLVED, by the Pennington County Board of Commissioners, that Joseph Seidel, County Engineer, be and he is hereby authorized to, in addition to the Statutory limitations, restrict the load limits on Pennington County roads during the spring breakup to no less than 2 tons per axle, according to conditions of each road and to 'POST' the road limits accordingly where they exceed the Statutory limits. Motion carried.

Moved by Anderson seconded by Stenberg that effective the 1st of April, 1972 mileage will be paid for County business at the rate of 10 cents a mile. Motion carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the following scale of pay be adopted for the extra labor in the Highway Department for 1972.

Man and mower, $4.50 per hr.; Mower operator, $2.50; Truck driver, $2.75; Sprayer operator, $2.75; Laborers, $1.60 minimum. Motion carried.

Abatements were approved for Halvor Ofstelle on property in Rustad Addition for the 1970 and 1971 values with adjustment to be from $6,600 to $5,340 adjusted Market; for Almond Sollom for error in including value added in 1971 in the 1971 assessment in the amount of $78.00;

for Edwin Olson for error in including value of addition in 1971 in the 1971 assessment in the amount of $731.00; and for Adolph Peterson for reduction of value of Mobile Home that was licensed.

Homestead was approved for Howard Sjulestad in Star Township; Dave Stroh in River Falls Township; Francis Wold in Sanders Township; Bernard Rustan and Ole Ueland in North Township.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Anderson that the Board meet at 1:30 p.m., March 24, 1972 to discuss reapportionment. Motion carried.

Says Minnesotans Have Last Chance At Elm Disease

Minnesotans may still have a last chance to prune dead tree limbs to prevent the spread of Dutch elm disease this season, advises agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald.

However, he relays a special caution about pruning from the plant industry division of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Pruning should be done before the trees begin their normal spring sap pumping cycle that ends the hibernation period and bursts buds into leaf. Pruning too late can cause excessive loss of tree sap and possibly damage some trees.

Commissioner Wefald emphasized that a final examination and removal of dead limbs from elm trees is important because Dutch elm disease could be spread from one diseased tree to the healthy elm trees in the neighborhood or in the entire community during the spring months.

Milton Marinos, in charge of the state agency's Dutch elm disease control laboratory, acknowledges that some citizens may have difficulty determining dead limbs from healthy ones at this time when all broad leaf trees are still in winter condition.

He offers this tip: Closely inspect the buds. If they are soft and swelling and appear pink or pale green when cut with a finger nail, the limb is still healthy. But if the buds are hard, dry and easily flaked away by a finger-nail and the branch is dry and brittle it is dead and should be pruned off.

All dead branches removed, particularly from elm trees, should be immediately destroyed as the European bark beetles that transmit the Dutch elm disease may be in hibernation in the dead limbs and will emerge in the spring to feed on healthy young tree growth and spread the Dutch elm disease.

Pruning for tree shaping also is near an end in Minnesota and should be avoided for six weeks to two months after the buds begin opening and bursting into leaf, Marinos added.

Interstate In Minnesota Tops Nation In Safety

Fatality rate on Minnesota's interestate freeways for the year 1970 was the lowest in the country, according to a report issued by the federal highway administration.

Minnesota's rate was 1.11 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles, followed by Rhode Island with a rate of 1.29.

In a breakdown of rural and urban travel, the state was lowest in rural travel with a rate of 1.05 and ninth in urban travel with a rate of 1.13. Six of the states with lower urban rates have less than 50 miles on Interstate highways in urban areas.

The report also points up the heavy travel on the urban segments of the state's interstate system, which consists of 147 miles compared with 422 rural miles. During 1970, 764 million vehicle miles were driven over the rural segments, and 1,676 million vehicle miles were clocked on the urban freeways.

Though the fatality rates for the urban and rural segments are quite close, there is a substantial difference in the non-fatal injury rates. There were 20.32 injuries on the rural segments compared with 77.21 on the urban segments per 100 million vehicle miles.

The division engineer of the federal highway administration congratulated Minnesota on its low interstate fatality rate, crediting the state's design and built-in safety features.

TV And Computer Used To Improve Heart Diagnosis

Dr. Erik Ritman and his colleagues in the research and cardiac catheterization labs at the Mayo clinic are testing the ability of a television camera and a computer to speed up and improve techniques for diagnosis of certain types of heart disease.

A combined x-ray, television, electronic computer system recently developed at the Mayo clinic measures the shape and volume of the left ventricle of the heart (pumping chamber) 60 times each second, providing instantaneous access to information on the normal or abnormal size and volume of the heart.

The necessity for such information becomes relevant when you realize that in certain heart conditions such as congenital defects, blood flow is abnormal. By utilizing this technique, it will be possible to measure the magnitude and to pin-point the exact location of the trouble spot and proceed with treatment.

Specific purpose of the study is to acquire more information regarding the role of the moment-to-moment changes in volume and shape of the pumping chamber of the heart and the speed and amount of bood that is pumped from the heart during each heart beat. (As the pump chamber of the heart, the left ventricle, must generate enough pressure to force the blood through the entire body.) A liquid which stops x-ray but does not harm the patient is introduced into the chamber via catheterization in order to closely observe the blood flow on an x-ray fluoroscope. Pictures of the fluoroscopic x-ray images are then taken 60 times each second.

In operation, the technique uses a TV camera to record these x-ray motion pictures of the heart beat. These pictures are recorded on video tape for immediate play back. The technique of instant stop action and slow motion replay used in television broadcasting of sporting events is used to analyze the video tape recordings of the heart beat. The information is also relayed to a computer which provides a statistical print-out. Utilizing the electronic equipment, it is possible to make the diagnostic information much more accessible for the physician.

Dr. Ritman, research fellow of the Minnesota Heart association, and native of Australia, pointed out, "It has been possible previously to obtain the necessary information for adequate diagnosis through other techniques. However, the revolutionary advantage of this technique is the time saved in obtaining it. Conventional methods would take weeks to tabulate the same information which the television and computer can provide within a matter of minutes. The obvious application is improved health care. The physician will be able to review the results of the x-ray directly after the catheterization procedure by reading the statistical print-out and by viewing the video recording."

Dr. Ritman indicated the technique utilized at Mayo could measure the blood flow in a saphenous vein by-pass to the heart and determine whether it was functioning properly. Another application would be in its ability to identify an incompetent heart valve by measuring volume of the blood flow and size of the left ventricle.

Its future application could lead to improved and faster diagnosis leading to better health care for the individual.

The research project of Dr. Ritman's is one of some 50 being funded in Minnesota by the American Heart association and the Minnesota Heart association.

New Regulations In Effect For Boats This Year

Minnesota boaters will be subject to new state laws and regulations when they put their watercraft in lakes and streams this season, the Department of Natural Resources reminded today.

Several changes were made in the state laws by the 1971 legislature and new regulations have been enacted by the department.

This year, for the first time canoes and sailboats must be licensed.

Fees are the same as for other boats; $5 for those 19 feet or less and $10 for those over 19 feet in length.

Canoes, sailboats and kayaks receive a distinctive decal for their watercraft containing the license number and do not have to affix the three inch numbers required on other boats unless they attach a motor to their vessel.

Canoes, sailboats and kayaks used by non-profit organizations to teach watercraft safety may be licensed for $2.

For the first time in Minnesota restrictions were set on the operation of powerboats by youngsters. Now, no person under the age of 13 may operate a watercraft with a motor of more than 24 h.p. unless there is at least one other person in the boat age 15 or older.

Also, this year for the first time, the law requires a Coast Guard approved life saving device for each person aboard a watercraft.

A boat owner is now liable for injury or damage resulting from negligent operation by himself, his immediate family or others permitted to use the watercraft.

All watercraft operated after dark must now be equipped with lights. Requirements vary with type of boat but are spelled out in the law and regulations. These are expected to be available in booklet form from the Department about April 15.

Another new provision in the law requires all mower powered watercraft carrying fuel in enclosed compartments to be equipped with Coast Guard approved fire extinguishers. Such boats are also required to be properly ventilated in the bilges and the engine and fuel tank compartments.

Machinery is also set up in the new law for counties and governmental subdivisions to establish special regulations for watercraft on lakes within their boundaries with the approval of the Commissioner of Natural Resources following the holding of a public hearing.

The Department's license center has also urged boat owners to license their watercraft as soon as possible. A flood of late license applications during the early spring may mean some boat owners will not have their watercraft licensed when they want to use them.

Ways Suggested To Increase Paper Recycling

In the controversy regarding the recycling of paper one fact stands out clearly: The forests of the country will not be able to supply all the raw material for paper products much longer.

If more paper is to be recycled, one step that will need to be taken is to educate and impress upon the consumers that all the brightness, color and style found in paper today which compounds recycling problems are really not needed, according to University of Minnesota Forest Products Specialist, Lewis Hendricks.

Consumers of products ranging from graduation announcements to calendars, dictionaries and toys packaged in bright red boxes would have to accept a product with somewhat duller color quality and with inconsistent color from product to product.

However, problems with inconsistent color could probably be overcome with existing technology and with increased use of recycled paper, Hendricks stated.

Another way to insure greater recycling of waste paper would be to change government pruchasing policies to include more purchases of recycled paper products, Hendricks said.

The federal government has required a certain amount of recycled material in its purchased paper products for some time, but in some cases the effort was only token. Initial requirements of recycled material were often about what paper plants recycled anyway in the form of paper trimmings or paper with flaws. This recycled paper, called "broke," had none of the sorting or processing disadvantages associated with the "post consumer waste paper," Hendricks said.

A third step which might encourage more recycling of paper would be to improve the total economics of recycling and encourage the separation of wastpaper by types and grades, Hendricks stated.

Two other steps would be to develop new products that utilize recycled paper and to consider that market possibilities of exporting waste papers to countries that are wood-poor, he said.

If the controversy of paper recycling develops into a crisis in the near future, probably no one person or group of persons is to blame, Hendricks said.

Blame might be leveled at companies, but "they aren't necessarily the big bad wolf," Hendricks said. "Many have invested considerable sums in equipment to facilitate paper recycling and also in pollution control equipment."

Maybe the average U. S. citizen who uses over a quarter ton of paper and paper products per year could be blamed. An average of 87 pounds of newsprint, 48 pounds of book paper, 115 pounds of container board, 64 pounds of bending board and 261 pounds of other paper products was used by each person in the country in 1969.

Or maybe the society which has the most advanced technology in the world and yet recycled a lower percentage of paper than most other countries is to blame. At the present time the U. S. is the world's number one paper recycler in volume, but one of the world's lowest by percentage with 20 per cent of the produced paper products recycled.

More Yellow In State Highway Marking System

You'll be seeing much more yellow on Minnesota highways this year and liking it more. The state highway department is converting to a new system of pavement markings and the primary purpose is safety.

The pattern of roadway markings will be nationwide as will the new highway signs using symbols and pictures instead of words. The sign changes will be gradual but repainting of pavement markings on most of Minnesota's 12,200-mile trunk highway system may be accomplished by next fall.

The first change motorists will notice is the dashed yellow lines separating traffic (the center lines) on two-way, two-lane roads instead of white dashed lines.

Under the new system, some pavement markings will keep their familiar meanings. For example, it still will be unlawful to pass when a solid yellow line is in your lane.

Two solid yellow lines will mean that passing is prohibited from both directions. Under the present system, no passing from both directions is indicated by two solid yellow lines with a white dashed line in between.

State highway traffic engineer R. H. Sullivan, in explanation of the new system, said that the basic concept is simple. "Yellow is the standard color for a general warning. Yellow lines will separate lanes of traffic moving in opposite directions. Dashed white lines will divide lanes of traffic flowing in the same direction, as on multi-lane highways." The white dashed line on multi-lane routes has been a practice for many years.

Other uses of yellow will include occasional left edgelines on divided roadways where traffic cannot pull entirely off the roadway, and for marking of obstructions and islands which must be passed on the right.

In contrast, white is specified for use on island, median, lane and edgeline markings associated with one-way roadways as well as for standard edgeline markings on two-way roads.

The TIMES

A TREASURY of memories is contained in Mrs. Kathleen Reiley's scrapbook, compiled when Mrs. Reiley flew as a stewardess for Northwest Airlines in 1939 and 1940. Looking at the scrapbook are Elaine Eisenhardt, Marsha Roberson, Mrs. Reiley, David Reuter and Mrs. Reiley's daughter, Maureen, who is a recent graduate of Northwest Airlines cabin attendant training class, and Northwest Airlines' first second generation stewardess. —Northwest Orient Airlines Photo

2nd Generation Stewardess' Mother Was From T. R. Falls

Among all of the "firsts" which Northwest Airlines has recorded over its 46 year history, one of the most attractive "firsts" occurred recently on February 1 with the graduation of 1972's initial stewardess training class.

For the first time since the airline was founded, the daughter of a former Northwest stewardess is now, herself, a Northwest stewardess.

The story began on Jan. 3, 1939, a cold wintery day in the Twin Cities, when Kathleen Monsebroten, a young registered nurse from Thief River Falls, reported to the new stewardess training class at Northwest Airlines' training activity in the St. Paul Hotel.

A few weeks later, at a quiet graduation dinner, Kathleen was given her wings by "Rosie" Stein, who was in charge of cabin service, and within a matter of hours, she was on her first trip aboard one of Northwest's shiny new 21-passenger DC-3's.

On Jan. 3, 1972, 33 years later to the day, the daughter of Kathleen Monsebroten Reiley began her first day of stewardess training at Northwest Airlines' Twin Cities stewardess training facility. And now, Maureen "Mollie" Reiley has graduated and wears the wings of a Northwest stewardess.

Mollie doesn't feel that her mother influenced her decision to become a stewardess, but when Mrs. Reiley was told, she couldn't have been happier.

Following graduation from high school, Mollie began nurses's training at the University of Iowa, but after a year, decided that nursing wasn't for her. She then attended marketing classes at the university, did some modeling, and after traveling briefly, decided on becoming a stewardess.

"When I told Mom that I had been accepted by Northwest she was delighted, and I think one of the happiest days of her life was the day I graduated. And my Dad (Dr. Richard Reiley) is still talking about it," Mollie said.

Mrs. Reiley flew for Northwest for only a year and gave up her career to marry Dr. Reiley, but her year with the airline was an exiting period for her. When she entered training, she began a scrapbook which she still has and looks at often. It contains memorabilia from past flights, engagement announcements of fellow stewardesses, and finally, the news clipping announcing her own engagement.

"It was a tremendously exiting period for me and I wouldn't trade those experiences for anything," Mrs. Reiley said. "But times have certainly changed."

Mrs. Reiley recalled that stewardesses had to be registered nurses, and they occasionally had to put their medical skills to work. "And hot meals were unheard of then," she said. "Our meal service consisted of a box lunch with perhaps coffee or milk."

When Mrs. Reiley flew for Northwest, the stewardesses flying for the airline totaled approximately 150. Northwest's fleet consisted of seven new DC-3's and seven Lockheed 10A "Electras" which were being retired from service.

"Northwest was then more like a family than a corporation," Mrs. Reiley recalled. "Everybody knew everybody else."

Today, Mollie Reiley is just one of 1,800 cabin attendants, a category which includes stewardesses, pursers and male flight attendants. And today's Northwest now operates a $1 billion fleet of pure jet aircraft, including 15 747's. Beginning in November, the first of Northwest's 14 long-range DC-10's will be delivered.

The farthest east that Northwest flew in 1939 was Chicago and Milwaukee, and Kathleen felt lucky if she was able to fly to Seattle, Northwest's westernmost city in 1939.

For Mollie, her flights may take her to Florida, New York, Alaska, Hawaii or even Tokyo; and her fellow cabin attendants in the Orient are flying regularly to Manila, Seoul, Okinawa Hong Kong, Osaka and Taiwan. And today there's new excitement on the airline for Northwest may be able to resume service on its suspended route into mainland China some time in the near future.

Has the glamor worn off now that Mollie has a month's flying experience behind her? Not a bit, but she's lost the natural nervousness that comes when a girl takes her first few flights.

"I know where the emergency gear is located and how to operate the equipment on board the aircraft," Mollie said, "so now there's a somewhat different challenge. Now that I'm comfortable and confident aboard the aircraft, it's my job to make sure that our passengers all feel the same way. In that regard, the job is no different that my mother's was 33 years ago."

Motor Vehicle Inspection To Start April 1st

April 1 will be the starting date for a seven-month spot inspection program during which 115,000 to 130,000 Minnesota vehicles will be inspected.

The annual program is conducted in random areas throughout the state by the highway patrol, assisted by highway maintenance men and vocational school students.

Majority of the vehicles inspected during the period will be passenger cars, station wagons and light trucks, since heavier equipment is inspected on a year round basis as they pass through the state's weigh stations. There is no charge for the inspection of any vehicle.

In addition to the vehicles inspected on a random basis, inspection teams will check all state units driven by public safety and highway department personnel, federal-owned vehicles operated by the U. S. post office, and highway patrol units.

Inspection procedures and correction will remain the same as in previous years. For the vehicle that passes the inspection, a sticker will be placed in the lower left corner of the windshield. If the car has minor defects, the owner will be given a notice of equipment repair on which the defects are listed. He must then have the vehicle repaired and return to the highway patrol for re-examination. If everything checks out, he will be issued a sticker. If serious safety defects are found, a citation will be issued.

Last year 113,000 vehicles were inspected, approximately half of which had some defect.

Though the highway patrol has been conducting inspection of school buses in previous years, it is now mandatory by law that each bus be inspected annually. A distinctive inspection sticker will be issued for school buses.

State Taxpayers Receive Refunds Of $70 Million

More than $70 million has been reunded to Minnesota taxpayers as of March 4, according to George Lethert, district director of Internal Revenue.

Federal tax refund averages amount to approximately $200 per return, compared with $265 for 1971. The reduction in the average refund was due to the underwithholding under the tax tables in effect last year, Mr. Lethert indicated. The amount refunded is $3,311,000 ahead of the corresponding total for the previous year.

Current reports show that more that 356,000 returns have been processed in the IRS Service Center at Ogden, Utah. This indicates processing is more than 20,000 returns ahead of last year. Despite changing from the Kansas City Service Center to Ogden this year, IRS records reval that taxpayer service is improving at all of its ten Centers.

Citizens who have not filed their returns yet this year were reminded by Mr. Lethert that they can request the IRS to compute their tax. Eligible for this service are individuals with incomes of $20,000 or less, who elect the standard deduction. Retired persons entitled to claim that retirement income credit can also request tax computation help. After the tax is computed, a refund will be issued, or a bill sent to those who owe additional tax.

U.S. Coast Guard Reserve Seeks To Swell Ranks

U. S. Coast Guard reserve is stepping up its effort to enlist prior service personnel into its ranks.

Prior Navy and Coast Guardsmen who have been honorably discharged can join with the same rate they held on active duty, and there's a plus. Those who have increased their service-related skills in civilian life have a possibility of enlisting at the next higher pay grade.

Men who did not serve in the Navy or Coast Guard need not be discouraged. Honorably discharged members of the other branches are also eligible. Those with skills related to Coast Guard rates generally retain their former pay grade and may also be considered for a higher pay grade.

More and more experienced reservists are serving their drill time with regular Coast Guard units and stations in a new augmentation program. Working side-by-side with regulars in pollution control, search and rescue, port safety, reservists contribute their expertise in these and the many other traditional Coast Guard missions, making drill periods meaningful and rewarding.

Military pay was increased recently and this included reserve pay. For example: an E-6 who has completed his obligated service (four years active and two inactive) earns $67.24 for a weekend drill, in addition to accruing points towards retirement.

Details can be obtained by contacting any Coast Guard reserve training unit listed under U.S. government (Department of Transportation) in the phone book, or a Coast Guard recruiter.

Warrant Officer Flight Training Now Available

United States army has reopened it's warrant officer flight training program, according to army field representative Sergeant Francis Trim.

"Young men with an urge to fly are once again needed to man the army's rotary aircraft," he said.

To qualify for the WOTF program, a young man must be between the ages of 18 and 27. He must possess a high school diploma, and two or more years of college is desirable, but not mandatory.

The first step toward becoming a warrant flight officer is eight weeks of basic combat training at Ft. Polk, La. Preflight training lasts four week while primary flight training runs 16 weeks. Final flight training consists of a 16-week program at Ft. Rucker, Ala. The entire flight training period lasts 36 weeks. After completion of the training, a flight officer has a three-year committment.

Besides his standard salary, the warrant officer also receives $100 a month flight pay. The promotion scale for warrant officers runs from W1 to W4.

The army's use of aircraft ranges from battlefield pick-up to transportation service between army posts to traffic supervision to speeding medical aid in times of disaster. "And," said the sergeant, "army choppers were present at the Woodstock music festival distributing food, water and medical supplies to thousands of young Americans there."

For more information about the WOFT program, Sergeant Trim or Sergeant Long can be contacted at the office at 209 East 3rd st., Thief River Falls, or by phone at 681-1154.

UNIQUE commemorative stamps will be issued on April 5 which may hold interest for collector and non-collector alike. The 2-cent Cape Hatteras commemorative stamps are part of a series marking the 100th anniversary of national parks. Unusual feature of the issue is that four 2-cent stamps combine to complete a design, yet each stamp is a complete design in itself. Used together, the four stamps will pay the first class surface rate. Collectors may address first day cancellation requests to "Cape Hatteras Stamps, Postmaster, Hatteras, North Carolina 27943," with an addressed envelope and remittance of eight cents each. The request must be postmarked no later than April 5.

Prompt Repairs Can Prolong Use Of Most Tires

When a person's tooth develops a small cavity it isn't necessary to pull the tooth—a minor repair job will allow munching to go on a long while. The same principle holds true for the tires on a car.

The tire industry safety council advises motorists who have suffered a disabled or punctured tire that by having the tire properly repaired they can still receive the use and mileage the tire was designed to give.

"Motorists should realize that if a tire loses all or most of its air pressure, particularly when driving, it must be removed from the wheel as soon as possible for complete internal inspection by a competent service station," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the council. "Surveys show that two out of three tires run even short distances when flat are damaged beyond repair."

Best advice for a motorist with a disabled tire is to replace the tire with a reliable spare, and "get thee to a service station."

Motorists and service stations are warned against using temporary repairs made from the outside of the tire, such as externally-applied plugs, aerosol sealants, etc., except in an emergency. In addition, never use a tube in a tubeless tire as a substitute for a permant repair, Ormsby said.

Industry-approved repair methods include a combination of plug and patch, chemical and hot vulcanized patches and head-type plugs—all applied from inside the tire.

"Never try to repair tires with tread puncturers larger than one-quarter inch or any sidewall puncture," says Ormsby, "and no tire worn to one-sixteeth inch or less of tread groove depth should be repaired and placed back on the car."

Temporary repairs are considered as such because most of them leak air either through the repair or into the ply cords, causing ply separation which eventually results in further tire disablement which no longer can be repaired. Since they are good for only short distances, at reduced speeds, the tires should be removed from the wheel at the first opportunity and a permanent inside repair made.

MINI JUMPSUITS are new in the clothing line of Arctic Enterprises for 1973 and are considered part of the high fashion outfits to be marketed next year. The jumpsuits are in purple or black with purple, green and black straps, and are worn with black body stockings also marketed by Arctic. Modeling the outfits at the fashion show for distributors Monday were, left to right, Jan Messersmith, Judy Henderson, Joyce Elseth and Norma Sanfelipo.

Arctic Distributors View Clothing Line

Arctic Enterprises took the wraps off its 1973 clothing line at a sales meeting for distributors Monday and Tuesday in the Arctic display building in Thief River Falls. In attendance were about 115 distributors and others from Vermont, Nevada, Washington, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, New York, Idaho, Tennessee, Colorado, Michigan and Canadian provinces of Alberta, Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia.

"73 is Keen With a Little Bit Of Green" was the theme for the meeting as new color scheme for the coming year was displayed. Edgar Hetteen, general manager of the warranty, parts, accessories and service division of Arctic, opened the meeting with a welcome to distributors.

James Nepper, manager of parts and accessories sales, introduced the accessories exhibitors and other company personnel. Others participating from the division management were Dave Swenson, operations manager for the parts department; Larry White, manager of the service and warranty department; and Gene Givens, general manager of the garment division.

Parts and accessories—including the clothing line and other items not sold as standard equipment on Arctic Cat snowmobiles—approximated $20 million in sales for 1972. Such accessories include speedometers, tachometers, electric start kits, boots, gloves and mittens, helmets, goggles, snowmobile covers, trailers, oil products, decorative patches and other items sold by Arctic through its distribution system.

Arctic is one of only two snowmobile manufacturers which also has manufacturing facilities for its own clothing line, according to Gene Givens,

FEMININE fashion took the spotlight Monday when the Arctic Enterprises clothing line was unveiled for distributors at a sales meeting in Thief River Falls. Judy Henderson models the white fur helmet cap which is only one of a number of new headwear styles created for 1973.

Plummer's Co-operative creamery association will hold its annual meeting on Friday at 1:30 in the Plummer city hall. Dividends of $8,077.30 will be distributed. This is 30 per cent of the 1971 net profit. In addition, about $7,000, representing half of the equities from 1961, will be returned to members.

Blood Bank And 'Gift Of Life' Sign-Up Is Held

Northern Blood Bank, Inc., enrolled 82 new members and approximately 50 people registered in the "Gift of Life" program Thursday at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Blood bank enrollment was sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club and the "Gift of Life" program was sponsored by the American Legion auxiliary.

Mrs. Silas Hanson, general chairman for the blood bank campaign, said that a number of the members enrolled in the blood bank were from "out of town". She said the number enrolled was good, since a membership enrollment is held each year on a continuing basis.

Volunteer workers contributing 21 hours of combined time to the project were Inga Shetler, Gloria Bugge, Verna Kaisler, Norma Hanson, Joanne Wedul, Eileen Horejsh, Clarice Collins, Lydia Dahlen, Myrt Wilson, Shirley Johnson and Marge Hanson. Technicians from the blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital services were on hand to take blood samples.

Mrs. Vernon Quam, chairman of the "Gift of Life" program for the American Legion auxiliary, noted that the program is a granting of permission to have organs used for transplant after the death of the donor. It is sponsored in cooperation with the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest.

Mrs. Quam noted that one family consisting of parents and three sons all registered to donate their entire bodies after death as needed for research and study.

Assisting in the registration during the day and evening were Ebba Sagmoen, Dee Noreen, Sarah Mayer-Oakes, Agnes Baken, Joanne Reeve, Cyrilla Rodekuhr, Myrtle Wilson and Adeline Quam.

Donor cards for the "Gift of Life" program will remain available at the Chamber of Commerce office and can be obtained on request. The program is voluntary and the donor cards are carried by the donor himself or herself. If the donor should change his or her mind, all that is necessary is to destroy the card.

Resolving to construct a 500,000 gallon elevated water tank on the west side of Thief River Falls in 1973, the city council initiated steps to greatly improve the city's water system and resulting fire protection on the west side. The action was taken at a meeting Tuesday night.

In making the resolution, reference was made by the council to a letter received by Ed Mazurek of Arctic Enterprises. The letter was from Arctic's insurance company, Protection Mutual. A copy had been furnished to the council to explain Arctic's requirements.

The council resolved to comply with the suggestions contained in the paragraphs, quoted from a copy of the letter provided to the Times by Mazurek.

"In order to adequately protect your plant on Brooke avenue, the city of Thief River Falls should provide a two source water supply capable of delivering 1,500 gallons per minute at 20 pounds per square inch to your plant site. This can be accomplished by installing the proposed 16-inch main on First street from State street westerly to Barzen avenue; then southerly to Greenwood; then easterly to Brooks avenue. Connected to this line should be a 500,000 gallon elevated water tank on First street. A second 10-inch city connection is necessary from Barzen avenue to the west side of your plant yard main.

Legion Auxiliary Chorus Disbands Saturday Night

American Legion auxiliary chorus was officially dissolved following its appearance at the birthday party held Saturday by Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of Thief River Falls in recognition of the 53rd birthday of the American Legion.

The chorus was organized in the late 1950's under the direction of Mrs. Norman Peterson. She and Mrs. Frank Harger, the accompanist, have been with the group since then.

For competition, chorus members entered as trios, quartets and sextets. Their first appearance was at a department convention at Duluth in 1962 where a sextet entered and won first place. Since then the chorus has entered in competition at all district conventions and eight department conventions. At the last department convention in which they competed, groups from the chorus won first place in all divisions.

In 1971 the chorus sang on many occasions for the Diamond Jubilee under the name "Jubilee Singers." They have also performed in Thief River Falls and surrounding communities for PTA's, churches and other organizations.

The group will no longer perform on a regular basis because of the difficulty of getting a sufficient number of members together at one time. This has been particularly difficult as more have moved to other communities.

Speech And Hearing Clinic Is Available To The Public

W. B. Fossell, recovering from a stroke, learns to master a new word....

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"Look at Carol, Paul. . .Watch my mouth; watch now. . .Say 'pony', Paul. . .Pony. . .Good! Hey, Paul, that's great!

Five - year - old Paul Johnson was perched on a learning materials kit set on end to provide a stool. Working with him on his speech problem was Carol Klitzke, speech pathologist at the Easter Seal speech and hearing clinic located on the third floor pediatrics ward of Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls.

Using familiar materials and repetition, Miss Klitzke helped Paul to repeat words more clearly and to use them in short phrases and sentences. In the program which started in September of 1971, Paul is her youngest pupil. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Johnson, he comes to room 302 for therapy almost every day.

"Most patients require daily sessions," Miss Klitzke said, "and they vary from a few minutes to an hour in length, depending upon their needs and their attention span. We see them on either an in-patient or out-patient basis and they need have no other connection with the hospital other than our clinic."

Northwestern hospital services provides the room for the clinic and other support is provided by the Minnesota Easter Seal society. Persons receiving therapy are charged for the service, based on their ability to pay. Persons who need assistance but are unable to pay will be helped by the Easter Seal society.

W. B. Fossell, 78, also comes to the speech and hearing clinic for therapy. He suffered a stroke in January and is now receiving help in recovering his speech, learning to ask for things he

Joyce Sourdif Marries Allen Liedberg At Argyle

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at the Alma Lutheran church in Argyle by Miss Joyce Sourdif, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sourdif of Newfolden, and Allen Liedberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Liedberg of Argyle.

Rev. Clifford Kalmoe officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 250 relatives and friends. Miss Judy Moen served as organist. She also played the accompaniment for Daniel Olson, cousin of the bride, as he sang "The Lord's Prayer" while the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white lace over satin, floor-length gown, made by her mother. The grown was styled with a curved V-neckline, empire waist, and full sleeves buttoned at the wrists. Her full-length veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a white satin pillbox headpiece. She carried a colonial styled bouquet of red and white carnations with red starflowers and white satin streamers.

Miss Carol Liedberg, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Miss Sharol Curfman, a friend of the couple, was bridesmaid. They wore red satin floor-length gowns, styled identical to the bride's. Matching pillbox headpieces held short veils of red bridal illusion. Each carried a colonial bouquet of red and green carnations with red satin streamers.

Wearing a floor-length gown of green satin with a gathered bodice and full-length sleeves was the flower girl, Kris Klasen, a friend of the bride. She carried a basket of red and green carnations. The ring bearer was Donald Sourdif, brother of the bride. He wore a black suit and carried the rings on an ivory satin pillow accented with satin streamers.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Mrs. Richard Moen. She was presented with a corsage of red and white carnations backed with net.

Richard Moen, brother-in-law of the bride, attended the groom as best man. Rodney Liedberg, a brother of the groom, was groomsman. They wore black Lord Effington tuxedos with black and silver ties. The groom's boutonniere was a white carnation. Red carnation boutonnieres were presented to the best man and the ushers: John Lubitz, brother-in-law of the bride, and Bruce Elseth.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sourdif chose a blue dress styled with a V neckline and white button trim. The mother of the groom wore a navy blue dress trimmed with red and white. Their corsages consisted of large white carnations accented with green leaves.

Special guest at the wedding was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Gertie Lien, who was also presented with a corsage.

A reception in the church parlors followed. In keeping with the bride's chosen colors, red, green and white streamers decorated the dining area. White wedding bells graced the entrance and were hung over the head table, punch bowl and gift table.

The wedding cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. June Prestegaard, a friend of the bride, was cut and served by Mrs. Alvin Olson cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Ruth Liedberg, aunt of the groom. Pouring were Mrs. Millie Osby, aunt of the bride, and Miss Helen Lofthus, aunt of the groom.

Hosts and hostesses at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Johnson, cousins of the bride, and, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Haugen, great uncle and aunt of the bride. Wayne Sourdif, brother of the bride, distributed the groom's cake, made by the mother of the groom. At the punch bowl were Marlys Mattson and Daniel Olson. The gifts were opened and displayed by Mrs. John Lubitz, Mrs. Gordon Sourdif, sister and sister-in-law, respectively, of the bride, Miss Jane Liedberg, cousin of the groom. Mrs. Bruce Hanson, friend of the couple, registered the guests. Waitresses were Valerie Quam and Sherry Peterson.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a purple and white pantsuit.

The newly-weds are now at home at 1012 South Eighth Street in Moorhead, where the groom is employed by Steiger company and the bride is enrolled at the area vocational school. Both are graduates of the Marshall county Central high school in Newfolden. Photo, Neal Fox Studio, Thief River Falls.

Council Votes To Build Water Tank Next Year

can be adequately protected for at least one year with the installation of a 16 inch main on Barzen avenue from the existing 10 inch main on First street (which is connected to a 6 inch main) to your plant site. However, this will necessitate the installation of an electric driven Factory Mutual approved booster pump located on the city connection on the west side of your plant.

"We hope the First avenue improvements, including the elevated water tank installation, can be completed in 1973 in order to adequately protect values to $50,000,000 in any one fire division."

Details of the construction of the 16-inch main on First street will be discussed at a public hearing on March 27 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers. The hearing has been scheduled to cover all of the construction planned by the city for 1972.

As the council turned to other business, informal mention was made of public reaction to the action contemplated by the council in reference to the proposed motel complex. Council members agreed that no action would be taken at this time. Plans were made to compile information about the reasons behind the suggestions for licensing of the complex and present them for publication in the Times. This is expected to be done in about one week.

Distributors Of Arctic Products View New Line

manager of the garment division. Of the new clothing line introduced for 1973, all but the knitwear and boots will be produced at Arctic-owned facilities.

Givens said that the Karlstad plant now has 187 people employed in garment construction alone, manufacturing the one-piece snowmobile suits primarily. Most of the fashion and high fashion items are being produced by a staff of 107 workers at the Detroit Lakes garment plant. Machine covers are made at Moorhead.

Creator of the designs for the 1973 clothing line is Carolyn Pechelunas, clothing designer for Arctic. Internal reorganization of the company a short time ago created the parts, accessories, warranty and sales division of which the clothing line is a part. Approximately 125 to 150 people are employed by that division in Thief River Falls.

Parts and accessories department officials said that the new lines for 1973 were well received by the distributors in attendance and that orders will be received within the next two weeks.

Entrance of Arctic into the fashion line of snowmobile wear parallels a trend in demand for this type of clothing. Particular emphasis is being placed on the "after wear" or the items which are worn with the outer snowmobile suits for use in indoor entertaining or relaxing after outdoor snowmobiling. The practical one-piece or two-piece outer snowsuit is still the staple of the clothing line.

Nepper emphasized that all Arctic clothing items are created to identify with the Arctic snowmobile line. This is accomplished either through matching of colors or use of the Arctic emblem or both. At present the company has been able to market its entire clothing production capacity through its own distribution system and has not manufactured clothing for others.

Mrs. Donald L. Olson narrated the fashion show which introduced the clothing line to distributors Monday afternoon. The show followed sales presentations by members of the Arctic management team. Distributors were also served a banquet in the display building to conclude the Monday activities. The sales meeting continued on Tuesday.

A line of clothing for the Silverline boat division will be unveiled this fall for the summer of 1973.

Police Report Shows Accidents And More Thefts

Driving conditions presumably improved with weather, yet accidents increased in number and severity according to reports from the Thief River Falls police department. Accidents, thefts and break-ins dominated the reported police activities.

March 14, Elmer Nelson of route 3, Thief River Falls, reported that someone had broken into his repair shop at 7th street and Davis avenue, taking some items from a vehicle. The property was later recovered.

A two-way radio, valued at $800, was taken from a Soo Line train on March 15.

About 3:40 p.m. on the same date, while driving west on third street, Nick Chruszch of Warren collided with Ronald Timm's vehicle which was crossing third from an alley. Cruszch's vehicle received about $325 damage and Timm's vehicle would cost about $250 to repair.

Wayne A. Johnson of Bagley was driving north on Main avenue about 4:15 p.m. on March 16 when his vehicle was struck by a truck driven by Patrick McCullough of Newfolden who was pulling out of a driveway from the west and turning north on Main. Damage to Johnson's vehicle was estimated at $200. McCullough left the scene and damage to his truck is unknown.

On March 17 Duane Holland reported that his car sustained $175 in damages while it was parked in the Knight avenue parking lot. The driver causing the damage drove away without leaving his name or reporting the accident.

St. John Church To Distribute Souvenir Coins

Most people are accustomed to giving money in church but how many have received it at a service? "Our parish will give money to every family that attends worship services on Palm Sunday," announces Rev. Paul R. Biegner of St. John Lutheran church of Thief River Falls and Redeemer Lutheran church of Plummer.

Plans have been made to distribute authentic reproductions of "widow's mites" to all worshippers on Sunday. The biblical coins are stamped with a date palm tree and palm branch. They also bear the inscription "KAISAROS", indicating that the Holy Land was under Caesar's rule from Rome.

Rev. Biegner's message will be entitled "Let Go and Live." In it he will note that, "God wants us so much—that He gave His Son to redeem us, that He blesses us with all He has, that He makes us partners in sharing His love with all the world. Well, what does God want from us, anyway? Not part of our money and estate, not even all of our money and estate... God wants us!"

Worship services will be at 10:30 a.m. at St. John with nursery provided at 9 a.m. at Redeemer of Plummer.

Alice Sorenson Wins $25 Bond In Essay Contest

Alice Sorenson, senior at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls has been named a winner of a $25 U.S. savings bond in the seventh annual Thorp Loan and Thrift company scholarship program, according to Larry M. Hakanson, manager of the Thorp office in Thief River Falls. Miss Sorenson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sorenson of Grygla.

The competition for two $1,000 scholarships for use at any accredited four-year college or university in the U.S. was open to all Minnesota high school seniors.

Selection of bond winners was based on essays written on one of two topics: "Consumer Economics—Its Place in the High School Curriculum" or "The 18-Year-Old Vote—Can It Be Effective?"

Ten finalists will be slected from the bond winners in each of Thorp's office districts. A committee of educators will pick the two winners from that group on the basis of their essays, academic standing and other achievements. Announcement of the two top awards will be made in mid-April.

Writing Course To Be Offered At Minn. Tech

A technical writing course open to all majors will be offered at the University of Minnesota technical college in Crookston beginning fall quarter, according to Dr. David Larrabee, curriculum coordinator.

A three-quarter program, the class will focus on the best ways to define, explain, and describe the processes of the technologies it serves. It will stress clear, logical presentation of facts and goals; simple, direct explanations, instructions, and records of change; and basic communications tools.

"The course is the bridge between the engineer and the craftsman and is a useful skill in the fields of agriculture, industry, and business," says Clifford Strom, head of the communications department, who will teach the class.

Funds for planning the new program have been provided by a grant from the legislature and the committee for educational development. Strom explained that much of the work will be individualized, based upon the individual student's needs. Numerous audio-tutorial aids will be used, with Edwin Lundby, reading-study skills instructor, acting as coordinator.

Life Memberships Are Awarded By American Legion

Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of the American Legion held its anual party March 18 to celebrate the 53rd birthday of the American Legion. Donald M. Olson, past commander, was the master of ceremonies of the evening.

Commander Calvin Bradley presented life memberships to Ormond Johnson and A. F. Berge. Both men have contributed much to the post and community.

Mrs. Ervin Ferber, auxiliary president, announced two life memberships for auxiliary members. Mrs. George Biddick was not present and will receive her award later. The other honor went to Mrs. M. R. Leverson. She has been a member of the auxiliary since 1929 and spends much time on child welfare work.

Mrs. Levorson was unit president in 1939-40, district secretary in 1960 and district president in 1966. She believes very strongly in the American ideals and attends all naturalization exercises in Thief River Falls. She helped organize the Girl scouts in Thief River Falls in 1932 and has taught flag etiquette to many school children and adults. Mrs. Levorson is also a Gold Star mother, having lost a son in military service in World War II.

During dinner a group of students from Knox elementary school, directed by Mrs. Frank Harger, sang "I'd Like to—" and "One Tin Soldier." The words for "I'd Like To—" were written by three students in the group.

Commander Bradley and Mrs. Ferber welcomed the party guests. They announced that the post and unit have set a membership record with 780 members in the post and 512 in the auxiliary.

The Cuppett sisters, Chris and Terri, received an enthusiastic response to several musical selections which they presented.

Olger Olson, Warren, 9th district vice commander, spoke on ideals of the American Legion and its membership.

Donald M. Olson introduced the past commanders and past unit presidents who attended the party.

Mrs. Nelson Lake, 9th district auxiliary president, spoke on the topic "Builders" and emphasized working to improve and build the post, country and world.

Two Vocational Programs Given Change In Name

Changes in names of two vocational programs conducted in Thief River Falls were made at the March 13 meeting of the Minnesota board of education. The action was designed to more clearly define the names of vocational centers and area vocational - technical schools.

Under the changes made by the board, the current post-high school vocational school will be known as the "area vocational - technical institute." The program for secondary (high school) students which is now being expanded to include additional school districts in the area, will be known officially as the "Northwest Vocational center."

According to Arnt Aune, director of the area vocational - technical institute, the word "area" is not to be used in describing the vocational center program.

Artists Invited To Submit Work For Color Cards

Minnesota artists are again invited to submit color slides or photographs of their works of art, by April 3, to the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. (MISCCA).

Those selected will be reproduced in full-color Christmas cards for the 1972 season, with proceeds of the cards going to Camp Courage. Most popular theme last year was religious—with peace and brotherhood, animals, nature and ecology, Minnesota scenes and children also very popular. Participating artists had their name credits printed on the cards last year and the society was highly pleased with the total of over 142,000 cards ordered, totaling over $28,000.

This sum was turned over to Camp Courage, Minnesota's only residential camp for the physically handicapped, blind, and children with speech and hearing defects, located at Maple Lake. Here recreation and rehabilitation are combined to give the handicapped challenge to their physical and mental capacities, including overnight camping where they even pitch their own tents! Last summer over 850 handicapped were served.

For more information call Joyce Vincent (612-377-6490) or write MISCCA, 2004 Lyndale Ave. So., Minneapolis, Minn. 55405.

An evening of family entertainment is planned. Skits, musical numbers, style show, country and western music and some slight of - hand magic tricks are on the agenda.

The 40 voice choir will be singing John W. Peterson's Easter cantata "No Greater Love." There will also be numbers directed toward young people as the choir presents selections from the youth musical "Who Wants to Be Free?"

Students participating in the choir are from seven states and four Canadian provinces. The public is cordially invited to hear this group of young people. The church is located at 1425 East 3rd street in Thief River Falls.

Relocation Aids Soften Property Loss For Roads

If your property must be taken to permit the construction of a federal-aid highway project, you stand a better than average chance of coming out ahead. That is the gist of a report submitted to Congress recently by John A. Volpe, secretary of transportation.

"On the whole," he said, "people who must be relocated more often than not are displaced to a better environment and enjoy a higher standard of living as a result of the benefits provided by the federal-aid highway act of 1968 and the uniform relocation assistance act of 1970."

Volpe pointed out that in addition to payment of the fair market value for their property, persons who are forced to move may receive additional payments up to $15,000 to enable them to acquire "comparable decent, safe and sanitary" replacement housing. Monetary benefits are also available to renters who must be relocated as well as moving costs to cover such costs incurred by individuals, businesses and farm occupants.

The relocation assistance program is administered by the federal highway administration and is carried out by the various state highway departments.

The report discloses that for the period of Oct. 1, 1970, through June 30, 1971, relocations for federal-aid highway projects involved the displacement of 14,872 dewelling units having 41,431 occupants, 2,275 businesses, 273 farms and 84 nonprofit organizations.

The average moving cost payment was $258. Comparable payments for farms totaled $212,000 or an average of $777 each. Businesses were paid a total of $5,477,000 for an average payment of $2,407.

The total of all relocation assistance payments during the period was $31,418,237.

In Farm Program Sign-up 90 Per Cent Participate

Sign-up in the wheat and feed grain program for 1972 has been completed, and the results indicate that the majority of the farmers participating are going to set aside the maximum amount of acres under the feed grain program and approximately 67 per cent under the wheat program, according to Wallace Sparby, executive director of the Pennington county ASCS office.

"Final sign-up tabulations indicate 90 per cent of the eligible farms are signed up to participate this year," Sparby said. "Out of a possible 573 eligible barley farms we have 92 per cent signed up; out of a possible 349 eligible corn farms we have 94 per cent signed up; and in the wheat program we have 93 per cent of a possible 763 eligible farms."

These signup intentions compare with 88 per cent signed up to participate in 1971.

"We estimate through random sampling that 99 per cent of the farmers participating in the feed grain program are signed up for the maximum set aside of 45 per cent of their base," Sparby added. "In the wheat program we estimate 67 per cent of the farmers have signed up to set aside the additional 75 per cent of their domestic wheat allotment.

"We believe the ground conditions last fall had an influence on the additional set aside in both programs. The options available this year do give the farmer considerable freedom in his planting and crop rotations."

In conclusion Sparby said, "We feel that a record number of farmers have signed to participate, and that generally the intent of the programs can be fulfilled with this excellent participation."

Participation by Minnesota farmers in the 1972 feed grain program, on the basis of signup reports on March 9 of a February 2-March 10 enrollment period, totals 86,870 farms, it was announced by the Minnesota agricultural stabilization and conservation service office. These farms—having 6,829,022 acres or 79 per cent of the total feed grain base acreage on all eligible farms—have offered 2,351,316 acres of the base to be set aside from crop production.

Enrollment surged during the last week of signup that ended March 10. Almost 60,000 farms with 4.7 million acres of feed grain base signed up, offering to set aside 1.5 million acres from production, according to reports from county ASCS offices where enrollment took place.

For 1972, participants need to set aside from crop production 25 per cent of their corn-sorghum-barley base acreage as a condition of program participation. In 1971, the requirement was 20 per cent of the corn-sorghum base, and additional set aside for payment was not possible. This year, farmers have a number of options under which they can set aside additional base acreage and receive payment.

The 2.3 million-acre set aside listed in this report has a required set aside of 25 per cent totalling 1.7 million acres. It also includes up to 10 per cent voluntary additional set aside under two separate options ("A" and "B") for corn-sorghum base acreage and up to 20 per cent for barley to make a group total of about 500,000 acres, plus additional offers under both options (subject to acceptance this month) totalling 155,000 acres of corn-sorghum.

Minnesota wheat growers signed 33,962 farms in the 1972 wheat program. This represents 71 per cent of the eligible wheat farms.

Signed farms have allotments totalling 261,482 acres or 76 per cent of the state's total eligible domestic acreage allotment of 341,711 acres. Wheat set aside acreage on enrolled farms totals 319,607 acres.

Proposed State Meat Rules Told At University

Proposed state rules and regulations on meat products were presented recently at a University of Minnesota program on hamburger by an official from the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Proposed amendments to chapter 76 of the department of agriculture regulations were presented by Bernard J. Steffen, director, meat industries division, Minnesota department of agriculture, at the "Hamburger—Cow to Consumer" conference on the St. Paul campus.

Steffen invited written statements and suggestions regarding the proposed regulations. State agricultural officials said they expect the state attorney general's office to have a final set of rules and regulations later this month.

Under the regulations presented by Steffen, both hamburger and ground and chopped beef could have seasoning added to it.

University of Minnesota extension entomologist Phillip K. Harein asked Steffen why spices would be allowed when they may be "loaded with insects and insect parts."

Steffen said he thought that the provision on seasoning would be allowed to stand due to the fact that federal and other states' regulations allowed the inclusion of seasoning.

Edmund A. Zottola, university extension food microbiologist, said a state analysis of 361 samples in Minnesota showed that no spice or seasoning had been added.

Under the proposed regulations, the fat content of hamburger and ground, regular ground and chopped beef could not exceed 30 per cent. Beef fat could be added to hamburger, but not to ground, regular and chopped beef.

The proposed rules, for hamburger and ground, regular ground and chopped beef, state:

"Water shall not be added. It shall not contain binders, extenders, hearts, beef cheeks, tongues, tongue meat or other by-products. When beef cheek meat (trimmed beef cheeks) is used in the preparation of chopped or ground beef, the amount of such cheek meat shall be limited to 25 per cent and its presence shall be declared on the label in the ingredient statement, if any, or otherwise contiguous to the name of the product."

Under the proposed rules, hamburger would consist of chopped fresh or frozen beef or a combination of both. Ground, regular ground or chopped beef would consist of ground or chopped fresh and-or frozen beef.

The requirements for ground, regular ground and chopped beef would pertain to lean ground, lean regular ground and lean chopped beef, except the lean ones could not contain more than 22 per cent fat. Ground, regular ground and chopped beef requirements also would pertain to extra lean ground, extra lean regular ground and extra lean chopped, except the extra lean ones could not contain more than 15 per cent fat.

The proposed rules would prohibit the use of terms, such as "ground chuck" or "chopped sirloin," that indicate that ground or chopped meat comes from a prime cut or other specific portion of a carcass, when these products are displayed for sale.

The practice of enhancing the color of meat products such as hamburger and cube steak by adding the soluble spice extract paprika to the meat would not be allowed under the proposed regulations. But soluble spice extracts could be used in cured sausage and other meat food products, "provided the amount used shall be controlled so that the color of the finished product will not be significantly different from that of products prepared with the same ingredients but without the soluble spice extract."

Defending Region Eight Champion LHS Trackmen List 24 Lettermen

Lincoln high school head track coach Jim Sims began his fifth year at the Prowler helm March 13 by welcoming a contingent of 50 varsity hopefuls, including 24 lettermen back from last year's district 31 and region eight champion squad.

Back from last year's squad are two individual school record holders and a pair of state meet relay teams as well. The lettermen are headed by senior captain Mike Fitzgerald, holder of a school record 52.0 in the 440. Senior Paul Battleson also returns from his record breaking performance of 1:59.5 in the 880 last spring. The two relay teams returning intact include the sprint medley with Rob Swenson, Steve Beich, Don Reierson and Fitzgerald. The sprint medley squad set a school record time of 3:46 in the event last season. The 880 relay squad also returns with Jon Markstrom, John Wangberg, Markoe Hanson and Beich. The 880 runners set a new 1:34.1 standard last year.

The Prowlers' strength will lie in their relay squads and in the sprints where Hanson and Swenson return after placing one-two in last year's region eight meet at Bemidji with times of 10.4 and 10.5 respectively. Adding plenty of strong competition for a sprint position are Beich, Markstrom and new comer Kent Smith.

Junior hurdler John Wangberg will score points for the Prowlers this season after finishing a close second to Crookston's Gary Wagner in the 180 yard lows at the region meet. Both runners were clocked at 20.6 in the finals. Senior letterman Doug Aaseby will also run in the hurdle events.

"On paper we look real strong," said Sims, "but we won't know for sure until we're able to run against some outside competition. We're a lot like last year, with our strength in the sprints and relay teams. Our field events won't be a strong point, but we have boys coming back like Rande Smith, Dave Lee, Van Sillerud and Russ Larson and they should be improved."

"I think we'll be able to challenge the rest of the schools in the district, but we're going to have to work for it. East Grand Forks will be tough with Kurt Knoff, Rip Thompson and Gordy Hangsleben returning and Crookston will return boys like Gary Wagner and Scott Youngquist. Anyone of the three schools could win the district. I look for Fosston to be tough in district 30 and Bemidji, along with Park Rapids, should be strong in district 29."

The Prowler runners will open the 1972 season April 8 when they take part in the Shanley invitational at NDSU. A total of 14 meets are scheduled this season, including three meets to be held on the Prowler athletic field. The district 31 meet will be held May 27 at UND and the region eight competition will be staged June 2 at Bagley.

The 24 lettermen on this year's squad and their events include seniors Doug Aaseby, hurdles; Paul Battleson, 880, mile and relays; Steve Beich, dashes and relays; Greg Bulger, mile; Marty Collins, long jump; Mike Fitzgerald, 440, mile and relays; Dave Lee, weights; Steve Phelps, 880; Don Reierson, 880; Rande Smith, long jump and weights; and Rob Swenson, dashes and relays.

Junior lettermen include Gary Halvorson, pole vault; Mark Hamerlinck, 440, mile and relays; Markoe Hanson, dashes and relays; Mark Kaushagen, pole vault; Russ Larson, weights; Jon Markstrom, 440, mile and relays; Jeff Rhoden, high jump; Van Sillerud, weights; and John Wangberg, hurdles and relays.

Four sophomore lettermen return, including Jim Carlson, high jump; Kent Christensen, high jump; Curt Fitzgerald, mile and Gerald Trickle, relays.

In Sims' four-year tenure at Lincoln, the Prowlers have captured four straight district 31 crowns, climaxed by last year's region eight title.

Sims will be assisted this year by Marv Walter and Quent Jones.

Farmers only received about 67 per cent of United States department of agriculture appropriations in 1970. Out of $12.5 billion spent by the government under the heading of "agriculture" that year, only $8.3 billion directly benefited farmers by supporting farm income.

Itasca Wins National Hockey Championship

Minnesota state champion Itasca of Grand Rapids defeated Rainy River of International Falls, Minnesota's runner-up team, 8-1 Saturday night to claim the first annual national junior college hockey title over a four-team field at International Falls.

Itasca beat Canton technical college, New York's state champion, 6-5 in overtime Friday night while Rainy River washed out Illinois state champion DuPage college 14-0 to advance into the championship game—a rematch of the recent MJCAA state title game.

Led by the outstanding play of freshmen Tom Robillard and Ken Lawson, the Vikings had little trouble handling the home-town Voyageurs as Itasca opened up period leads of 3-0 and 6-1.

Robillard, a Duluth Denfeld graduate, scored the three-goal hat trick in both games for the Vikings while Lawson, a Greenway product, scored two goals and added four assists in the championship game after collecting a pair of assists in Friday's contest.

The hard skating Vikings grabbed a quick 3-0 lead over Rainy River behind two goals by Robillard and a single score by Lawson. Itasca stretched its margin to 6-1 going into the final period with goals by sophomores Ed Bogle and Gene Gustason, along with Lawson's second goal of the game. The third period scoring honors went to Robillard and Gustason.

In the tournament's first game Friday night against the New Yorkers, Itasca trailed 2-1 after the first period before the Vikings rallied behind goals by Gustason, Robillard and Bogle to take a 4-2 lead into the third period. Canton climbed to within 5-4 before getting the equalizer with just 52 seconds remaining in regulation time.

Itasca dominated the overtime session as they outshot Canton 5-1, the fifth shot coming off the stick of Robillard, giving the Vikings the narrow triumph.

Canton drubbed DuPage 14-2 in the consolation game prior to the championship contest Saturday night.

Itasca finished the 1971-72 campaign with a sparkling 20-2 record, losing only to Rainy River. The Voyageurs ended the season 18-9-1, including four losses at the hands of Itasca. Canton finished 17-4 while DuPage compiled a 16-3 season log.

Deer Conditions Vary In State

Department of Natural Resources reported today that deer wintering conditions vary considerably across the northern part of the state.

Big game specialist Steve Judd said deer "were doing well in the northwestern part of the state but that conditions deteriorate as one moves eastward."

Based on a 'winter severity index', Judd said the present winter could prove to be the second worst in the last six years for deer.

Reports from the field indicate that there has been little direct loss of deer so far. It is likely, however, that fawn production may be poor in the northcentral and northeastern portions of the state due to the weakened condition of does.

Judd said the warm weather the past few days is encouraging and will result in settling of the snow so that deer can move about with less effort.

He pointed out, however, that late season storms could still cause major problems for the animals.

"If we get a normal or early break up," he added, "the deer should come through with only the normal winter mortality."

Area Athletes Named All-State

Several northwestern Minnesota athletes were given postseason All-State honors this week in both basketball and hockey.

WCCO radio's All-State basketball team of the year honors went to Kurt Knoff of East Grand Forks, Tom Morris of Littlefork-Big Falls and Todd Fore of Convick.

The station's All-State hockey team of the year included Bemidji defenseman Gary Sargent and Crookston forward Jim Caluson.

Sargent was also given first-team All-State honors on the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Minneapolis Tribune squads while Clauson was tabbed on the Pioneer Press' second team.

HAPPINESS IS. . . scoring a goal in the tiny mite hockey tournaments as demonstrated by young Tim Bergland after he scored during yesterday's play-off action in the sports arena. Bergland's team, the Rink Rats, advanced into Saturday's championship game with a 3-1 win over the Stickhandlers.

GOALIE Brian Harger slaps his head in disgust after being scored upon during yesterday's tiny mite hockey play-off action in the city arena. Harger's Stickhandlers lost a 3-1 decision to the Rink Rats in yesterday's game to drop into consolation play against the Puck Hogs Saturday afternoon.

Thompson Claims Lone Cat First At W. Yellowstone

Dave Thompson of Thief River Falls drove his Arctic Cat machines to a first place finish in the 340 A main and a second place finish in the 300 A main events in the West Yellowstone snowmobile races last weekend.

Rich Porter, also of Thief River Falls, supplied the only other Arctic Cat placing as he finished second to Thompson in the 340 A main race.

Ski Doo machines captured five mod firsts at West Yellowstone while Polaris and Sno Jet each won two races.

Arctic Cat machines captured six of eight first place finishes in the men's stock classes while women racers driving Cats won three of four stock classes and two mod races.

The Boss Cat II ran at West Yellowstone on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, but because of the condition of the track the machine was able to attempt a record run on Saturday only when it was clocked at a WSA record 123.0 miles per hour.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

It was kind of a coincidence that Grand Rapids and International Falls met in the championship game of the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament after the same two towns, but different teams, clashed in the championship game of the Minnesota junior college state hockey tournament a week earlier.

The similarity doesn't end right there either. Although the Grand Rapids high school Indians lost a 5-1 decision ot the International Falls Broncos in the region seven championship game, the Indians gained a berth in the state classic as representatives of region three and worked their way into position for another shot at the Broncos, only to lose 3-2 in the title game.

The situations were the same, but the positions were changed at the junior college level. Itasca of Grand Rapids defeated Rainy River of International Falls 11-2 in the MJCAA title game. But Rainy River, coached by former Lincoln high school mentor George Schlieff, also gained another shot at its conqueror in the national junior college tournament last weekend at International Falls. Rainy River and Itasca both advanced into the championship game with first round wins, but as the case was on the high school level, the initial winner added another triumph as Itasca beat Rainy River 8-1 to claim the first annual national title.

The athletic rivalry between the two iron range communities carries on throughout their high school and junior college career with 10 members of the 15-man Rainy River team coming from International Falls high school and 13 members of the 19-man Itasca squad coming from either Grand Rapids or nearby Coleraine.

Crookston high school head basketball coach Herb Hasz narrowly missed an opportunity to celebrate an anniversary when his Pirate cagers lost a 59-55 contest to Littlefork-Big Falls in the region eight tournament last week.

Ten years ago Hasz led the Ada Vikings into the Minnesota state high school basketball tournamnent as a 5-11 junior forward.

The Vikings, a surprise 52-51 winner over Bemidji for the region eight title, lost a close 65-63 contest to Danube in the state meet before posting a 59-58 consolation round win over Crosby-Ironton. But Ada lost a 79-49 decision to Cloquet for the consolation crown.

Hasz preformed remarkably well in the state classic, scoring 31 points against Danube, 25 against Crosby-Ironton and three against Cloquet to earn a spot on the all-tournament team.

Incidentally, Hasz would have faced Crosby-Ironton in the first round of this year's tournament had the two teams won, but both lost region title game decisions.

Lincoln high school graduate Mike Hajostek was recently appointed as head hockey coach at Moorhead high school, following the resignation of Chuck Watson.

Hajostek was a three sport letter winner at Lincoln, participating in football, hockey and baseball. He was named co-captain of both the hockey team and the baseball squad during the 1952-53 school year.

Hajostek, who was head hockey coach at Red Lake Falls for eight years, has served as Watson's assistant the past four seasons.

The Spartan eighth graders held quarter leads of 9-4, 17-12 and 23-19 in Friday night's 32-24 win. Brian Peterson scored 11 points to take game scoring honors.

Revise Tournaments Advises Sports Fan

After reading the editorial, "Seasons Have Edned," in the Monday, March 13th issue of the Times, I would have to agree that the winter sports seasons did come to a disappointing end. It was especially disappointing for this fan, who attended almost every home Prowler hockey and basketball game and then saw both teams defeated in the early rounds of the tournaments.

Seeing the Prowler hockey team lose to a mediocre team like East Grand Forks who they had previously beaten twice during the regular season was an especially bitter disappointment. Not only was the loss itself disheartening, there was the fact that the team has played excellent hockey in posting a 15-5 season record and because they played one bad game that Friday night, their entire season went out the window.

Then came the basketball tournaments and watching the Prowlers bow to a good Crookston squad. Here, too, I thought the basketball team did not play up to their capabilities after posting a fine 15-5 season record and then having it go for naught in one night.

My question is this: What merit do the tournaments really have? They are supposed to produce a champion, the best team, supposedly. Yet, I wonder if the best team always does come out the champion. With the present tournament setup, a team that has played well all season and ends up with an excellent record receives almost nothing for it. For example, this past season, both the Prowler hockey and basketball teams came out with 15-5 records. What did they get for playing so well during the season?

The hockey team along with Bemidji was automatically seeded into the Region 8 tournament. So what? All East Grand Forks with its 7-12-1 record and five other teams had to do was win one game in sub-region play and they were in the Region 8 tourney. Now it's a brand new ball game. Season records don't mean one thing anymore.

In basketball, it's not any better. The Prowlers were seeded into the District 31 tournament but their season record didn't mean anything anymore and they saw their good season go down the drain in one night. Any good team can have a bad night. It's happened many times in all sports and it will happen again and at every level, high school, collegiate and professional.

But at the college level, at least in hockey, there are playoffs after the regular season ends with the teams with the best season records in the playoffs. Both pro basketball and hockey have playoffs with the best teams record-wise getting into the playoffs and playing each other in a best-of-seven game series. Why can't there be something similar here in Minnesota at the high school level? Shorten the season and have the four, six, or eight best teams record-wise play each other in a playoff with teams playing each other in a best-of-three game series.

I believe if a team played well all season such as the Prowlers did in hockey and basketball this past year and then had a bad game in the tournaments, they should have a second chance and not have a whole season go out the window in one night. I know the best team would really come out the champion and I'm sure there would be an added dimension of excitement in the two sports along with an incentive for playing to have a good record at the end of the season.

I sincerely hope there is someone else who feels as I do and is in a position to bring about a change. I truly believe a change is needed and I hope it happens in the near future. I think the players and coaches who work hard all season deserve it and we fans who go out and support the teams all season long deserve it.

Sincerely,
Daniel Dahlstrom

Milder Weather Brings Warning

Streams and lakes in Minnesota will soon be losing their ice with the advent of warmer weather, the Department of Natural Resources noted today, and added that people should "stay off" to avoid losing their lives by drowning.

The annual spring break up, always welcome after a long hard winter, has often meant disaster to the reckless or unwary who have ventured out on what appeared to be "still safe" ice, said William Severson, outdoor safety specialist.

He emphasized that youngsters are particularly vulnerable to bring trapped in a hazardous ice situation because of their ignorance of the danger and their natural desire to take chances.

"Every parent should make it a special point this time of the year to warn their children of the risk and be sure that toddlers are not left alone and unsupervised in the vicinity of streams and lakes," said Severson.

He observed that drainage ditches, highway ponding sites and similar areas often completely dry in the summer frequently carry water deep enough during the spring run off to become death traps.

Severson said rivers, creeks and ditches where there is a movement of water usually are the first places to become unsafe for pedestrian or mechanized travel.

The survival of our national economy. We need and must have a family farm program that provides: A voluntary farm program. Door open to all farmers with equal rights. Guarantees full 100 per cent parity price. Eliminates all farm risk. Gives farmers an income consistent to business, professions, labor, etc. A potential of multimillion family farms. Our largest industry. Unemployment eventually vanish. Conserving and building up our land. To preserve and perpetuate the American family farm. To pass on to our children, a way of life and our richest inheritance received from our forefathers. Letters to the Editor

To The Times Editor:

First of all I want to thank Rev. Jonathan Law for his very timely letter in last week's issue of the Times exposing what seems to be a secret plan for a liquor selling motel on the south edge of the city of Thief River Falls. Also my same word of thanks goes to Editor Lundin of the Times for his splendid editorial in last week's issue of the Times entitled "Through the Loophole" and relating to the same liquor selling motel. If we get a liquor-selling motel we will have three places selling liquor, if we count the municipal liquor stores.

As I understand it, and so far as this secret plan has been disclosed, the city council, and the county board will be asked to de-annex a small area, and separate it from the city, and attach it to the county. When this has been accomplished, the county board will then be asked to grant a liquor license to the owners of the motel. If this plan is correctly reported, then I for one would like to know just why the county board should step in and become involved in this secret scheme, and help the city council to evade, and promote a tricky scheme to violate the present liquor laws of our state. That seems to be what the city council, and the county board will be asked to do.

Just to show what has been going on during the last few years, the city council has now licensed several places to sell beer, and besides that we have two municipal liquor stores, and if the pending proposal for a liquor-selling motel goes through we will have three places in our city selling intoxicating liquor. You would think that two municipal liquor stores would be more than sufficient. Let us hope that the city council and the county board will refuse to participate in the proposed evasion of present liquor laws of our state.

Just to show what has been going on in the city, I understand that a year or two ago the city council granted a license to one of the teachers in our schools to operate a beer joint within the city limits. Presumably the teacher opened up his place of business and right away started to sell his beer to the public. So far as I can find there were no objections or protests from the school board or the county board. However, so far as I can see, both the county board and the school board are under the moral duty to protect the welfare of our young people, and our people generally.

This licensing of a beer joint was right along one of our main roadsides where there is heavy motor traffic. Just why should the county board now be so cooperative as to help get a fancy liquor selling motel right on the edge of our city if they are requested to join in and cooperate in evading our present liquor law?

So long as people remain silent and do nothing, conditions will remain as they are, and will grow from bad to worse. Only a few will make any money out of this sordid traffic. But the young people will suffer from the traffic. Go down to the court house on trial days in the county court and see how the young people and their fathers and mothers have to dig down into their pockets and find money to pay the fines imposed more or less directly connected with violations of the liquor laws of the state. The city is making money from the fines and licenses.

We have now secured a vocational school, and also a junior college in our city of which we all are justly proud. These schools attract students from all over the northern part of the state. Let us keep our town worthy of our schools. We also have a number of large, active churches in our town. I trust these churches will also speak up and not sit idly by, while the liquor industry comes in and helps to undermine the foundations of our community.

I suggest we all watch and try to see just what our public officials are doing and how they are voting on the question of more liquor licenses and more places selling liquor. Speak up emphatically and say just what you think about this matter. Write a letter to the Times and express yourself.

Almost 70 years ago when I first arrived in this town of Thief River Falls there were about 16 saloons standing along our streets. I am quite sure the county board and the people of our city will not support or participate in any scheme to evade the present law and bring in a fancy motel to sell more liquor. We have too many places selling beer and liquor in our city right now.

In order that there may be no question about who writes this letter I am signing my name hereunto.

Thanking the Times and its editor for space for this letter, I am,

Sincerely Yours
H. O. Berve

N.D. President Of NFO To Talk Here Saturday

"NFO Farmers Are Ready To Price Are You?" will be the topic of the talk to be given by Ken Spitzer, president of the North Dakota NFO, at a whole hog sausage feed Saturday evening in the national guard armory in Thief River Falls. The event is sponsored by the Pennington and Red Lake county NFO chapters.

Spitzer told the Times in a special telephone interview that producers are preparing to set the world market minimum prices and that a meeting of Canadian, Australian and American producers is being arranged now.

He says he will also question whether the federal commodity credit corporation (CCC) is friend or foe of the farmer, and give his reasons for asking the question.

Spitzer joined the NFO in 1965 and helped organize the Foster county chapter in North Dakota, serving as its first president. He has been president of the NFO in North Dakota for four years and is in his fourth term as a national director. He is presently grain representative for the Bismarck area.

The speaker owns a 3,000 acre small grain farm near Kensel, N.D., is married and has three sons, the eldest of whom is in college and is the major operator of the farm during the summer months.

Everyone is welcome at the event which will start at 6:30 p.m. with serving of the whole hog sausage feed. Tickets will be available at the door. The speaking program is expected to start about 8 p.m.

1,400 Properties Appraised For Highway Uses

Last year the valuation section of the state highway department's right of way office appraised over 1,400 parcels of property to be acquired for public highway improvements. The properties, both urban and rural, were valued at more than $17 million.

"We realize that taking private property for public use, or eminent domain as it is popularly called, cometimes creates an emotional problem in addition to the economic one," Russel Gustafson said. Gustafson is head of the valuation section, responsible for the work of about seventy right of way appraisers all over the state.

"An owner, placed in the position of an unwilling seller, sometimes demands an unreasonable price—based more on his personal discomfiture than market value. As much as we sympathize with his point of view, we are bound by statute to estimate just compensation on the workings of the free market, with documented evidence of value provided by sales of comparable properties," he said.

Real estate appraisers generally rely on three proven methods of assessing property value. The first is to ascertain how much it would cost to replace the property today, minus the value of its depreciation to-date. The second is the value of income produced by the property, like the rental income produced by an apartment house. The third, perhaps the best and most easily understood is the market approach, or what the property would sell for on the open market as compared with similar properties recently sold.

Evidence that highway appraisers are well-trained and experienced is reflected by the fact that only about 30 disputed valuations were referred to court appointed commissioners for settlement in 1971. The three commissioners, appointed by a judge as persons knowledgeable of real estate values in the area, constitute an impartial panel to decide on a valuation in cases where state appraisers and sellers cannot reach a mutually acceptable agreement.

Either side may appeal the decision of the commissioners if they prefer to have the matter settled in court. Of the 1,400 appraisals made last year, 62 were decided by judge and jury.

Newcomers to the ranks of right of way appraisers are selected from college graduates or persons with four or five years of experience in the real estate business. They enter on the job as trainees, and receive extensive training over a period of a year, both within the highway department and in specialized courses at local institutions of higher education.

From time to tome the valuation section hires private real estate appraisers as independent consultants. They are usually experts in real estate appraisals in a local area, and most often retained in cases where valuation turns on a question of the "highest and best use" of a property, or when partial purchase of an industrial, commercial or agricultural enterprise makes the valuation extremely complex. These independent consultant appraisers make approximately twenty per cent of the department's valuations.

SPEECH HELP is given by speech pathologist Carol Klitzke to W. B. Fossell of Thief River Falls who is recovering from a stroke. Assistance is given through therapy in the Easter Seal clinic at Northwestern hospital services where both in-patients and out-patients can receive aid.

TAPE RECORDER is used in some phases of therapy in the Easter Seal speech and hearing clinic at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls. Speech pathologist Carol Klitzke is shown above as she works with five-year-old Paul Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Johnson of Thief River Falls. Paul enjoys operating the recorder himself.

needs in the course of everyday living. His therapy sessions run longer than Paul's because his needs are different.

"One of our purposes is to get patients to communicate," Miss Klitzke said. "We work with both speech and language. Speech is the physical movements which create vocal sounds; language is the manipulation of sound to provide understandable communication. Both are necessary for a person to be able to speak and be understood."

Referrals to the clinic can come from anyone and need not be a medical referral, Miss Klitzke said. The program is voluntary and may be terminated by the patient at any time.

"We want to see children with potential problems as early as possible," the pathologist said. "The same applies to persons who have had hoarseness for 10 days or longer, indicating that there may be any of a number of problems. The earlier we can have an opportunity for diagnosis and provide therapy if needed, the more successful we can be and the better life the individual can be expected to have."

Miss Klitzke sees the program as having three parts.

(1) Informational—People should call the speech and hearing clinic (681-4240 and ask for the speech clinic) if they believe there is a potential speech or hearing problem;

(2) Diagnostic—Testing will be done at the clinic in an attempt to determine if there is a problem, what it is if there is one, and what type of remedial action should be taken; and

(3) Therapy—Rehabilitation and habilitation services can be provided to assist persons having problems. Emphasis is placed on pre-school children and adults because most school children in this community have access to other assistance through the schools. Miss Klitzke also works with the local school system and at the Falls day activity center.

"Because the case load is not now sufficient to be full-time at the clinic here, I have been working in the schools," she said. "The clinic takes precedence, however, and as the case load increases this will become a full-time occupation." At present she can usually be contacted at the clinic after 2 p.m. Monday through Friday and all day on Wednesday.

"I will be happy to talk to groups and encourage any invitations to come and explain our program to organizations in the community," she said.

Civil Service Tests Changed

Tests for persons interested in qualifying for Minnesota state civil service and state insurance jobs will be administered after April 1 at the University of Minnesota technical institute of Crookston.

Announcement of the change was made recently by Adolph Beich, assistant professor of business at the college, who is test monitor. The examinations were formerly given at Central high school.

Test site will be room 201, Dowell hall, the new classroom building located on the north edge of the mall. Applicants should park in the visitor parking area by the Trojan Inn, Beich said. The Inn will be open for those who are waiting for examinees.

Beich explained that state tests are conducted one or two Saturdays a month, beginning at 9 a.m. Exams for federal positions are still held at the high school.

Agassiz Refuge Participates In Wildlife Week

Week of March 19-25 has been proclaimed as Wildlife Week by the National Wildlife federation. The theme selected for this year is entitled "Ecology: A Wild Idea." This theme is intended to focus attention upon the relationship between man and his environment.

Through the science of ecology we have learned that to maintain a quality environment depends upon maintaining the natural relationships between all forms of life," writes Thomas Atkins of the Agassiz national wildlife refuge staff. "The maintenance of wildlife populations has been used as a measure of the quality of our environment. Man's activities have had a tragic impact upon its surroundings. For example, from 1968 to 1970, the number of species on the dpeartment of interior's list of endangered wildlife in the United States leaped from 89 to 101.

"The wildlife federation indicated that a quality environment will not come easy nor happen over night. It cannot happen unless man is willing to make personal sacrifices and change his style of living. The effort must come at all levels. Man is part of his environment and as such must learn to live in harmony with it," Atkins said.

Agassiz national wildlife refuge will participate in the observance of wildlife week and programs relating to the week's theme will be presented at a number of area schools.

The programs will include movies and slide talks illustrating man's impact upon his environment and what must be done to preserve a suitable heritage for future generations.

Hamline Reps To Meet Students At Northland

Representatives of Hamline university will be on the Northland state campus, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Friday in the student center to discuss the special programs the college has for junior college transfer students.

Thomas Courtice, assistant to the Hamline president and director of junior college programs, will be accompanied by Donn Haugen, a Northland student last year, who is now attending Hamline. Haugen is among the 55 students taking part in Hamline's $100,000 foundation-sponsored study to explore the adaptability of junior college students to the private college environment.

Courtice will be able to discuss the first set of findings from the study, data which he says show that this group of students have had "considerable impact on the Hamline campus."

Hamline this year has set aside a minimum of $75,000 in financial aid for junior college transfer students.

Gross Receipts Of Minn. Farmers Up 6.3 Per Cent

Minnesota farmers received record gross cash receipts of $2,142,800,000 from the marketing of crops, livestock and poultry products in 1971, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald announced today.

That topped the previous high, set in 1970, by $127 million or 6.3 per cent.

Almost two thirds of the receipts were from the sale of livestock, poultry and meat products, totaling $1,388,600,000.

Commissioner Wefald said that despite higher livestock prices in the last quarter of 1971, the gross income from that production for Minnesota farmers for the year represented an increase over the 1970 record by only $15.5-million or slightly over one per cent.

The biggest gain in gross receipts was chalked up by field crops, totaling $754.3 million. That was an increase of $111.5 million or 17 per cent higher than for 1970. However, Minnesota's grain production last year had topped 1970 by 30 per cent.

Commissioner Wefald said 1971 farm marketing statistics also show that Minnesota recovered fifth place in state rankings for gross cash receipts from marketing. Minnesota climbed back ahead of Nebraska by a margin of $3.1 million, after having been shaded by the Cornhusker state in 1970 by a mere $100,000.

Retaining their national rankings ahead of Minnesota are California with gross marketing receipts of $4,852,800,000, Iowa with $4,037,000,000, Texas with $3,152,800,000, and Illinois with $3,832,200,000. Completing the top ten behind Minnesota and Nebraska are Kansas, Missouri, Wisconsin and Indiana.

Seventh place Kansas scored the biggest gain over 1970 gross receipts, up 11.5 per cent, followed by California at 8.2 per cent, Missouri up by 7.9 per cent and Minnesota was fourth in rate of gain at 6.3 per cent. For all states the average rate of gain in receipts was 4.8 per cent.

Explosives Users Reminded About Storage Rules

Any Minnesotan who has explosives on hand for which there is no immediate use should get rid of them, Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund warned today.

"For one thing, they constitute a hazard. For another, unless the possessor has proper storage facilities and a valid use permit, they are illegal," Hoaglund said.

"To dispose of such material, the owner should seek the advice and help of the local police or sheriff's office, or a representative of the state fire marshal's office.

"If you are in possession of explosives which you plan to keep for future use, make sure that you have a use permit, as the law requires. These permits must be renewed annually, and a separate permit is required for each location at which the materials are kept or used. Application forms can be obtained from and filed with local fire departments.

"The permits are required for newly purchaseed explosives and for those which you may have had on hand for some time. There are indications that many small purchasers are neglecting to obtain permits, and many possessors of explosives have simply forgotten or do not know that this is required by law.

"The reason for the permits is to inform local authorities of all locations where explosives are stored, and locations where detonations are scheduled to take place."

New Low-Calorie Sweetener Has Been Isolated

A new low-calorie natural sweetener has been isolated by a research team in Pennsylvania, according to Dr. Arthur J. Klippen, director of the Veterans administration hospital in Minneapolis.

Dr. Klippen said the new sweetener is named "Monellin" by its discoverers and is derived from a wild red berry that grows abundantly in tropical West Africa.

Like the artificial sweeteners cyclamate and saccharin, Monellin is free of carbohydrates. He said, however, that evidence indicates that the new sweetener, unlike the others, is a protein.

The project is part of the VA's research program in oral diseases. As a carbohydrate-free protein, the new substance "could have potential as a sugar substitute in dental programs aimed at reducing tooth decay, as a sweetener in low sugar diets, or as a food additive," Dr. Klippen said.

According to research reports received by the VA hospital director, Monellin is the first reported protein to elicit a sweet taste in man, and is "the sweetest natural product known."

The new sweetener was isolated by a Veterans administration-national institutes of health research team at the University of Pennsylvania's Monell chemical senses center in Philadelphia. Its discoverers are Dr. Robert H. Cagan, a biochemist on the research staff of the Philadelphia VA hospital, and Dr James A Morris, a biochemist and NIH postdoctoral trainee.

The night was dark and calm. All creatures were silent and leaves stood still as a lone man knelt in a garden called Gethsemane and prayed, "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt."

Around Him Jesus' disciples lay sleeping. Soon He knew would come betrayal, public condemnation and derision . . . and the long last march. And yet He prayed, "Thy will be done."

In the shadow of the Cross Jesus demonstrated perfect love and trust for God, His Father. In the hours ahead He would establish His Sonship for the atonement of all mankind.

And so today, in a world that needs this message of hope, let us commemorate that first Good Friday by acknowledging God as our Father, helping our churches to illustrate His way to the hungry, the sick, and the needy.
